FOREWORD

To the reader:

As you began to read this book, you may wonder if you and I have anything in common at all. I say we do! Much more than just our mutual desire for understanding knowledge and truth, I believe there is a connection between us that your current belief system would barely allow you to grasp hold of. The reality is not just that you, like me, have a deep and underlying interest in how things work, and are therefore looking for a better awareness of what life is and what the rules that govern that life are. It is, in fact, much deeper and more subtle than even this..., and yet without having read more than a paragraph how can I begin to tell you the rest?

Perhaps by reading this book you are seeking information that differs from what you have been told or taught to believe by other persons you now feel you can no longer trust. Perhaps what you are looking for is information that will more closely fit with what seems to be your own personal experience, since many (or at least some) of your actual experiences do not equate to what you have been told to believe.

What ever the reason you find yourself in front of these pages, I must be honest up front and remind you that when it comes to finding the ultimate “truth”..., at least in so far as religious doctrines and the resulting dogma it has created are concerned..., I am not here to sell you anything! I am definitely not trying to start a NEW religion or to gather a gaggle of followers! I have no agenda in writing this book other than to explore in the pages that follow what seemingly will be brand new territory, but in truth is just information that comes from a time over 12, 500 years into our own planet’s past..., so how can it be new? Having said that, I am also not here to ask you (as an intelligent reader) to follow me blindly down an unknown road with out telling you in the very beginning that what you are about to read does NOT come from any of the “conventional” scientific and physical sources..., meaning it has not been copied from ancient Sumerian texts, or..., off of walls still standing deep in the sand dunes of Egypt! Instead, this information comes from my best recollections and memories of my own lifetime as a Doctor/Scientist who lived and worked in a long forgotten place now known as ATLANTIS. The accuracy of this material cannot be proven by comparing it to any dug up information because even though there are records waiting to be found that were physically created by the Atlantean's, only a few have been recovered. The ones that have been recovered are not able to be read by conventional means, since our science has yet to achieve the proper methods of information retrieval which would allow them access to the complete depth of knowledge found on these records!

It would be like finding a DVD in the desert with no DVD player and no instructions on how to build one..., only much more advanced than even that. Our "science" has yet to achieve this knowledge for both good reasons (in some cases) and in other cases, for very stupid reasons. So..., until then, the accuracy of what you read here is going to be for YOU to investigate further for yourself. Trust me when I say that there is so much out there already to find if you are only willing to look! So then, while reading this book, if you find something that seems right to you, then I invite you to investigate it further..., if not..., then move along and give the information a chance to resonate within you for awhile before discarding it. Forgive me if I remind you at this point that it takes much more courage to write material that opposes conventional thought, than it does to "parrot" conventional thought. Most authors write things that have been written previously by earlier authors, who themselves have only read what even earlier authors than they had written, and then regurgitate what they read in a new form, thus labeling it their "own" well thought out discovery! This, more than anything has irritated me. How many lies have actually been promoted, and handed down through countless centuries of blind following, blind stupidity, and blind belief in made up stories and writings that have no basis in fact, but are instead based primarily upon fiction. (Much of our current religious system, and nearly ALL of its dogma could be classified into this one category.) I know..., it's way too long ago for any of you to remember that at one time in our recent history, very well thought of universities taught that the world was flat, and that Sun revolved around the Earth! (Wow..., and they PAID for that education too!) However, I can't help but wonder what the authors and writers of those so-called "text books" were thinking as they substantiated and furthered the previous generation's misunderstandings to a whole new generation of hopeful "truth seekers" by copying only what they had read, written by someone else? I wonder if they (the authors) lost any sleep once they found out these ideas were obvious lies, or did they simply console themselves by saying that copying the words of a supposedly great thinker, (or bull shitter) was the proper thing to do at the time, and that teaching must go on, even if the facts are incorrect? Do you suppose if you had been living at that time, that NOT thinking as you're told to think, and NOT believing as you are told to believe would have been a good thing? I wonder if the suggestion that you "must question everything" would have flown then. But then, for that matter, I wonder if it will fly even today. What do you think? Do you question EVERYTHING...?

I have personally read countless books over the course of my life, and am amazed at how much one "writer" will stand on the shoulders of the previous writer without EVER investigating the truth of what they read.

That being said..., I am going to make sure that you are aware right up front that although most of what I am writing here is original material, and not just "parroted" from the last book I read (written by someone else)..., there is no real way to prove some parts of it because so much of this comes from my own personal memories of a lifetime long since past. Instead, any convincing proof of those parts of this material (out of necessity) has to come from you ...your own experience, your own mind, heart and soul.

Now that that's out of the way, it is also important for you to realize that I am just a carpenter in THIS lifetime, and that I have no degree in science, medicine, math or physics! The truth simply is this: I "build" things to earn a living, and yet..., I happen to know things about science, healing, and medicine that some of our smartest scientists today are only starting to understand. A logical question to ask is how is that even possible? (Oh..., and I guess I forgot to say as well that you must be open to the idea of re-incarnation for this to seem plausible.) Moving on..., the subtitle for this book is: A Beginners Primer in the Science and Philosophy of Atlantis and Mu. This is because I have written it (although it may not seem so at first) as if it were meant for young children to read. This is the way they would have been taught if they had been born into Atlantis! If there is an interest for a higher level of understanding based on these very basic and fundamental rules and philosophies that the Atlantean's worked with and worked under, I may at a future date undertake writing a book detailing some of their more interesting discoveries which have eluded our own scientists, and continue to elude them for very good reasons.

In the pages that follow, some of you will probably be reading many things for the first time. I expect that you will encounter totally new concepts and ideas which convey an explanation of how I believe things work in what “appears” to be our world. These ideas however, may seem just as technical as they are spiritual. Together, these ideas, (technical and spiritual) are concepts which will form a practical approach to living on our planet while employing a much less distorted perspective than the one we are currently using.

I will say in “our” defense that if most of our education has come from that long lost university which taught that the world was flat, and that the sun moved around the Earth, how could we know any better? If you think that what our current day science is telling you is much farther than that..., think again. (Not that they don’t know more..., but YOU are certainly not ready to be told what they know! So they say nothing.)

Moving on..., also within the following pages, you will find some of the conclusions that I have drawn about our current perspectives and how they fail to serve us at this time, going even so far as to hinder any real kind of forward movement in both science and spirituality as we understand these subjects! These conclusions are drawn specifically from my own observations here in this time, as well as my recollections as an Atlantean, and then over twenty-five years of spiritual study mixed with an abundance of logical thinking. The final answer is, quite frankly, NOT to be found within these few pages. The final answer is, as I learned long ago, in your own heart and mind, and in your own soul. So then, for the greatest truth, and the deepest understanding, you must finish the journey we start here on your own.

Before you begin to read Chapter One, I would like to ask for your patience if you don’t immediately understand some of the ideas that I am going to share with you. Secondly, I’ll add that a very basic understanding of scientific terms and a basic grasp of physics and chemistry will be very helpful to you in understanding these new concepts. It would also be helpful for you to have done some kind of spiritual study in metaphysics, as well as having read some of the Bible, the Koran, the Torah, the Bhagavad-Gita, or any other religious works that may apply to your understanding and your perceptions of how things currently work.

If, however, you have NOT read or studied these things, then you will find that it is your own ability to think abstractly and to visualize new concepts that is going to be the most helpful thing to you. Starting with Chapter One, and as we move forward, if it seems that I address a new topic that is, or at least seems to be too technical, or too different from your own understanding, just try to adjust the speed of your reading, putting out of your mind for the moment what you “think” you know, and be willing to “try on” these new ideas, new thoughts, and new ways of looking at things. The reason I am asking you to do this has already been mentioned, but is worth repeating: much of what you are about to read has to my knowledge has not been said on Earth in a very long time. It may be quite different from your basic understandings of how things work. It may also be an entirely different way than what you have learned for looking at GOD, the Universe and your role in creating it. I will, as a promise, try to make this interesting for you, but remember, this is a book of Science and Technical information, which support a deeply spiritual understanding of the world, the universe and our relationship to it. This book is ultimately for those of you, like me, who crave a much higher level of understanding, but have rarely come across it anywhere else.

In my spiritual search for the truth..., I have found that there are good reasons as to why there are so many things we as a culture do not yet understand. There is always the possibility that these far reaching technologies put into the wrong hands could be dangerous to the Earth and dangerous to mankind. They certainly were dangerous in the final days of Atlantis! Therefore, as a practical measure, even the small amount of “proof” that I could give you on some of the scientific fronts, is conspicuously left out if I feel for ANY reason that explaining it on a deeper level might lead our less than spiritual scientists to the building of yet another weapon rather than the building of technologies that could nurture and serve mankind as a whole. I simply do not trust these people to ACT in the best interest of you the people! This will be explained later in the book!

Ultimately, as you began to read on, too much “math and proofs” would make this book totally unreadable to the average reader and that is NOT my goal since this book is meant to be a beginning primer of Atlantean thought that anyone can grasp! With that in mind, I have chosen to use a better way to explain these things: logic and reasoning.

With these two simple tools, anyone..., even those without scientific training, can “think outside of the box” or think abstractly about things which may appear to have no current scientific solution. Remember this as well; even our current day “main stream” scientific theory is just that: Scientific THEORY..., it is NOT the last word, and neither is this book for that matter, since I have left out many things that I felt were too obscure to write about, and other things which simply have been written extensively about by other authors quite recently who have covered the subjects very well indeed.

Lastly, and this is truly important..., it will be a real challenge to explain things as we understood them in Atlantis, using the “current way” that most people have been taught to understand our universe and the forces that govern it. So then..., as you read, it may appear from time to time that I am flip flopping back and forth..., saying that things are one way, and then later saying they are another way. However, what I am attempting to do is to build a bridge from where your thinking is at the current moment, over the deep chasm of ignorance..., to where it needs to be in order to understand how Atlanteans thought..., which is totally different! In order to do THAT, I have to start at the place where most people think and believe they are, and then put their feet in two different boats as it were, until I am able to bring them along to a whole new place of understanding. That being said..., and without any further ado..., let’s begin!

IS IT REALLY ENERGY? OR IS IT MIND, LIGHT, AND LOVE

CHAPTER ONE

ONE, ...THIS WE ALL ARE, HEAVEN IS THE GOAL, TRUTH IS THE PATH, LOVE IS THE MOTION TO PROPELL US FORTH, ALL ELSE IS NOT OF GOD AND MUST BE SET ASIDE....THIS IS THE LAW OF ONE

ATLANTEAN BOOK OF THE LAW

Before we begin this journey in earnest..., I would first like to ask you to visualize a large body of water for me. Simply close your eyes, and allow a picture or an image to take form inside your mind of a lovely blue ocean that goes out as far as your inner “eyes” can see. The clear, blue-ish surface of this ocean is very calm and serene, just like you’d find on one of the most peaceful of memorable summer days.

Now, I would like to ask each of you to become a special effects wizard! You know..., just like those wonderful computer programmers who do all of the “cool stuff” you see on the movie screen..., and have literally come to expect while watching movies these days. Visualize the very calm ocean already pictured in your mind, suddenly coming alive with activity, and within a matter of just a few seconds, in the vast space above the water, countless trillions of tiny droplets explode upwards, separating themselves from the ocean, and simply hang there in a very strange type of suspended animation!

Now..., quite suddenly, as suddenly as it all started in fact, everything appears to go calm in your mind, and everything you see becomes still and serene once again. Yet..., you can clearly see that now everything appears to be different! There is a strange type of celestial music playing in the background of your mind that was not there earlier, and most noticeably..., there is what appears to be a whole new world of water suspended above the original ocean you had pictured; just hanging there as if by some magical power which never existed before. This new ocean is made up of trillions of tiny drops of water hanging silently in a strange type of suspended animation which defies both logic and your previous experience! A new and different type of ocean seems to have been formed out of that singular old one.

In this new ocean, there is plenty of space between all of the tiny drops to see each drop individually as a separate unit. The complete body of water that was the original ocean is still definitely there..., only now, that ocean consists of what is left underneath, what is suspended above, AND the space that seems to exist between the two which are put apart as if by magic. All three of these things make up the total ocean that originally was!

This analogy is as close as I can get to actually describing the seeming physical separation that exists between our Father (The original, or what some even call: The Is-ness of LIFE)..., his creation of human beings (more commonly known as God's Son) and all the rest that exists, which make up Eternity and Infinity. The original ocean in this example is a metaphor for GOD as the whole undivided being, or everything that originally existed. HE/It was beautiful and serene in its existence and needed nothing else. Then, somehow..., perhaps out of HIS own desire and will, or just perhaps as a result of an idea not necessarily had by GOD himself, but instead by a smaller aspect of God's SON, this illusionary and dreamlike "energy" was created that could hold all of the droplets above the ocean in a seemingly separated state. These drops suspended above the original ocean became solidified into place (or space) by “harmonic projections of polarity” which may not necessarily have their source in the Will of the Creator, but appear to exist, non-the-less.

Originally, if we are to continue with our metaphoric analogy, each drop in the above visualization had been a part of the larger ocean, or if you will (IF GOD himself were the Ocean), a part of GOD! Now..., in the seemingly separated state they appear to be in, each droplet contains everything in microcosm that the original ocean had within it, and in fact..., each little drop really IS the ocean, not truly separate from it at all, but only appearing to be separate for the moment, that is, until it drops back into the ocean when the magical force holding it up in suspension suddenly disappears. These droplets in the example above could be seen as further metaphors for everything that exists in our material existence; this includes: galaxies..., stars..., planets..., and smaller things like: people..., animals..., flowers..., and trees! It could indeed include everything we think of as the great expanse of the UNIVERSE as seen from our limited perspective.

Now, for the sake of using this visualization just a little further before we move on, I would like you to use your mind’s imaginary camera to zoom in real close to these cute little drops and put faces on them, or make shapes out of all that you can see. Some of these drops can be trees and plants, others which are larger can be planets and stars, and others are the people you see around you! Some are male, and some are female..., each one having very different facial features and personalities.

Now THIS might seem like a stretch for you..., because how can one thing be turned into many things all looking different? I suggest that as a matter of principle, this metaphor is easy to scientifically support because in nature we can find this very same idea occurring, and no one ever questions it! If you want to know how, simply think for a brief moment about a snowflake! Please observe that a snowflake is merely a frozen drop of water falling from the sky, and yet due to change in frequency, or more simply put..., a change in the outer temperature where the drop is falling, no two snowflakes in existence are ever formed exactly alike! This has been proven, and is a basic fact, and is accepted without question. Yet, snowflakes are just water, are they not? Is not all water basically the same thing? This in itself has to be considered quite amazing! Not to be taken lightly or passed over as some sort of cosmic accident. The very nature of crystalline structure as it under goes changes in frequency (owing to magnetic occurrences) has sadly been overlooked by so many of earth's best scientists, they have literally fallen flat on their faces in the snow.

So, not to be lazy like they are, and for the purposes of expanding on this simple idea and looking into it more deeply, how is it that snowflakes can possibly LOOK different if each one is made out of the very same thing?

Or, to put it another way..., why do you suppose it is possible for what is basically made up of the "same stuff" to suddenly, if not miraculously, appear physically different and unique in its outer "appearance" when it all started out exactly the same? I am going to take a few chapters to explain how this works and what it means.

CONSIDER THIS CAREFULLY...

When water is in the chemical state known to scientists as a liquid, it vibrates at a different rate or frequency than it does when it is in the chemical state known as a solid! I realize that we are speaking now in molecular terms, but for simplicity let's just say that the frequency of the molecule's vibration slows down significantly when "water" is in the solid state. Even though at a higher rate of vibration, all "water" appears visually the same..., the truth is that when the rate of vibration is slowed down (in this case due to a decrease in its temperature), individual differences in the "form" of water can and do occur. The trick here is to understand that no matter what the appearances of the form are, the snowflake, or the large ice block, or covered lake..., is still ultimately WATER, (which by the way..., most of us can easily concede). Whatever the shape or form frozen water may take to make it look different than the snowflake or ice block over there..., it is all still made out of exactly the same stuff.

When discussing what appears to be our Universe, (which seems to be a whole other can of worms...,) it appears as if energy is really the key to it all... (It isn't really, but our scientists..., bless them, like to pretend that it is, since that is all they can understand at the moment.)

Therefore, in basic science..., energy is almost always used, given off, transmuted or transported, which results in making our physical world appear to be a reality that is forever changing. But this is, in the deepest sense, not really the case at all! And..., we will definitely get to the reasons behind this statement as we move ever farther forward into the book. For now then, suffice it to say that WATER, just like everything else that appears to exist on the Earth (including that which we think of as our physical bodies) appears to be made up of something very solid which apparently can be changed or transmuted in form if a shift in frequency is added to any significant degree. If we extrapolate then, it would seem as if our whole Universe, which is also made up of solid shapes, would be subject to the same rules and laws, namely..., that it could be changed or transmuted in form, if a shift in frequency were added to it in any significant degree as well.

Why does all this matter, and why should I start the discussion here? Firstly, I need to start the discussion at the very place where everyone believes that they are. Secondly, it matters due to the fact that the form or forms you are seeing visually in the manifest universe are not really creations of GOD at all, as much as they are in the simplest sense GODS MIND being redefined or retuned! Or, to put it another way, GODS structure being “molded and created” by YOUR mind, using the critical mental tools of choice and intent. (I know that sounds like a mouthful..., so let’s see if we can make sense out of it shall we.)

How this happens is all very subtle...

Energy..., in current day scientific theory at least, seems to be everywhere as I’ve already said. So then..., as you and your friends walk down the side walk on a Friday night after seeing a very good movie, you could say (in current day scientific terms) that you were walking through a literal ocean of differently vibrating energies!

Seriously..., think about it. If you freeze water..., will it not turn to ice? If you melt it..., will it not turn back to water? Of course it will..., that’s a given. Well, in the same way, if you melt all the roads, the buildings, and the cars..., what do they turn into? Probably some sort of liquid. What if you heated them even more...? Would they then turn into some sort of gas perhaps? If you think of everything you are seeing as just a mass of vibrating energy which has solidified into a very particular form, then you may find some help in your understanding.

For example, what appears to be your body would be energy vibrating at one frequency, and the air around you would be energy vibrating at another..., while the sidewalk would be energy vibrating yet at still another. The buildings collected on the streets around you, and the cars driving down those streets would all have different vibrational qualities and frequencies as well.

This might seem at first glance to be quite effective and necessary in a way; since this apparent vibrational variation would be part of what keeps those things separated from each other..., and thereby insures that no one thing would accidentally blend back into the next thing, which could be very confusing to your mind.

Let's try then, to sum up our current day way of thinking and believing, (which is also our current scientific theory at the moment). Here you seem to be..., a tiny but complete unit of energy, (called a physical body) appearing to be solid and walking and moving around in a separated universe of even more energy, (consisting of stars, planets, moons...etc.) that for all practical purposes seems to be very chaotic and random...or to put it another way..., very Un-Godlike.

The truth of this matter, which really can NOT be proven by observation or by any means of current scientific methodology is this: YOU..., are STILL completely safe within the "OCEAN OF GOD" or better yet..., the MIND OF GOD! You have never really left it, and can never really be separated out of it. Whether you appear to be alone on the Earth, or flying above it, or digging below it, or in some dimension in-between it..., YOU are still as you originally were in the very beginning..., just a part of "GOD" and in reality..., no part of GOD can be separated out of the whole and be called: "NOT GOD" ever! So now..., if you think back to our earlier metaphor of the ocean and the smaller separated drops..., you can see that even a small drop hanging above the water must in truth simply be a smaller part of the larger whole which could eventually fall back into it when conditions are right. Naturally with water, we are talking about something quite physical, and with GOD we are talking about something much more akin to "spirit" or to MIND. But, I'm sure that you've already made that leap. (That is, unless you think that GOD is an old man sitting in a chair on a cloud...in which case...I'm truly sorry..., I can not help you!)

Now..., while apparently living here on this planet called Earth..., which is actually a very clever illusion, because as I've already pointed out..., for the purposes of this book, I would like everyone to try to understand that you are really nowhere but perhaps swimming..., in the middle of an infinite spiritual ocean called: GOD'S MIND, and have never left it. I will, however, concede that you do seem to appear to be walking along these very solid "streets" with your friends, and living in very solid houses with your families. These streets seem to be made of concrete, but my suggestion to you is to start understanding that they are nothing more than the MIND OF GOD frozen and redefined. Taking this a step further..., you are also living and working in "buildings" that seem to be constructed out of wood and metal, but really..., they too are the frozen MIND OF GOD! Getting silly with this example, and using it yet again..., you believe that you are breathing in "air" which seems to be made up of oxygen and nitrogen when really it's...well...just another frequency shift in the infinite MIND OF GOD. Yet..., due to these frequency variations (and the invisible forces of magnetism), everything appears to your eyes to be quite separate and distinct from everything else! You could say that you are experiencing the ultimate MIND JOB!

As I said earlier..., this is an (elaborate) or quite clever illusion! And how it can be an illusion is most of what this book is all about! What you are hopefully going to learn as we progress is this:

YOU, as a part of GOD... are dreaming that you are living and moving inside a virtual ocean of frequencies that are NOT GOD, and therefore are separate from you.

Again my friend...I admit it...it appears that we are separate if you only look with your eyes. That is the illusion! That is the wool pulled over your mind, and it has to do with how your brain was initially set up to interpret these waves and frequencies, and then reconstruct them into an image you could "see" visually. Before we move on then, let's review just a few things.

Question: HOW is it possible to have anything made out of the same stuff, but appear to our eyes so differently in form?

Remember in the earlier example, (the one with the water and the snowflake)..., where we discussed that water falling from the sky had to do nothing more than lower or slow down its rate of vibration in order to become a snowflake in the first place? This apparent change was achieved simply by lowering the outside temperature. As a result, what was made up of the very same stuff (water or raindrops) solidified with unique physical differences and characteristics. So individual, and so unique that no two were exactly the same!

This is where the illusion starts, and in order to understand it, one must make two leaps or jumps in his or her understanding. The first leap is one that scientists have already made..., namely that everything you see physically is made out of energy! The second leap is one that only the smartest scientists have even begun to consider..., and that is that everything that is energy, is actually even more subtle than that and is made up of an intelligent substance called MIND.

If people, therefore, along with everything else in the seeming physical universe, are all made up of the same basic stuff..., "...and we will just pretend its energy for now", and it all only "appears" to be different to our eyes, then that would really be saying something wouldn't it?

So I guess the next logical question would be: why don't we remember any of this? Why the charade in the first place? These are important questions, and ones that I am not sure I will attempt to answer in "this" book. Far beyond what you might be able to imagine..., there are definite reasons for our current seeming amnesia! It would be too unsettling for some if I launched into a scenario where the amnesia we appear to have as a group had been overtly forced upon mankind through scientific and genetic engineering and malevolent DNA manipulation. So..., I'm not sure I'm willing to "go there" just yet. But there is a lot we can discuss and understand without going there.

Getting back to our previous train of thought then, if what we have discussed so far is even remotely true, then the Earth and the Universe around us could at least from the lowest perspective, be seen as a test of recognition of sorts. It is, in fact, this very test of recognition, that “we collectively” would be engaged in. (Whether with, or without our consent.) You could also call it: THE TEST OF LOVE or, THE TEST OF REMEMBRANCE..., if you wanted to get completely poetic about it.

Regardless of all that, for the purposes of this discussion..., GOD is really just one big thing, in fact, GOD is everything..., and what we call the Universe is nothing more than an illusion of space, and its visual re-interpretation created by our billions of “choices” that have had little to do with GODS will, but much more to do with OUR OWN will.

Now make no mistake..., because of this thing called choice..., things that are “out there” appear to be separate from everything else, but..., as I’ve already described in the material above, they really are not. This book as a whole is designed to help you to “get this”. It is designed to help you to understand something that literally cannot be proven by your body’s eyes.

Most of all, this is why our current scientific community has never really been able to prove the existence of GOD either in the positive or in the negative. Nor have they been able to provide, for that matter, answers to any of humanity’s fundamental questions as a whole. This is due to their faulty belief systems and incomplete training in what is truly science. In their defense, as I stated in the preface to the book, they were lied to by the regurgitators, and now they are inescapably locked into a strange mindset that says this: Everything that is Science has to be observable, or measurable, or both. And yet..., science will NEVER get past its current level of understanding until it as a whole agrees to this instead...

Physical observation is the ONE thing that has set up the very boundaries they are trying to get beyond, and that they must therefore let go of physical observations completely in order to move past them.

Here then in a nutshell..., is the first and greatest conundrum that scientists, and we as human beings, who appear to be locked into a physical and illusory world have to solve in order to grow, and it could be stated like this....

In order to go beyond the limits of the human physical body, we must first go beyond the limits of the human physical body! Which simply means: If you want to know about the waves and the frequencies that construct “how” we see and perceive the solid universe, you have to go beyond your own eyes, which are set up to do nothing BUT reconstruct the waves of the illusionary physical universe in a very limited format or bandwidth thus making it all look solid in the first place.

This is not at all hard to understand really when one considers that the human eye can only perceive things within a very limited wavelength or bandwidth, and that there are in fact huge amounts of wavelength and bandwidth out there that contain “stuff” we even know about and want to see, but can’t.

Now that I have made a case for at least attempting to “go beyond” what can be seen with the human eyes, let’s ask a very important first question on this new path to going beyond physical sight.

What is the unseen thing which keeps all of the other things that CAN be seen appearing to be separate from everything else?

I suggest that it is, among only a few other things, POLARITY! Or..., said in a more scientific way: Magnetism! Please do not under estimate the gravity (no pun intended) of this first and most significant statement, because its implications are so far reaching that a visual universe has seemingly been constructed in its wake! Let me begin our exploration by asking you this question: Can you physically see magnetism or polarity? Of course not, and since this is what is being used to hold up the illusion, I can tell you right now that you will NEVER “see it for what it is”. You can, however, by careful observation, see and feel its EFFECTS which are everywhere!

Now that being said, you have to understand and be able to sort out what you are looking for in the way of “effects”. I would like to suggest to you that the building blocks for this Universe are NOT what you might think they are, and herein lies the problem of understanding it at its very core at all, and then dismissing it as the unreal, or at the very least, the ethereal thing it actually is! My goal for you is that by the end of this book, you will have discovered the many different ways that the illusion continues to look real right in front of your eyes. Eyes which, by the way, are literally set up and programmed so that you will continue to see nothing but... (You guessed it) an illusion which appears real. So..., let's start with this question:

Is there a way to see Polarity?

I would like to make an argument that you can see it easily! Just NOT the way you would like to, which is with your eyes! You can certainly see the “effects” of polarity everywhere in our world today, and these “effects” are the things you have to notice!

All you have to do is look at a presidential race in the U.S., and you will immediately find very significant polarity right in front of you, and this is without question. The seemingly deep division that runs between republicans and democrats is nothing more than “polarized” opinion about who is right and who is wrong. If looked at carefully, it is easy to see the “effects” of this polarity and what it does to normal people when they talk with one another! This polarity is hugely dividing, and in real terms causes major problems between people which can be seen, heard and felt! In this regard, sometimes “seeing” takes a lot more effort than just opening your eyes. Real seeing, begins with an honest awareness and an open mind that looks past what is right in front of your face and digs to the core of why it appears to be there in the first place. Seeing then, is not just looking! Real seeing has no agenda, and is NOT polarized in any way! Forgive me if I'm frank here, but only stupid people see things using only the “looking method”. Real seeing is observing..., and then understanding WHY!

It is only when you observe, and then understand why, that you have “seen” at all. Otherwise you really don't know WHAT you have seen, and are ill prepared to make any kind of decision about it. That being said, it is a sad truth that people's ideas, understandings, and beliefs are becoming increasingly polarized in the world today as our world moves into the 21st Century! But..., the real question is: why is this happening?

The short answer to that question is that the “why” of things is being left out, and not told to them on purpose!

Very few people in our world know the truth any more. It's not that they don't want to know the truth. But it is a sad fact that we as a whole are being lied to at every turn, by powers and people as corrupt as they come. There are a few key persons hidden within each government in the world today that are participating in the great “lie fest”. This is a trend that really geared up whole heartedly after World War II, and a trend which is not getting better, but instead it's getting worse! There is now a secret shadow government, behind the U.S. government, which answers only to itself, and could be better understood as simply the United States of “Propagandament”! Or..., the United States of “Lie to your Face.” In fairness to what I've just said, I guess I have to explain why, and thus will simply say that UFO's are very real, and the even bigger and more important issue that they are covering up at every possible turn is the fact that the United States Military discovered Time Travel! The rest of the secrecy agenda is too complicated to get into, and is not the purpose of MY BOOK on SPIRIT/SCIENCE, however..., it is a sad fact that if you are living on planet Earth as of the 1950's, you have been lied to, cheated and bamboozled much more than you could possibly know at the present moment! I would do no real service to the subject of polarization if I were to get into the “long answer” of the why and the how about THAT at the present moment, so I'll just leave this statement where it is, and perhaps pick it up later, or in another book.

There is a short answer about polarity however, and how it creates what appears to be reality, but for that, you must be willing to read on. Reading this book may not be easy for many people, but the truth can be found in here if you persevere! Now, getting back to the subject at hand, if you are an astute individual, and are willing to think in the abstract..., you can easily make the jump in your logical thinking to understand that all of the effects of polarity that are observable in the world and manifesting as differing: ideas, beliefs, postulations, conventions, rules, regulations, opinions, etc., etc., etc...., are in fact undeniable proof OF polarity. If that much is clear to you, then I think if we can agree polarity exists..., and if polarity exists..., then by process of deduction..., so does magnetism!

But then, to really understand polarity well, we also need to understand how subtle forms of polarity and thus magnetism affect us as we live our daily lives! We must come to understand “the how” and “the why”, because everything we think, say and do in turn is creating even MORE POLARIZATION! And, as I’ve already said, it is POLARITY that keeps the Universe appearing to be a separated part, cut off from the whole, cut off from GOD, or more simply put, cut off from the Father and his DIVINE WILL!

I know that is a mouthful as well, but I am certainly willing to back it up with reasons if you will give me just about the amount of time it takes to for you to read this book!

Waves and frequencies, waves and frequencies, waves and frequencies... that’s all that’s behind what’s out there and looking so blatantly solid..., so unforgivingly impenetrable. Yet..., magnetism is the hidden force which separates those similar waves into differing frequencies, thus allowing for what is basically the same stuff i.e. energy..., to “appear” different in it’s shape, size and density!

That being said, it is important to repeat that behind magnetism stands polarity and that without polarizations, the world of separation indeed falls apart!

I would like to ask you not to underestimate what I just said...indeed the whole thing would fall apart without polarizations, and reading this book will allow you to see WHY! Let me ask you this question as a way to clarify what I’m really talking about:

What is actually on a DVD? Are there really pictures or images located on the DVD which has your favorite movie on it?

When you put the plastic DVD of your favorite movie into your DVD player, and the movie images pop up on the television screen, do think the movie is there because the actual pictures and “images” of what you see on your television are actually located on the DVD itself? Rubbish!! What is on the DVD is nothing more than magnetized information compressed into a digital format. The information on a DVD has NOTHING to do with pictures or images except in the final result you are able to see on your television screen!

Now, here is the ten dollar question: Why then, can you see any pictures from the movie at all? Well, you can “see” the movie because the DVD “player” is able to “read” the digital information located within the magnetized portion of the disk and then interpret it and send those interpreted signals to your television which then reconstructs the digital information into a picture you can see visually! Therefore, without the DVD player, your DVD collection is pretty much worthless, and I don’t think anyone will disagree!

Now, think about everything out there in the world that you seem to be able to “see” with your eyes. As touched upon briefly before..., are there really buildings and cars and people out there, or for that matter..., is there even a WORLD, or a UNIVERSE out there existing in what we call time and space?

Or perhaps..., just perhaps, (and you’re really going to have to put your thinking caps on if you want to get this) what’s REALLY out there is polarized and magnetized digital information vibrating in space, which your physical eyes and brain, (just like a DVD player) interprets and then sends signals to your mind which can project and reconstruct what it is you appear to be seeing into a visual format!

That’s a pretty far out concept isn’t it? But in truth, it is much closer to what’s really happening than what you’ve been led to believe. So let’s investigate magnetism just a little bit more to see what it really does. Magnetism is to energy as the “change in temperature” is to water, if energy is going to solidify into things with apparent physical differences.

That bears repeating because it’s important. Magnetism is to energy..., meaning it is the “force” or catalyst which causes energy to reform and solidify, just as the change in temperature causes water to reform and solidify!

Now, before I go any further, it is extremely important for you to be reminded that behind energy, is a more subtle substance called MIND. What appears to us as energy, as I’ve said before is nothing more or less than the infinite MIND OF GOD, being redefined or retuned, if you will, using even subtler forms of polarity and magnetism! So, let’s repeat the above statement more correctly now. Magnetism or polarity is to the infinite MIND OF GOD, as the “change in temperature” is to water! It (magnetism) is certainly not the only thing happening, but one of several things happening that allows for this change to occur with what basically are MIND waves. Well, what else is there? Try intention! Intention manifesting into the physical world could be called a directed source frequency, or better yet a “carrier wave” upon which other waves can be sustained, changed, transmuted, and even dissolved!

Again..., another mouthful, and yet I would ask you not to let the importance of this statement be lost, because if you do, you are throwing away incredible power! First, let’s consider the greatest intention in existence today: LOVE! Love is an incomprehensible force which science has hardly ever taken the time to study properly, (much to their embarrassment and extreme loss in invention).

I know this might seem difficult for many of you to believe since most people see LOVE as a weakness! Strength, power, force, and domination are seen as much more profitable and formidable when it comes to getting things done. Yet, my opinion remains unchanged. My belief is that without LOVE, those “other forces” within the physical realm do not function correctly, leading to a breakdown of their frequencies until they can no longer sustain themselves in the world of form that we live in. This, my friends, is also a very big statement!

The proof of the above statement is actually found in a question. In this illusionary world of solid frequencies, it would seem that everything has an ultimate lifespan and will eventually die, dissolve, break or fall apart. Yet, there is a simple question that remains unanswered which solves the problem: Does anything, or everything for that matter, really have to end and why? If all of this stuff really were just vibrating energy made solid ..., why would it have to “quit” or “end” at any particular time? What COULD make it quit or end so that it was no longer what it was? Don’t you think that this is, at the very least, a logical question that science should have attempted to answer? Perhaps they (scientists) are afraid of the answer! Or, maybe they were just too dang busy figuring out how to blow stuff up, to be bothered with figuring out how to make things last longer! Then again..., where’s the profit in making things last longer? The automakers learned a long time ago that the term “built in obsolescence” made them way more money than actually building things that would stay together!

What if I said there was such a frequency or a vibration that indeed lent itself to a longer lasting physical manifestation? And..., if there were such a frequency out there, why has no current day scientist ever asked this extremely simple question? This says ALOT about how current day scientists think, what their goals are, and why they have been so unable to do the things that they are seeking to do, or make the discoveries that would take our planet into a time of great technological breakthroughs as it was in some of the happier times in Atlantis.

Again, just to point this out very clearly, it certainly did NOT take scientists a long time to figure out how to “destroy” stuff..., or how to “get rid of stuff” by way of bombs and splitting the atom. THAT, they figured out how to do. I can only pity them.

Let me, a carpenter by trade, who has no scientific education...(other than a past life in a very advanced civilization), make the suggestion that they, (who are paid so much to be scientists) are as of yet unwilling to raise. Is it possible, that certain frequencies could and would last longer IF the intention or the “carrier wave” of the frequency was imbued first with LOVE?

IT HAS BEEN SAID IN SOME OF EARTH'S HOLIEST SCRIPTURES, THAT LOVE IS ALL, AND ALL IS ONE

Even though the impact of this statement may be lost on some of you, it certainly would not be lost on anyone who remembers Atlantis, or who followed the LAW OF ONE.

I would like to ask you once more to visualize an ocean in your “mind”. Only this particular ocean is not made of water, but is instead made up of vibrating “mental energy.”

There is a huge ocean of mind energy, with trillions of tiny drops of vibrating mind energies suspended above it. Now pretend that YOU are a magician who has the magic wand called the “Power of Love”, and the “Power of Will and Intention”! Proceed then, (in your own mind), to change the frequency of the smaller drops with your will and intent making them into anything your heart desires! Change or rearrange the speed of those smaller droplets floating above the ocean of energy into a car..., an apple, a boat, or a plane..., while leaving the greater portion of the energy ocean below it unchanged.

This exercise actually demonstrates what is actually happening within the illusionary world that we all live in. Let me explain. Above the ocean..., after you get done with it, you have what appears to be energy that is defined by your thoughts, and below you have energy that is not. The energy drops above ocean you have manipulated and sculpted into varying shapes and sizes while the ocean below it remains constant and unchanged. Just like a child that is having fun with some moldable type clay, YOU can actually change and rearrange the floating energy over and over again making new and exciting toys and things to look at with nothing more than the power of your own mind. TRY IT! Decide what you want to see and then visualize it. When you can see in your mind whatever it is that you have willed..., the exercise is finished.

Now..., why for the purposes of our exercise would your will and intent be so important in reforming and changing the structure and the composition of the floating energy?

For starters..., both “will and intent” hinge on one major thing; choice is the critical factor here. What is it that YOU chose to do? Remember that I suggested that everything within the physical realm or the level of visual manifestation is in fact a product of choice. To choose..., is to will it so. To intend..., is to choose. Can you catch the circular logic here?

So now..., let’s think about how solid things actually got here..., other than Earth, water and air..., you know what I mean, that stuff that was already supposedly here. Let’s spend a little time wondering how everything else came to be. Out in the world there are buildings, cars, boats, planes, trains..., lots and lots of stuff to see! How did it get there? I mean..., Harry Potter’s wand is not nearly powerful enough to make all that... is it? Anything that you can “see” had to be “thought of” and pushed into existence through the intention and the will to have it made physically.

It’s as simple as that! Without will, or intent..., nothing happens! I’ve seen that there is a bumper sticker that says...., SHIT HAPPENS...., but really, without will or intention...., even that doesn't happen.

Therefore, the only logical conclusion that anyone can come to is that everything in the visible and yet quite "illusionary" world we live in is made up of thoughts that were eventually made solid! Well...., thoughts that have been "willed" to be solid so to speak...., thoughts which were made solid by someone's intent. Now, if you care to go even a step more subtle...., you could say that everything out there is made of: The REFORMED MIND OF GOD which is molded and sculpted into waves and energies which in turn are then "stepped" down into a visual matter so that they can be physically seen or interpreted by your eyes. (YEAH....say that three times fast.)

Now before there are any protests about this, think logically...., I mean really...., if we can do it...., i.e. make stuff out of Earth's raw materials using thought, will, and intent...., then why can't the very energy we use to make our stuff, be made out of an even more subtle material called MIND?

Ultimately vision, which only shows you some of the stuff out there, is flawed, and your eyes will always fool you since they are made to do nothing more than interpret and reconstruct the waves within a tiny part of the whole. So in summation, it is more than just plausible that polarities, and more precisely magnetism, which includes: electricity, polarity, and "harmonics" are involved in this complicated process of creation, along with projections of thought, desire, and intent!

SO NOW...., LET THERE BE LIGHT!

I've heard that phrase many times, and read it in many different Holy Scriptures, but what does it mean? Many of us even use these words in different ways. We can use them when we are trying to be impressive philosophically...., or we can also use them when we are ribbing a friend of ours who just remembered something way too obvious to have been forgotten...but what does it really mean?

In the last section of this chapter, I'm going to suggest to you that LIGHT is the way in which LOVE communicates or appears to us in the physical dimension. Or..., put another way, the avenue by which GODS MIND projects waves and frequencies into all dimensions simultaneously and can be seen visually in all dimensions at the same time. Why would I say such a thing as this having been taught that light seems to come from the sun?

Think of it this way..., GOD manifests first and always as love. Love in turn allows for the creation of light (non physical, physical, AND inter-dimensional), and all the layers in between. Light in turn allows for the creation of sound and vibration, which in turn supports and governs all magnetics by way of harmonic overtones and harmonic subtonal frequencies. Magnetics then give rise to polarity..., and polarity, gives rise to the illusion of visual form.

I think that by now you are now starting to get a clearer picture of where I am going with this book. As a small review, in the beginning, I laid out for you a visual representation of how we are all part of the same large ocean of MIND which is God's Body. Now I will continue to explore in detail what that means theoretically and scientifically, and on a much more personal level, how it affects each of us and every part of our lives on Earth and "in the so called illusion." If you are happy to be along for that journey, I will honor you. If you feel there is too much here, or that this sounds like it is going to be way too difficult for you to grasp at this time, again I will honor you as well. But, I promise you, if you can just keep going, very shortly you will be amazed at the understandings and the revelations you will find waiting for you in the pages ahead. Remember, many of us who lived in Atlantis were highly educated and had knowledge of things far beyond the current level of our scientific understanding. If you want to know what we knew then, you will have to continue!

MOTION

CHAPTER TWO

So now that I've wet your whistle so to speak..., you are all saying..., "Yea, that's nice, but where's your PROOF!" The truth of the matter is simply this: YOU ARE THE PROOF! It's just that you don't know it, and can't remember what it was like before the fall into the 3rd density frequency. There was a time when we ALL used our minds to do everything, realizing of course that "thought" was CREATIVE! Now..., after thousands of years in 3rd density, people let their minds run amok, thinking all kinds of dangerous thoughts without discipline or without self monitoring. Yet..., the first thing that needs to be done to correct this is to educate everyone about how powerful the human mind really is as a tool of creation. And step one, is going to be taking your "so called" science and throwing it out the window. Not that the smartest scientists in the world have not already done that... (trust me, they are way ahead of you)..., it's just that they simply "forgot" to tell you the people, i.e. their human brothers and sisters, what they had learned. This is nice way for me to say that they are basically lying to you! Now, for the scientists who will be horrified and indignant over this and say..."I never lied..., I just didn't tell all I knew..." Excuse me..., that is lying! It's called: A LIE OF OMISSION! I am sorry that I can not have much sympathy or compassion for men and women who entered into the world of science, only to keep ALL of their discoveries to themselves. Whether for money, or due to being ordered by superiors, or for religious reasons, they decided not to speak..., they are no better than the men of the Inquisition who tortured those who wished to bring about a new way of thinking on the planet. My next book is going to be about scientists, and is going to have this title: SO YOU SOLD YOUR SOUL FOR A PAYCHEK? At any rate..., I will do what they refuse to do, and in order to do that, I'm going to have to start at square one and work from the bottom up. It's just like building a house where one first has to pour a concrete foundation. The foundation for us is MOTION! We can not enter into any kind of discussion about motion, without talking about energy waves, because that is how all of us have been taught to think of things in this day and age, however, if you can just remember from this point on that when I use the word energy, what I am really referring to is: A very subtle part of GODS MIND which has been temporarily redefined in such a way that makes it appear as if its energy!

This is where it may seem to get real technical, but if you can just “hang in there” and be open to new ideas and different ways of looking at things, then you will find real meaning in this second chapter. The reason that it might seem to get technical here in Chapter Two, is that we are going to start using concepts and ideas normally found within physics and chemistry discussions more often. These ideas may need a slightly greater effort for some of you to grasp hold of; however, I have kept the discussion as simple and informal as possible so that most of you can follow the flow of the material without much difficulty as we go along. I will NOT be using MATH or PHYSICS concepts in deep detail because that would confuse most of you and go right over your heads. Secondly..., I am not interested in trying to convince the scientific community at large of this, since most of the scientists “in the loop” already KNOW it. (At least the basics!)

For the rest of you..., what I plan to do in this second chapter, is to take what you think of as reality, and to put it under a microscope, so to speak, so that we can all see what's really there and why. Kindly remember this as well; what we are attempting to do is build a brand new “house” called: The Way Life Actually Works, so that we can move out of the dumpy and outdated “old house” called: The Way We Thought Life Worked. That being said, before the new house can be built, there must be a solid foundation of understanding underneath it. The technical information you are going to find in this chapter will provide you with the solid foundation so that the ideas that come later will eventually make sense!

So, from this point on, I am going to make a logical case for everything that comes after it. Remember as well that we will be using BOTH “logic” and “abstract thinking” to figure this out, not math or visual proofs, since what we are trying to do is to “go beyond” what we can see outside of us. This, of course, is the gigantic mouse trap that our scientific community currently finds itself in! Therefore our eyes, which are set up to interpret waves and frequencies within the illusion, are no longer a valid source for gleaning information any longer. Please understand that what we are attempting to do here, is to go beyond that illusion, and to look at it from the outside and back in again, which is going to be quite a task, and yet completely doable if you are willing to give up your eyes and just use your abstract and logical mind instead! So in a nutshell, what we as human beings can see visually is the boundary so to speak, and in order to understand what’s on the other side of that boundary, one must by definition go beyond sight. This is where the tool of abstract thinking comes into play, and will be very, very helpful if you are willing to use it.

Getting back to the topic of this chapter..., motion is something that can be felt physically, and even though not all forms of motion can be seen visually, you can always understand and interpret motion’s presence if you know what you are looking for. If you are careful, you can feel its affect on you even if it’s invisible, and that is why I feel it’s necessary to start with this. Different forms of motion can have a wide range of measurable affects upon your physical body. So, in the next few pages, I would like to connect measurable physical motions to human feelings in a brand new way. At this point as well, I would like to suggest that no one really understands how deep the connection really goes between the motion of invisible waves and feelings. We all have a basic understanding of certain affects that motion will have upon our own bodies. Yet, it could also be said that the true reality, true “depth” and true “nature” of motion is not understood by most of us and is only basically understood by our scientists! This is due to the idea once again that only motion which can be seen is important, while motion (waves and frequencies) which can not be seen are innocuous, unimportant, and are without any real affects!

In order to be able to understand this idea more completely, I would like you to briefly consider a young mother who is rocking her little baby to sleep in a rocking chair. While it is observably apparent that the motion of the rocker going back and forth creates within the little child a feeling of security, which then causes it to fall asleep. Why this occurs and works is not necessarily clear to us.

If you wished to do your own “rocking” experiment (without jumping on your friend’s lap that is) all you would have to do is to go down to the ocean on a calm day, and go for a swim. If you did this with the idea that you were interested in studying the effects of motion on your physical body, once you were in the water you would begin to understand a few things. Firstly you would notice that as the calm water rises and falls, the repetitive up and down motion of the water will cause within your body some unexpected feelings. These feelings might be similar to what a baby feels when he is being rocked back and forth in his mother’s arms. Or, if the ocean were not calm, and the waves were rough, the feelings you might get at this point might be more like those of a person who happens to be riding on a roller coaster!

A few good questions to ask yourself if you experienced either of these things might be: What is going on inside of your body that causes you to feel either safe or unsafe? And: Is it only the apparent danger which is causing you to feel so differently, or could the difference in relative motion be important as well? Before we answer these questions, let’s look quickly at one more thing. Please put your thinking cap on for a minute and let’s get “abstract” just for the moment. Instead of thinking about motion as something that can be seen, think instead of the motion you feel as a wave of invisible energy. Pretend that this wave of invisible energy is going right through your body, like air flows through a screen door. If such an energy wave were present, how do you think your body would feel if it were struck by this wave of stuff that you could not actually see with your eyes? Do you suspect that at the very least your body might tingle even if there were no visible effect on your emotions?

Electricity, which is a form of invisible energy, travels in a waveform called the sine wave. Its frequency can be graphed on the Cartesian scale (X, Y axis), and its effects certainly can be felt if you happen to grab hold of a live electrical wire! My purpose in saying this is to demonstrate to you that there are many types of invisible waves of energy which travel through things according to most scientists. So the point of this little abstract thinking exercise is to show you that regardless of whether or not you are a little baby being rocked to sleep by your mother, or you are swimming in the ocean..., what you are “feeling inside of your body” as physical feelings are in fact energy waves being caused and sent forth by what could only be classified as “repetitive motions”.

Please think carefully about what I just said, as it is highly important, and I don't want you to miss it! Again, what you feel inside of your body are the results of “invisible” waves moving through you as a result of “repetitive motions.” If you do nothing else..., memorize this because it forms a foundation for polarity upon which we will build later on!

If you have at least basically understood this statement, then here is a question we can now pose: How do all of these multitudes of invisible waveforms, where ever they may be and however they may be generated, affect YOUR physical body, YOUR feelings, and YOUR health, and your THINKING? So you see, just the question seems to indicate that what is invisible..., is definitely going to have an effect on you in some way. How serious an effect is it going to have is the real question!

So now, besides the ones we've already discussed, there are many other types of waves and frequencies' floating around out there that you can not see, but they also flow in and around what appears to be your physical body and therefore have to have some kind of an affect on you.

Why is it that these energy waves have such an immediate affect on your body, your emotions, your mind, and even your mental understandings? For this answer..., we have to move on.

Next, I would like you to consider that there are repetitive physical motions which human beings themselves can duplicate which will create energy waveforms similar to the sine wave! These duplicated or reproduced energy waves can and do have an affect upon your physical bodies and their electrical systems. This is done most specifically in the massage therapy field. If you need some help to understand how this works, first use this visualization as a foundation for understanding...

Think of it like this..., your car has a dead battery (no energy). Since you do not happen to have another battery, you instead have to push your car down a big hill while holding in the clutch with your foot (this is an “old” car in the example...one that has a clutch) then, as the car gains speed, you release the clutch and use the motion of the vehicle to create the needed energy to start the engine. In this simple example, an external motion or movement was used to create an internal energy wave that affected something else in turn and started the car!

This example is common enough to make sense, and we've all heard of it being done. Now, in very much the same way, a message therapist can take your arm, hold it in his or her hand, and by just moving your arm back and forth rhythmically over a period of time, he/she can create an energy wave which travels through your physical body and tunes it up due to the frequency of the wave. This "energy" wave has an affect upon your whole bodies' energy system, and anyone who has had it done can attest to its effectiveness! This is simply a technique that massage therapists are taught to use. They use the "energies" that motions generate, to help balance, realign, relax, and recalibrate your bodies own internal energy system.

Of course naturally, we've only discussed the physical component of the wave, and if one goes deeper, one would naturally have to address the "mind" or the intention of the therapist as well. So you see, a "created" wave of energy is not just an invisible thing..., but it is also an INTELLIGENT invisible thing!

(Uh-ho..., we've just found the rabbit hole ALICE..., now do you want to go down into it? OR..., as MORPHEUS said to NEO..., do you want to take the blue pill or the red pill?)

Let's hope you all took the pill to wake up..., so to continue then, if I were to formulate a theory around this idea, it would simply be this: External motions will have a definite affect upon your "energy system" (MIND & BODY), due to the fact that these motions create intelligent waves that other more subtle energies move around in.

This is going to be my principle number one, and everything I write in this book is going to come back to this basic premise, which I will now call: Principle Number One!

Uh, that's supposed to be very funny by the way...and you can laugh anytime in the near future. (I know..., don't quit my day job right?)

Next, allow me to create a few examples of this idea before moving on. If you were to go and swing on a swing for a period of time, (just like you did when you were a kid), you would start to feel a change inside of your physical body first, and then eventually a change in your thoughts as well, due to the waveform of the energies being created by what are known as repetitive motions. The same could be said for those who enjoy dancing or bike riding, or running. Now, here is something very important to understand:

Every change in your energy system, (physical), which is a result of repetitive motions, WILL always lead to a change in your thoughts and your emotions. This idea is highly important in the world of waves and frequencies.

Waves and frequencies which are externally generated actually pass THROUGH your physical “unseen” energy system. So, as you swing on a swing, these “changes” in your emotions will be registered by your brain as: freedom, joy, or excitement.

Now there are negative repetitive motions as well. And they even though external to your physical energy system, and invisible in appearance, they are no less real in that they are still moving waves and frequencies! So then, other changes in your emotions caused by externally produced repetitive motions could feel something like fear, terror, hate or distrust, IF your physical body were being attacked by an abusive person, (which sends shock waves of energy into your physical system), or by someone only verbally taking his or her anger out on you..., which guess what..., STILL sends shock waves of energy into your physical system. In this way..., not “touching you” can still harm you if the waves or frequencies are intense enough and have very dark intentions attached to them.

The reason that all of these things affect you is that the “ENERGY” is passing right through you! But it is not just the energy that is passing through you here; the energy also carries with it an “INTENTION” or a PURPOSE! So, in this regard, all waves of invisible energy must at some level have a purpose or a plan to activate or to move. The real reason for this we will get into later, but for now let’s just bring up the question anyway: Can anything out there that moves, ever do so without a purpose? Even waves that are invisible? I would say no, definitely NOT!

So, if that indeed is the case..., then any wave of energy that moves at all was set into motion with an INTENTION attached to it! Now all of a sudden, MIND is truly becoming a very real, and very powerful aspect of what's going on out there not only in the "visual" wavelengths that you can see, but also the "non-visual" as well.

So, whether you are having fun on the swing as a child or being cradled as a baby in your Mother's arms...., what is the intention of the waves that you are experiencing? What is the choice involved? You see...., YOU as a complete energy system, are always going to be affected by other energies and waves, which all started as a result of some choice or some intention of WILL. And these energies and waves ALL utilize some form of MOTION. If there is no motion...., there is NO WAVE!

Let's put this right into the realm of actual science and investigate what energy waveforms traveling through your body might do. If you were to add an energy wave to your body, by way of motion, it would have to change the current level of your emotion. This could also be written scientifically thusly:

ENERGY / MOTION x Personal Interpretation = EMOTION

Or

MIND/DISTURBANCE x Programming=REACTION

What is never clear is this: The individual's interpretation! The personal interpretation contains a magnetic factor which also in part determines the intensity of ones feelings. All of this depends up the level of a person's personal polarity which could also be called programming!

The reason it appears that no two people are alike is because no two minds are polarized in quite the same way, and because of that, no two individuals will experience an energy wave in exactly the same manner. The reason that energy is divided by motion in the mathematical sentence above is that energy is always there as a potential (MIND is EVERYWHERE) and so is the potential for your emotion there as well. Yet, energy or "mind" can only appear to travel forth and have an affect when given either sustained or repetitive motions, (or will and intention) to carry it forth.

In order to demonstrate this idea a little more clearly, and to clarify it slightly so that it does not seem too difficult or the meaning does not get lost:

Consider that a kite always has the potential to fly. Yet, it can only do so if there is a wind that will support it while carrying it to its new destination. Therefore, it becomes obvious in this example that the kite does nothing without the wind! Likewise your emotions literally “do nothing” without motion or movement. Add to this idea, that without the intensity factor, “emotions” may or may not go very far...just as kite with only a small wind would not go far!

Because your mind’s thoughts have the ability to move around, it stands to reason then that, “will and intention” have become the “source code” for that motion and that movement. (What else could there be?)

This is a very big statement, and I’m going to call your attention to it again. Your mind’s thoughts have the “ability” to “move” around!

Although many of you with logical minds can see the truth of this statement, it should not be under-estimated. In addition, I would also like you to be aware that the force of a mental wave, and its frequency, will also play a part in determining the intensity of the emotion that you are going to ultimately feel if and when it passes through your energy system.

If you understand this clearly, then we can move on to the next idea. Now, the slower and more rhythmic the frequency of any motion, the higher the quality and more subtle will be the type of energy being sent through your body. Thus, your emotional reaction to the wave most likely would be: calming, sleepy, and happy or content.

This is why a baby can fall asleep while her mother is rocking her. It has to do not only with the energy waves themselves, but also the “quality” of those energy waves.

It is important to remember here that the wave I've just described was produced by actual physical motion...i.e. the rocking of a chair. But also remember there was an intention behind it, and the rocker was only a tool used by "a mind with an intention".

I say this now so that you do NOT lose sight of the fact that it is the mind of the mother that is really intending the wave to go forth!

Now, instead of that, what if I was to somehow "add" a very high and distorted frequency of motion, (let's say a roller coaster ride) to that poor little baby's energy system. This wave would be lower "quality" energy wave, and her emotional reaction to it would most likely not be very good. It would of course depend upon what she was used to, but how many babies have been "programmed" to accept the ups and downs of a roller coaster? The reaction could be anything from extreme sadness and depression, to crying, to ecstatic laughter and violent outbursts.

At this point remember that we are still talking about outer motions, or outer waveforms and their affect upon your energy system and your emotions. What I mean by that is that there is a definite "visible" stimulus in the physical realm that you can see, so therefore I am calling these types of energies "outer" waves for lack of a better way of describing them.

Moving on..., in the physical world, you can "train your mind" to get used to certain waveforms that are very erratic and distorted, therefore over ruling to some extent, your feelings, and to another extent...your emotional reaction to them. These waveforms will, however, in spite of your best interference..., still have an affect upon your body and your mental state eventually regardless of your trained response. The reason for this is simply that energy waveforms which are "disharmonic" will and have to accumulate and amplify. This has to do with wavelength harmony dynamics, which is something we studied a lot in Atlantis!

To better understand this simple example, let's switch from the motion of a vehicle, swing, or chair to the motion of a sound wave. Think of those people who grew up sleeping next to a busy freeway all their lives for example, and then after many years they end up moving to a very quite farming community. They might find that they can not fall asleep at night during the first several weeks of living on the farm without all of the “noise” that they are used to. Well, what is that noise? It is sound waves that are a constant stimulant to their systems, and their bodies have to literally detoxify or rebalance in the absence of these waves for a short period of time. So now, in this example, “sound” is the waveform that we are discussing, and sound is an energy wave which travels by way of MOTION. Yet..., these “sound” waves were having a definite physical effect upon the person in question..., an affect which was undeniable and one which actually caused a problem. Oh..., and I might add here for you scientists..., these were “invisible”, “unseen”, “untouched” “non-tangible” things that caused an EFFECT! OOPS!

(I’m poking fun here at the high paid individuals we “call” scientists..., because they lie so much to the population at large..., that it can only boggle the mind. In order to keep getting their fat “paychecks” they have allowed industry to literally pollute and corrupt the air, water and Earth with frequencies which are so incredibly damaging it can not be imagined..., and trust me..., many of them know this!)

To continue with this example of sound waves, much of the rap music out there today, although not all (in my opinion), is comprised of “unhealthy” repetitive sounds which will eventually have a serious detrimental and cumulative affect upon a person’s health. It is detrimental because we don’t understand what these kinds of waves are doing to the human physical nervous system, much less the effect it has on an emotional, and mental level. EXTREME types of rock and roll, along with dozens of other forms of musically produced waves..., you would do well to be better aware of how they are affecting you energetically. There is a good reason for saying this: Any sound wave that uses loud and erratic, pulses or beats in conjunction with DISHARMONIC tonal qualities must ultimately have a detrimental affect upon your body and its mental health due to the distortion of harmonics, and the subsequently formed low quality waves being produced, amplified and moving through your energy system!

Of course to be fair to the music industry..., drinking heavily, smoking cigarettes, or taking drugs are also ways that one can intoxicate and harm the physical body. But in truth what ALL of these things represent..., (even the so-called physical things like tobacco, alcohol, and drugs), is nothing more than disharmonic and distorted waveforms appearing to manifest in a physical form. Now, I'm simply telling you that the affects of the previously mentioned types of "musically produced" waves will NOT be any less noticeable to a person's health over the very long haul, and in the next few pages, I'll show you why. This is something that we learned in the early Atlantis, which sadly in the "later" Atlantis was ignored by many of the powerful "ELITE" and ended up being the downfall and final destructive power which took out huge chunks of the planet's civilization!

Waves and frequencies are really all that exist out there in the "illusion" that we call the physical world, (which I've already explained in the analogy of the DVD) and playing around with them, is something that is akin to the genetic manipulation of our species. It is truly that breath taking of a problem and something that many scientists are woefully unaware of, and if they do happen to be aware of this, they are being pitifully silent at a time when the world needs them to be speaking up more than ever! Giving them the benefit of the doubt..., they probably do not take these things into account because again..., these waves can't be seen..., that's right..., its not "science" to them if it can't be seen! This is, unfortunately, again our present day's scientist's biggest weakness...; they do not take into account what they can not see with their eyes...what a bunch of dopes!

Some waves and frequencies are more solid, some are less solid. Some enter into your system as food and drink; others pass through your body just as the wind passes through a screen door. The question I would like to pose to you now is this: Is our current culture "smart enough" at this stage of our human/spiritual development to KNOW what we are doing with waves and frequencies? And do we even understand what effect they are having upon us as a species or the planet? Good questions to think about..., but let's not take too long or WE and the planet may not survive without intervention!

Let's get back to our discussion on emotion. Here is where the fun begins. Emotion, on a moment to moment basis is primarily a matter of how much energy that your energy system (MIND, BODY, SPIRIT) has flowing around inside of it at any given moment and the quality of it. (Quality here meaning the subtlety and the beauty of the waveform.) The quality of the energy that your body has flowing around inside of it at any given moment has EVERYTHING to do with the particular waveforms of whatever energies in motion are affecting it at the time you first notice these emotional states arise.

You may not realize it..., but you are really nothing more than an "energy collector", "energy transducer" or "energy translator" and that everything that goes in or through you..., food, water, air, sound, waves, frequencies..., will all add to the mix, and while CHANGING YOU, come out changed itself..., and why not..., even food is simply "frequency" made solid. Are you starting to see the irony here..., you are an ENERGY..., swimming around in a virtual ocean of energies..., and it's ALL..., and I do mean ALL affecting you! It's affecting you in ways that you can't even imagine as of yet!

And, up until now we have only discussed the externally produced waves, but it is important that I remind you that there is such a thing as an internally created waveform. Very soon this will come into play as well.

As mentioned earlier, it is true that your own MIND can override your system's emotional response to outer waveforms, but these are learned or trained mental responses to the waveforms and have nothing to do with the quality of the waveform that you are experiencing. These responses are programmed! And if your own brain/mind is over riding an "externally produced wave", then it is due to the balancing effect of a now personally caused and uniquely created "INTERNAL WAVE" that this is able to occur.

This statement is just huge..., and it lays the foundation for all forms of MIND CONTROL! As we have seen and discussed, you personally can create a change in the level of your own emotions by swinging on a swing, or dancing a dance, or even just wiggling your foot. The external energy waves you experience as a result of these "motions" will have an affect on you. Actions such as these could most likely cause joy, or happiness, or maybe just laughter at your own silliness.

Chemicals or hormones can also be released throughout your body as a result of an event, or simply by hearing some news of a situation which has occurred that you either did or did not expect. You could receive what you consider to be happy news, which then releases certain chemicals from your brain to other parts of your body. You could also receive what you consider to be sad news, and this will also release certain chemicals from your brain to other parts of your body. These would then be considered “part” of how the many examples of what I am going to call: Internal Waveforms are produced. But chemicals...are not the “end all and be all” of internal waves! Again..., the MIND is much more powerful when it comes to internally produced frequencies!

What I am now going to suggest to you may be something completely different from your current understanding. Firstly, I believe it is safe to say that what is good news to one person may not necessarily be considered good news to another. The same could be said with “bad” news. Eventually it all boils down to personal interpretation once again, and leads us right back to the discussion we had about POLARITY. What your mind “interprets” as GOOD or BAD will ultimately determine which chemicals are released and how you react to, or “feel” about, the news in question. To the extent that the good or bad news is on the polar opposite of what you expected, that will be the determining factor on the scale of your reaction.

What also plays heavily into this equation of Polarity or reaction is that all of the ideas, feelings, and beliefs held by each particular individual human being have a gamut of differing “magnetic properties” that make them what they are.

Here is the beginning of why polarization is such a pivotal issue in creating the Universe as we see it! It is the result of these magnetic waves interacting with each other that your reaction is even possible in the first place!

This is the complex side of internal waveforms and their varying affects upon the human being that we need to discuss. So, from now on...the above types of reactions, which are due to “magnetic and polarization” influences, I will call internal motions, as opposed to the external motions previously discussed. The reason for saying these are “internal motions” is that in truth they have been created by YOU. You have “polarized” your thoughts, images, desires, and beliefs which is logically a MAGNETIC process!

Polarization of thoughts, ideas, and beliefs with magnetic energies..., whether done consciously or unconsciously, or done as a result of what you choose to learn, or what has simply been “forced” upon you “as” learning, could never have occurred without your help. Thus, when you are now faced with the result of having these “internal energy waves” flowing throughout your body system as a result of the “good” or the “bad” news, it is partly YOU who are responsible for how you are feeling at the moment. And that is really saying something! (There is a lot more to this of course..., so you will have to be patient.)

Now let’s get cosmic, and consider this...the universe appears to be in constant motion, and this is how “energy” seems to have an affect upon us. This is how waves and frequencies polarize and magnetize what appear to be separated people and individuals. This is the way it is set up “visually”! However when you understand all of this completely, you will see that nothing really moves at all. Everything that appears to be happening is actually happening inside the MIND OF GOD.

The planets, solar systems and the galaxies as I’ve said, appear to be in constant motion. Earth itself seems to be spinning in motion, and we as human beings seem to be always in motion. Even while we are sleeping, our bodies seem to be functioning by way of motion. Thus it is safe to say that motion never seems to stop. What we understand as motion is very powerful, and beyond our ability to completely understand it or to comprehend it easily on a visual level without a full and complete knowledge of the waves, frequencies, magnetism and polarity which are the “unseen” elements that choreograph everything seen. Just as a result of the last few pages, you might now be of the opinion that indeed “invisible energy waves” may in fact lead us to new and different feelings and emotions.

MOTION, (LARGE OR SMALL), EXTERNAL OR INTERNAL, CAUSES WAVES WHICH START A CHAIN REACTION MOVING OTHER ENERGIES FORTH ON

THE “INVISIBLE” LEVEL AS WELL AS THE VISIBLE!

I would like to suggest that all waveforms (no matter how large or how small they are) and in keeping with the newest ideas of this book (no matter if they are visible or invisible to your eyes) and no matter if internal or externally created, in my opinion have the potential to change our feelings and our emotions.

Please think about this statement, because it is vitally important, and as I said earlier, all of this information is important to the rest of the book. Before this point, you might have thought that the greatest scientific revelations which would shake our world's scientists to the core were quite large! The truth is that I am going to be moving into even more subtle realms. The direction of the greatest power that exists in our UNIVERSE is not in an outward direction, but it is completely inward! It is not with the visible that all of the greatest discoveries are yet to be made, but with the INVISIBLE! (Can you now see why Science is missing the boat? They only trust what can be seen, touched and counted, or as in the case of Corporate Science..., bought and OWNED!)

I need you to trust and to take a little scientific “leap of faith” in order to grasp this very next idea. What if our emotions which are not physically induced, (like those on a swing) were in part due to our programmed response to “other invisible energies” which we come into contact with everyday? What if these energies are just “out there” and are already “moving around”? What if they were already in motion and we simply “bumped” into them, as we passed by where they were? What if when we bumped into them, we felt or sensed them and then attached meaning to them? What if that “meaning” could be either “positive” or “negative” and depended largely upon the passing individual's beliefs, thoughts, fears, hopes and dreams?

My friend, HERE begins polarization, and HERE begins the dream that you are seeing outside yourself! It is reality, but only to the beholder..., only to the one doing the observing.

I can sense some of you thinking, what the heck is he talking about? Well, words carry “invisible energy” for one thing, did you know that? Whether you are reading the paper, reading a book, participating in a conversation, or listening to talk radio...every word that enters into your physical system has the potential to affect you physically, mentally, and emotionally!

Words hold energy! They are frequencies, and they are vibrations. Can you see how subtle all of this is yet? If not, then you really need to start thinking about it. It's ALL out there in the wind so to speak! These "words" that are already "out there" are carrying with them tremendous energy as thoughts and ideas as they move around us in our day to day lives. And, while you go about your business and get on with your day, you are literally "bumping" into them where ever you go! While sensing them, or hearing them, you are now attaching meaning to them, and "polarizing" them. Thus, they are now magnetically charged with an either positive or negative charge that YOU put there. How might this POLAR or magnetic charge affect you physically, emotionally, or spiritually? These are questions which we must seek to answer next in order to move forward.

Let's get back to basic science. I have suggested that motion creates waveforms which energies travel forth in. We also know that adding energy to your system raises the level of its emotions. We established this with earlier examples. But what effect (if any) the particular waves will have which are carried within "words" and the resulting emotions that they stimulate within your body or how they affect your bodies health has a lot to do with your own minds interpretation of those waves.

I also believe that bombarding your system with adverse (negative) frequencies and waves in the FORM of "words" (Books, Newspapers, TV, Movies, Radio ) will eventually have a very detrimental cumulative effect upon your entire energy system no matter WHAT interpretation your own mind is giving these words in the long-term. Let me give you an example to help to make this perfectly clear.

Consider riding a roller coaster. Not everyone who experiences this "particular" physical motion (which causes a waveform) will interpret it the same way in their "mind". Some people will find joy; others will find fear or terror. In this way, emotion becomes its own unique experience. Yet, the waveform that brings about these emotions is the same for everyone. (The roller coaster ride itself)

Now for the sake of argument, let's say that you take a "ride" on this roller coaster for 24 hours a day and keep it up for 365 days in a row. Do you think that it is conceivable that no matter what “interpretation” your mind gives to the energy you have experienced, a cumulative affect upon your physical body, its emotions and its systems will occur that is less than desirable to you? If the answer you came up with is: “Yes..., probably so..., I could grant you that...” then..., can you now extrapolate or at least concede the possibility that being bombarded by certain (negative) words or “ideas”, “thoughts”, or “images” 24 hours a day for 365 days in a row by Newscasts, Books, TV, movies, etc., would have to have the same cumulative and most likely detrimental affect upon your physical body and its systems as well?

If you can make that jump, then you have just indicted every 24 hour news organization, and every scandalous magazine, and every harping radio talk show (and it's host) out there today for adding to the long term stress and the personal injury of each and every human being living on the Earth. (WHAT?????)

Okay, now that I've got your attention, let's carefully look at this piece by piece. My first question to you will be this: What do you think the effect would be on humanity if all words and sounds carried polarization? Now, I will grant you that spoken and printed words are somewhat physical and tangible...they can be both “heard and seen” right? So then, even if they do carry harmful or detrimental energies or polarizations, you could make the case that if any particular individual thinks that he or she is being caused a real problem by them, they can just turn off the television! Am I correct here all you scum sucking, (sorry, I mean nice) Lawyers? Or..., for those who may think the newspaper is harming them..., well.... those weenies can just quit reading the newspaper! Correct? Or, if they don't like it..., they can also quit listening to the radio... hmm? Problem solved.....right???

WRONG!

Well, let's investigate this idea even further...how deep does this rabbit hole really go? And do YOU want to know? Do you REALLY want to know how subtle this all is and where it all eventually leads to?

HOW MOTION AFFECTS US

CHAPTER THREE

Energy appears to be all around us. It is above us and below us, and it appears as if it is moving at incredible speeds almost all of the time. We've already stated that there is no such thing as energy really, and that what we consider energy is the MIND OF GOD. Therefore it needs to be completely understood (which is why I am repeating it), that the reason the "energies" that we as human beings are dealing with are totally invisible is actually quite simple: it's because they are mental! They can NOT be seen because they are: Re-defined mind waves!

However, like the affects of the wind which can be seen, the affects of MIND, having been retuned, refined, redirected and recalibrated, can also be seen, felt, and determined as well. So in review..., since mind "energy" is all around us, (as I said before in Chapter One), it is quite easy to grasp that we actually exist within fields of this stuff.

Just like the fish which swim in a lake or a pond are completely surrounded by the water they inhabit, human beings "swim" in mental energy fields that are literally all around them, which are part of the larger ocean of mental energy that is the redefined MIND OF GOD. Remember that water can easily turn into steam when its vibration is changed. Water can go from being a visible medium to an "invisible" medium with only as much effort as a simple change in the temperature. So then, is it that hard to believe that we as human beings could actually exist within an "invisible medium" (other than air) that could be similar to an ocean or a lake, but in a different “state” that we could simply not yet see?

Consider this: Could there be such an invisible medium called: The Infinite MIND OF GOD?

After all of our discussions, I think it is logical to say that we have basically laid out a good case for saying that not only are mental energies and motion closely related, but energy waves (whether visible or invisible, internal or external), must have some type of affect upon us as they pass by or pass through our own energy systems (which are more than just a body and a mind, because really what we are talking about is how you are an integral part of GODS MIND).

Let’s create an unusual example to demonstrate this:

Getting back to the water of a lake ...if I throw a rock into the middle of a lake or a pond, it will send ripples in every direction, and there is no water on the surface that will not somehow be affected. However, the farther and farther you get from the point of entry, the less intense the affect will be. Even so, let’s allow ourselves to get silly for a moment and suppose that there is one arrogant molecule of water, somewhere on the surface of the pond saying...“when that ripple comes, I am not going to be affected by it!” But then when the ripple comes, what happens to that arrogant molecule on the surface? It gets affected anyway because it is part of the surface and it can not separate itself out from the rest of the water!

Now just for fun, let’s take this new idea to a completely ridiculous level, and say that somewhere out there in the world and once upon a time; there was a bathtub full of water that could not get along with itself. The water in the front of the tub near the drain fought with the water in the back of the tub over border disputes at the middle. Then, when the argument could not be solved diplomatically, the water in the back of the tub threw a hand grenade into the water at the front of the tub, erroneously thinking that only the water at the front of the tub would be affected.

“How silly and ignorant...,” you might say as a casual outside observer... “Don’t you get it...?” “The water in the tub is all ONE!” “What happens to the water in the front of the tub must eventually affect the water in the back as well...” you might also say to both sides of this fictional tub of water. (You would say this of course having the benefit of a higher perspective and naturally being the Great and Wise Spiritual Masters you all are...)

If you are with me on this, then without even knowing it, you have just made my case for the rest of this chapter, AND for the rest of this book for that matter..., case closed..., aren't you all so wise! So then, let us ask this question: What if ALL human beings, beyond what can be seen on the physical level were actually part of the same ONE person, and that ONE person was all there was?

If this were true, is there anything that you could do to “another” person that you were not doing actually to a part of YOURSELF, which you simply were failing to see your connection to?

What if we as illusionary physical beings existing in nothing more than an infinite wave type environment are made up of nothing but invisible mental energies? What if that invisible mental energy which we are all made of is ALL ONE THING? What if we as individual human drops really DO live in one big ocean of mind energy that supports us all? Then the question becomes: Is there anything that I can EVER do to you that ultimately will not somehow affect me as well? Will not the ripple of my words, my thoughts, and my actions, thrown out towards the other side, come back to my part of the tub, or my part of the pond to affect me eventually? I know this sounds like conjecture to you right now, however, before judging this idea, let’s investigate it further to find out if it’s true, and if it is true, how far down can this rabbit hole we are now faithfully following actually go?

WHERE THE RUBBER MEETS THE ROAD

Emotion, like I stated earlier is in many ways like a ride at a theme park, in that it has a similar affect upon your physical body and its differing systems (electrical, chemical, and magnetic). The feelings that we feel due to our emotions can actually be quite thrilling...or bring us to tears. Now, I would like to suggest to you that we as human beings, in keeping with our desires to feel and experience energy waves (just as it is so much fun for a child to swing on a swing or an adult to ride the roller coaster due to the energy waves) in the world of duality..., there are those of us looking for an “energy wave fix” on a daily basis! Human beings (who are in reality beings of pure mind energy) can and do seek out new and exciting energy waves (emotions) to keep their lives from becoming too boring while "slumming" here in the 3rd dimension.

I suggest to you that we as humans living on Earth even go so far as to seek out these new and different emotions by creating certain behaviors or (external motions) which will change our feelings and thus change our perspective, so that we don't get too bored with an illusionary life. In other words, excitement is better than being bored. Just ask any kid who torments his little brother or sister... “Why did you do that Johnny?” “I don't know”... is what you will usually get for an answer. The correct answer is this however: “I was bored stupid mother... tormenting Sally excited me, even if just for a moment...that is, until you got here!”

There is a very important point to get out of this, and it is that even though we as energy beings can seek out new and exciting energies to keep us from getting bored with our lives, how many of us realize or really understand what affect our emotions, once created, once felt, once used and then tossed aside, will have upon our own physical bodies or more importantly..., the bodies of those around us?

Indeed, what affect will these emotions ultimately have upon the planet, and our environment? Lastly and most importantly..., what do our physical behaviors, including the things we SAY, (which are in fact motions by definition), have upon our own thinking and the way we ultimately lead our personal lives while here on Earth?

I know this is a big leap, and the connection may not as of yet be clear to you, so I am going to carefully take it step by step, so that the picture may become very clear in your mind as to what we are talking about. You see, it all boils down to this fact. GOD'S MIND can never be destroyed. GOD will always exist because HE IS ALL that exists! His mind can be used however, by being retuned, redefined, redirected, or changed in myriad ways to cause an infinite number of illusionary effects, which is ultimately what causes the physical universe to appear to exist.

The first idea that we need to consider is a very important one, and has already been stated before in a different way. What appears as energy is simply a movement of thought. Now..., let me suggest to you that thought (the way you think) within the confines of our illusionary world is just as dependant upon motion as emotion is. Naturally whether or not this is true or not true remains to be worked out, but let's just say for arguments sake that it is.

If this is the case, is it not entirely possible that your thoughts could change or create new emotions since both thoughts and emotions are dependant upon motion? And, then conversely, could your emotions in turn change or create new ways of thinking, since again they are both dependant upon motion? Actually this sounds kind of obvious..., but still, I'm trying to build a case within a model of step by step deductions which then come to logical conclusions. Those of you who have the gift of intuition can simply skip to "knowing" what is true without the burden of mental consideration.

Yet, our world is filled with scientific skeptics. So then, a good question for the skeptical person might be this one: How can thoughts travel anywhere, given our unique ability as human beings to "think", if motion were not somehow, or in some way involved in the process? If we can establish that motion is definitely involved in thinking, or rather must be involved in thinking somehow, can we then assume that magnetism must be involved in thinking as well? Here is 10 ton elephant standing in the room no one wants to look at. Motion NEEDS magnetism! So if motion is involved in thought..., then magnetism has to be as well.

There may be some of you who have already grasped this idea saying: “well...that’s obvious to me; certainly there is a definite connection between thought and emotions..., so there must be one between thought and magnetism as well.” But if you have grasped this connection, have you really understood the depth of it? Have we gone to the bottom of the rabbit hole yet? I don’t think so... in fact there is much, much more to learn, so let’s read on.

There is a very subtle relationship between thoughts and emotions (our ability to think and then to feel) which has NEVER been looked at adequately. And, if it had been looked at carefully, certain conclusions would have been drawn about this subtle relationship with regard to how we run our society and consequently, how we live within our cultures. These conclusions would have changed everything we do to one another, or even allow to be done to one another.

This is a really huge statement, and just reading it must give you some idea as to where we eventually will be going with our investigations into these ideas. I suggest that we as spiritual beings use “magnetic energies” stored up within our bodies to construct and direct all of our thoughts. This is something all spiritual beings have the ability to do. “Okay, so what...” you might say...but, have you grasped the potential impact of such a grand ability as the power to construct and direct a wave of motion called thought that is magnetically charged or heavily polarized?

Even animals in the animal kingdom demonstrate their dependence on the “magnetic” influences of the planet when using their internal guidance systems. Animals are also guided by an inner knowing. Their minds may not be as “creative” as ours since they understand only on the deeper level what they are all about. But their thoughts and their lives and bodies are still ruled by magnetism! Think about animals in general and their mating habits as just one example. I have observed that, a male must first find a female who is “in season” before she is ready to accept his advances, (in most cases). There isn’t the same level of “choice” involved here for animals that human beings clearly appear to have when it comes to mating. For animals, it could be said that it is more a matter of timing, or seasons when talking about physical unions, but this is still a magnetic process!

I do not believe that thoughts are nearly as involved in an animal's decision making process, as much as are their basic instincts which could simply be called pre-magnetic programming. These instincts are all guided by internal clocks which are more like a computers programming. These instincts are also cyclical and regular. Animals seem to follow seasons and timing in their lives much differently than humans do, since they are ruled by them, but how could they do it with out magnetics? Animals have less contravening influences in their processes (such as thoughts of "choice" which humans appear to have more of). Yet after all is said and done what really appears to separate human beings from the animal kingdom is our "mental" ability to change naturally occurring cycles. (Read: magnetically effect changes in our own energy fields.)

This is a level of "choice" in the creative process not given to most of what we consider to be the animal kingdom. A scientific way of discussing cycles in wave language is "cps" (cycles per second) or put more simply...frequency. Our species called human beings is a more complex life form because we as human beings have the internal ability to create our own magnetic waveforms (thoughts) which can then change internal cycles (feelings or instinct), which are also a type of magnetic waveform, within our own "mind-body-spirit matrix". So, to sum this all up in one sentence, in the human kingdom, thought changes emotion. In fact, it could be argued that thought can even start or create new emotions which will wipe out or overcome others..., which was one of the "speculative questions" that was raised earlier.

Please forgive me if some of you have concluded that I have made a very long case for stating the obvious. And, if it was obvious to you...you are definitely ahead of the pack. However, as we go down this road, it is the ramifications of this idea that are most important to my discussion, not the idea itself. Lastly, I would like to finish this chapter by saying that it is my firm belief that we as human beings actually have the ability to move energy, transmute energy, and conduct spiritual energies, which when magnetized by our thinking (the process which defines energy within the illusionary universe) will go out into the manifest arena to literally create what you are thinking before your very eyes! In fact, it is our thoughts that create the ENTIRE UNIVERSE we live in as well! The very next chapter will tell you more.

MENTAL PROJECTIONS AND THOUGHT ENERGY ANALYSIS

CHAPTER FOUR

Okay, let's put all of that aside just for the moment. The connection between thought and emotion is critical; however, I would like to get into something that has to be addressed before we can get deeply into magnetism (coming in the next chapter), if this is going to make any sense down the road. To that end, I would like to pose of few questions here designed to make you think outside of the box. They are these:

- 1) What if your brain was much more than just an information storage unit?
- 2) What if the electro-chemical systems within it were just a much smaller part of a great invisible network that ALL human minds were connected to?
- 3) What if this connection was constant and was operating at all times whether you are aware of it or not?
- 4) What if your mind/brain as part of this great invisible network was projecting information outwardly (meaning everything you ever thought) before actually storing it or remembering it inwardly?
- 5) What if this is what it was designed to do in the first place? (To PROJECT THOUGHTS..., not just to remember, calculate and store them!)

Did you know that one of the oldest tribes of Aborigines that live in the outback of Australia have a method of communication they use called telepathy? Telepathy means: mental communication using silent thought transmission. What if ALL human beings at one time communicated like this, and have “forgotten” that it was their first and primary way of communicating? At one time, Atlanteans communicated using some form of metal telepathy as well! I would like you to think seriously about this for a moment. Ask yourself this question. Could this type of thought transmission even be possible if there were not some type of invisible network that connected all of our minds (and thus brains) together all at once? If telepathy as discussed above IS possible, there would have to be something that connects all minds together, would there not?

In her book: MUTANT MESSAGE DOWN UNDER, Marlo Morgan details this very phenomenon. It was about her trip to Australia and how she lived in the outback for a short time with a small nomadic tribe of Aborigines who used telepathy as their main means of communication. So according to her own experience and the book she wrote, telepathy is not only possible, but currently in use even today. Quite a mind blower.

Alright then, let me make a suggestion to you that might be hard to believe, but needs to be understood. Your brain is NOT what you thought it was, or what your school told you it was, or what those “scientists” out there told you it was!

Let me put this in the form of a question. Could your mind/brain also be, (besides everything else it does for you) an electro-chemical projection device which causes images to be projected outwardly? And if your brain were able to project images outwardly in such a way that distance was meaningless, wouldn't there have to be some sort of very large network already in place that connected all minds together at once?

If so, let's carefully label this invisible network in a non-polaristic way and call it: The HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK or the HTN for short!

Now that we've given this network a name, let's speculate about it just a little further.

What if all human thoughts were projected outwardly toward this network first, and were only interpreted by the mind/brain after they were reflected BACK to you by the network itself? This is quite an idea, isn't it? In other words, you can't even HAVE A THOUGHT inside your mind unless this (living) network itself gets involved to tell you (or to show you) what it is that you are thinking.

I would like you to consider the area of your forehead that the oriental traditions call the "third eye". I am going to label this area of your forehead: the invisible fiber optic cable that connects you to everyone else on the planet, and with everyone else in the universe. It is my belief that you can not survive well with out this connection, even if you are wholly unaware that you have it. It is also my belief that our ability to think and understand anything depends upon the strength and clarity of this connection, since I believe all knowledge, learning and abilities, rest within the repository of the (living) HTN.

Now, there are some of you who may be in utter disbelief, however I have a surprise for you. This one idea CAN be proven right now, right where you are sitting! This "proof" is very simple to do, and anyone can do it. So, why not do it together right now!

Most people believe that the "thoughts" and images you have in your mind occur inside of your head. This is not true at all, it is completely false, and you can prove it to yourself right now. The "images" or ideas (daydreams) that you conjure in your "mind" if you watch closely are actually created slightly outside of, and just above your forehead in the same area that we just mentioned. This area is known as the "third eye" by eastern religions. Now, what I would like all of you to do is to sit comfortably, close your eyes, and picture an image of something that you are very familiar with in your mind. Make it something simple, like an apple or an orange. Put this image on your mental screen and keep it pictured firmly in your mind until it is very, very clear. Now, with your eyes still closed, and the image still pictured, lift up your hand and position it somewhere in front of your forehead (try to get it at least 12 inches or more away) and then very slowly, bring your hand downward towards the center of your forehead, until finally your hand touches your forehead. If you did this correctly, you will definitely have felt or sensed that your hand seemed to pass right through and the image you had pictured in your mind on it's way to touching your forehead!

Doing this exercise demonstrates to you that the image you thought was being formed

“in your mind” was actually an image projection that was formed and projected outside of your physical bodies forehead and slightly in front of it. This is not a trick; rather it is an important first step to building on your new understanding. The image you had visualized had actually been a PROJECTION! (Albeit an invisible one) and it was created by you, formed by you, and projected outwardly from you so that it could be “reflected” back to you in a way that you could interpret it! Based upon this simple experiment, I suggest to you that your mind/brain is much more than you realize, and it is entirely possible that it could be an integral part of the fully connected larger human mind that we (for lack of a better name) have just dubbed the: HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK!

Just think of the can of worms we’ve opened up here for our poor scientists who struggle daily with age old ideas that can’t possibly give them the understanding they so desperately want.

Yet this one idea rests upon something they are not willing to even look at. It rests upon that which can not be seen or touched or measured and is therefore discounted out of hand. (Not possible..., no way, no how since we can't measure it!)

Now, if all of this is true, what are the ramifications? Perhaps, any thought that you may be currently having is always being projected outwardly toward the world first, before you ever even see it!

Perhaps this idea of an invisible network which connects all human minds together seems less ludicrous and just a little more plausible, since images seem to happen outside of your body as proved in the simple experiment which you just did. Following up on this idea, there is more to it, and I am going to repeat something I already said. I suggested that human beings project images and thoughts outside the brain by using the invisible fiber optic cable, and only “see” them clearly when they are reflected back by the larger network we have named: the HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK.

Now here is the real kicker...everyone else who is connected to the network, (which is EVERYONE) can and will sense your thoughts on some level as well, which is why telepathy is even possible! Although most of us are unaware that we have this ability to tap into other peoples thoughts, we are doing so just by using our mental capacity each and every day of our lives. Here is just one example of how this works: Why is it that every eight year old can play a video game, and seems to understand how to use the controller with only a very small amount of practice and effort, while adults who should be much, much smarter, have to spend months of learning and effort to achieve the same result? Answer: Eight year olds can tap into the eight year old part of the HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK. It is my belief that there is a repository of knowledge and learning in the HTN that is put in there by each and every one of us, and every age group and culture has it's own level. Once something is learned by enough of a certain group within the mass mind, then it becomes very easy for the rest of us who can tap into that knowledge to access it freely. Thus, all eight year olds can learn quickly what other eight year olds have already learned, if they desire to learn it badly enough. However, a fifty year old can not tap into the eight year old part of the network since he is not “PROJECTING” his thoughts on the same frequency that an eight year old is. As a consequence, he has a difficult road ahead of him in learning to play video games. I admit that this example seems quite speculative, but I'm also sure that all of you have asked yourself these same types of questions, and if you're honest you've always wondered why your kids can do stuff on a video game that you can't! So, why is it that our children can learn to do this or that so easily, when adults are clearly smarter? What could possibly be the answer to that question, if not the one I just suggested or at least something on the level of what we are discussing?

Have you ever been standing next to a person and without even knowing why, just didn't like anything about the person? Or, have you ever felt very uncomfortable standing next to a stranger that you have never met, and wondered why you felt that way? I suggest that you were most likely “picking up” on the waves, frequencies and images (thoughts) being projected by that person. And, it was probably thoughts that you were not in agreement with, and since you are always hooked up to the same common network that that person is, you were interpreting his thoughts on a subconscious level, and then having a “sub-conscious argument”.

Now, let's pose this question: What are the ramifications of being hooked up to a network system where you can upload anything you choose to that system? The answer is simple! You can personally have an affect upon that entire system. This very idea, if true, gives one small person a whole lot of power does it not? Your thoughts (images) and projections will infiltrate the entire system and affect it to the extent that they are acceptable to everyone else hooked up to the system. Look at what Adolf Hitler was able to achieve, being just one man, by sharing his thoughts, visions and ideas.

Now here is where all of this starts to make sense and where the “rubber REALLY hits the road!”

Let’s consider the use of television commercials as an “image or thought uploading” tool used by the corporate world. They (corporations) have already understood that images which are projected outwardly (toward the world) are suggestive to the watchers of these images. Thus, they seek to influence others by projecting these images (via their chosen medium called the television) while connecting these images with ideas and feelings (emotions which are magnetic) that they think you will be sympathetic to.

So in reality, as you read this book, what I am saying is already understood and being used by those who wish to make lots and lots of money at yours and the public’s expense!

Now, if it is true that they have just a small or a basic understanding of how this works, (and they must since they are using it on a daily basis...) it is completely obvious that these poor unfortunate souls who are so greedy, and want to make so much money for themselves, do not understand the fullest ramifications of what they are even doing. If they did, they would stop doing it immediately..., desperately ask forgiveness from the public, and never again tamper with the HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK!

Well that was a mouthful..., let’s move on and find out why.

What if your mind/brain was actually the same TYPE of device used by the television industry? What if the only reason that it does not seem that way, is that most of us can not tune into the channel or the frequency necessary to see what is being broadcast on the NETWORK CHANNEL? After all, what is the difference between what a television appears to do, and what your brain does if it indeed projects images outwardly?

A television signal wave is a wave of magnetically altered and influenced images and sound. And, regardless of whether they are in a digital or an analog transmission, they have still been captured, processed, and rebroadcast outwardly across a large invisible network on a certain frequency which can then be received and interpreted.

Well, what if that is all that your brain is doing as well? Let's investigate this just a little further. Your physical body absorbs light information from the sun, and then chemically alters it for rebroadcast into the HTN by way of your third eye after being captured and processed by powerful magnetic tools called imagination, thought, and emotion. And, just like a television show where nothing can be filmed in the dark, human beings need LIGHT in order to capture, process, and then broadcast their "projected" images as well. In order to broadcast anything across a network, light is a very necessary component.

So, what if your mind/brain was constantly sending out a frequency or a signal wave into the HTN whether you were aware of it or not, and what if these thought forms, which are also magnetic waveforms, were having a profound affect upon the entire human awareness or all of the cultures across the globe and even into the galaxy beyond? For review, let's go back to what we discussed earlier.

There is a direct correlation between motion and the feelings that we are experiencing in our physical systems at the very moment that the energy waves are passing through them!

Television waves, even if "invisible" certainly exist, don't you agree? They are waves of moving energy, and because they are out there, they have to have an affect on you because they are moving through you.

Just like the wind, which is made up of energies that you "can't see", it is the effects of the wind are both incredible and destructive. This, I am quite certain no one will deny.

Television waves are a specific waveform that enters and passes right through your energy system. When you actually "watch" the images you see on your television screen, your thoughts and emotions are being "directly" influenced by them. Just look at an old lady watching a soap opera, and see if she is not "influenced" by what she is seeing on the screen.

Here is where most of you would probably agree with me. All of this seems pretty straight forward. Yet, what if we were to look deeply into this idea? What if we kept following the rabbit hole downward? Perhaps strange and even controversial ideas might surface. Since I have suggested that the human brain works in much the same way as a television, and that every one of us could possibly be walking around projecting their own thoughts, ideas, and images outwardly into the HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK, sort of like a walking, talking, television program, ....is it possible that other people on the Earth are being influenced by what you are thinking inside of your head, even if you are keeping it to yourself and telling no one?

THE POWER OF MAGNETISM

CHAPTER FIVE

Even though magnetism itself can not be seen, the effects of magnetism are everywhere. Magnetic influences are all around us everyday. Magnetism is literally one of the unseen forces of our illusionary world. It would certainly be a critical part of the “force” for those of you who are science fiction fans and have seen the movie “STAR WARS”. Motion, then, would simply be the result of these magnetic forces being acted out in what appears to be a physical arena by using the powers of the mind.

I believe that it is logical to say that motion can not exist without the force of magnetism. It is my firm opinion that these two are inseparable. In the vacuum of space, the human body’s magnetics will falter unless pressurized inside of a stable atmosphere. However, if a stable atmosphere and pressure are maintained, then the human body can operate in space even without gravity, specifically due to magnetics. In space, gravity is conspicuously lessened, and yet motion and motor actions are still possible for a human being with a stable magnetic field.

Even though gravity appears to pull everything toward it, while magnetism tends to separate things into organized units largely depending upon a specific frequency or attraction, BOTH have to do with electricity and therefore BOTH can be manipulated.

Because gravity can act like magnetism, it can be over come and made to “repel” instead of attract!

I stated earlier in the book that motion and energy, and then in turn motion and emotion are interconnected and inseparable. Then, I suggested that thoughts must need motion to operate or function as well. Afterward, I made it clear that motion and magnetism are also interconnected.

Therefore, the conclusion that I came to was this: human thoughts and magnetism are inseparable! Thoughts and emotions need magnetism to operate...thus the phrase: His emotions have polarized his thinking. Emotions would also have to be “electrical” in their nature as well as thoughts, owing to the fact that they need magnetics to function. So, for scientists to say that human emotions are purely chemically induced would be incorrect or at best incomplete, since motion is a stated component to our human emotions. Therefore we have to look to electricity for the “magnetics” necessary to govern the motion. Here is an example that may clear this up for you: A motor can not run without first creating a small magnetic field. Nothing that is electronic can. This is why an electro-magnetic-pulse (EMP) can temporarily knock out anything that is operating via electronic signals. Even a jet airplane will get knocked out of the sky; with its engines completely shut down if hit by a strong enough EMP. Any mechanical device that uses moving parts governed by an electrical system has to create its very own small magnetic field to operate. If, for whatever reason it can not do this, it will not operate. Thus, the motion of the device remains dormant. All of the motion that we enjoy in our vehicles, busses, planes, and boats is due in part to the force of magnetism, and magnetic fields. This being said, I must once again suggest to you that motion at a very critical level is not possible without magnetism, and thus they have become inseparable.

For Review:

* Getting really small, atoms and molecules, (which are said to be the building blocks of the manifest but illusionary world around us) are nothing more than GODS MIND being redefined as energy.

*Beyond this idea, I have gone on to describe this redefined energy as nothing more than focused thoughts coming from a level we do not (as of yet) understand.

I believe that we as human beings, who are always in tune with this higher level, are using these building blocks to electrically construct our own thoughts which in turn have an affect upon our emotions. So, if we think of thoughts as waveforms of mental energy, and then go back to our earlier example of swinging on the swing, where external waveforms of energy were able to “change” our emotions, then naturally it would follow that our emotions would also be affected by an internal mental waveform as well, not just an outer one. This is how simple it really is. Thoughts and ideas could actually be called either an internally generated waveform, or an internally accepted waveform, depending on the level from which the thought wave manifests.

These things are still dependant upon motion, as are our own emotions. (How can thoughts travel anywhere, if not by motion?) So let’s see what happens next. Once a human being either tunes into, or generates a new thought, idea, or image using magnetized light energy, and projects that into the HTN, his “awareness” gets a ride to a new understanding by way of the feelings reflected back to him by the entire network.

This network (I’ve already suggested to you), is completely “interactive” with you and your life. The newly redefined part of the energy that was used to create your idea, thought, feeling or image however stays within the HTN, and continues on its journey even after “the human being gets off the bus!” This is a demonstration of the symbiotic relationship between each human being and the (living) HTN which allows for any understandings or feelings to be had in the first place!

The magnetic energies used to create thoughts and ideas go forth into the inter-dimensional (or invisible) levels of waves and frequencies we exist in as a specific creation of ours, and continue into the HTN as a magnetic waveform.

Not only does this HTN cover our entire planet..., but it is also intimately connected with our solar system, and then with the galaxy! From our galaxy..., then it connects up to the entire UNIVERSE!

Just like a rock falling into the middle of a pond sends waves and ripples continuing to the shoreline, or just as one part of the water in the tub, thinks it will be unaffected by a carelessly tossed grenade into the other part of the tub, our own emotional and mental energy waveforms continue in the HTN “bumping” into things out into infinity, until they find something to stop them!

This is where we as human beings apparently living on Earth are now running into trouble. We as a society or group of human beings living on the planet are building unhealthy thoughts and images around ourselves each and every day. Then we are projecting them into the HTN. The sum total of which has deeply affected the balance, the health of our cultural system, and our ability to “get along” with humans on the other side of the globe. Remember that what we are talking about here are simply thought energies, but these energies (mixed thoughts, ideas, and emotions) are polarized energies having magnetic natures which give them the ability to move around.

Okay, so this may be difficult to swallow, so I’m going to spend a few pages just investigating this possibility. Let’s do a quick review here. Emotions need magnetism (I have suggested) in order to operate. Remember what I said about why we need emotions in the first place? It is in order to tell us what we feel in relationship to what we see, hear or experience. It is our own body/energy matrix responding to the waveforms moving through it at the time. But, we as human beings can also seek out different emotions simply because they excite us or we are really just bored. (Like the little boy tormenting his younger brother or sister). Emotions like these give us a thrill. It is these emotions (which I am going to call: Unintentional Emotions) that I’d like to discuss because they do the most damage.

Sometimes we, as human beings go looking for different emotions to go scurrying through our bodies systems ONLY BECAUSE we love the ride that they give us. We have become a society of “emotional thought wave addicts”! To prove this point, just consider how many of us love to watch those silly afternoon soap operas on television?

Only those people who love the energetic ride they get from the loving and the hating of the different fictional characters even watch these programs. What about Jerry Springer? Here is a whole television program dedicated to creating and stimulating your thoughts and emotions into a wild ride of frenzied polarization! Hate, hate and more hate! And, the saddest part of all of this is that Mr. Springer has even admitted in a court of law that a lot of what he does on this “pitiful show” is NOT EVEN REAL, but instead made up! What about television shows like: Judge Judy, or Divorce Court? On and on it goes my friend. What about “heavy weight wrestling” on TV, with these strange characters who claim to have it in for one another, but really are just acting on a stage for those people who for some reason NEED to “see” make believe violence?

The reasons human beings need or love these shows, and watch them endlessly, are that these shows are projecting thoughts and images in a polarized energy waveform. It is very much like taking a stimulant or a drug! People have become bored with their current emotions (or lack of them), and the new emotions these programs elicit give them a quick and cheap thrill in the emotional realm, or maybe just their next energy fix.

Perhaps they might even agree with the images and ideas they are viewing on the television. In this case, they are very compatible with the energy waveforms being projected to them.

What it boils down to is that just like that ride at the theme park can create waveforms within your physical body which can then lead you to new feelings or emotions, so too can a visual waveform coming from your television do the very same thing. A visually projected waveform has the ability to move through you and affect you since it has affected your thoughts, which in turn will affect your emotions. All of this is very seductive and subtle. This is mind energy at its most basic level. It is completely invisible, but just like the wind which can wreak terrible havoc, it is completely undeniable.

What I have just suggested here also holds true for televised sporting events like boxing, basketball, baseball, football, soccer, hockey, golf, auto races, horse races, and just about anything else one can think of.

What we as a culture don't realize here is that the very emotions we are experiencing as a result of the visual waveforms on your television have become magnetically polarized by you. They are immediately being projecting into the actual HTN after you're done creating the energy. This is what the mind/brain does. It projects information toward the network first, and then stores it for later. (The network is what sends you back the feeling.)

So, you have viewed television images that are not real, created thoughts about that, and sent that information into a commonly used network (a network which does not know that you are simply watching television) and the network then sent you back the appropriate emotions for what you were watching..., perhaps emotions you were even looking for.

So, what is true for the television industry, and true with regard to the ideas and images they are projecting into the manifest world via their created medium, is also true for you and your own little television broadcasting station called: the mind/brain/third eye complex.

Your thoughts and your ideas (which are magnetically charged) are flying out of your brain and into this common network at a pace that makes the Indianapolis 500 look like a race between snails and turtles! What YOU don't realize is that your projected thoughts and images absolutely must have an affect that is cumulative upon our society, our culture, and yes even the entire planet! Why is this?

Because "projected" thoughts and images will always result in polarized emotions, it's that simple, those are the rules!

What I am saying then is that what you do with your "time" inside of your own head, is not just affecting you anymore, but possibly affecting others as well. Why? Because as I stated earlier, we are ALL connected to this one large NETWORK called the HTN.

At this point, I'll be brave and take this to its larger ramification and say that much of the problems within the world we are currently living in and the cultural difficulties we experience are nothing more than the product of all of the thoughts and beliefs of each and every person living here on the planet cast out toward this common mind with NO EXCEPTIONS.

Are you getting uncomfortable yet? You should be! This is the downside of being ONE with everyone else! WE AFFECT EACH OTHER! These are the RULES! They can not be changed. What I do..., what I say..., and especially what I THINK has an affect on you!

This grand statement may take some time to investigate, and trust me; I am not going to make that kind of statement without providing some logical arguments to back it up. So let's dedicate the next few pages to exploring how this might be possible.

First of all, let's repeat. Can energy ever be destroyed? The answer is of course no, because energy is the MIND OF GOD. What then, does this mental energy (redefined by us) and set into motion actually do? It tends to stay in motion until it is acted upon by an equal or opposite force or motion. This idea is put forth in basic physics. Let's set up an example where we can more closely look at magnetized thoughts, which I suggest are nothing more than mental energy waveforms that are built by you using energetic (light) and magnetic (electrical, which is needed for the sake of motion) components!

In order to get to the nuts and bolts of where I would like to go, so that everyone can understand the ramifications of what I am trying to get at, I need to create a fictitious example.

In my example, let's say that I have an addiction to alcohol. This will be the starting point for my behavior, along with its "projected" thoughts and emotions. Let's also say that because of this addiction, I spend countless hours, and even days, at the local bar or pub. This type of behavior (read motion) is something that I am using or indulging in to CREATE AN IMAGE of myself, which will in turn give me the "feelings" that I desire to have. I really don't wish to lose anyone here, so let's repeat that statement in a slightly different way for clarification. When I, or anyone else for that matter, indulge in, or continue with any adverse behavior (such as alcoholism) it is to create an image. This image then, gets reflected back to me from the HTN, and because of "seeing" the very image that I am “creating” I am then able to get the “feelings” or emotions that I desire to have about myself or my current life situation. All of this is done through “choice”, and “repetition”. (Can you see how this mimics the idea of repetitive motion necessary to move waveforms forward?)

The feelings that I am trying to have, may be the feelings of neglect, or it might be an issue of abandonment I am trying to deal with, or despair, disillusionment, and hopelessness that are the real issues. Whatever the issue, I am getting to these feelings using first my imagination, and then repetitive motion. Now, for many of you, this may seem like we are putting the cart in front of the horse. I mean, after all, don't we go to the pub because we are already feeling miserable and just wish to drink a lot to forget that? The answer is NO. Feelings and emotions are an “interpretation” of events playing out in your mind or in your imagination, so therefore “context” is also necessary. For example: if I am already depressed, why keep going back to the pub again and again for days on end? Generally the issue is something much deeper than alcoholism. People who indulge in these types of behaviors are trying to “create an image” of themselves, so that they can then have a certain type of feeling about that image. So, what I am saying here is that before a person can have any particular feeling they are seeking to have, they need to have a context within which to place it, or at least a perspective. This is why actions or behaviors (motions) have to precede your feelings. Only motion or movement gives your mind/brain the ability, or the capacity to create spatial context between an event and its resultant feeling. In a completely “magnetic realm”, this is the only way it can work.

So, then to sum it up, I could say that we create our own feelings only through the power of our focused thoughts and imagination, using and in conjunction with this tiny little force we've been talking about called: magnetism!

You see, IF the feelings we are seeking are not induced purely by an outer motion, or an outer wave form such as a theme park ride, then we need to physically create our own types of motions (called behaviors, which may even have to be done repetitively) before we are allowed to get to the frequencies and energy waves which will in turn cause the emotions we are seeking. In this way, after behaving in certain ways, we suddenly “see” a visual representation of what we imagined or created as “being real” and thus can now enjoy the corresponding emotion that we were seeking all along.

I know this sounds strange, but this is the way the mind and the brain work together to present you with a field of context within a world of illusion. Without context, there can be no emotions other than LOVE or FEAR, which are the only two root emotions that human beings have. Love being the positive polarity, and fear being the negative polarity. All other emotions are derivatives of these two root emotions.

At this point, I would be remiss if I didn't at least say there IS way to get around all of this. It is a wonderful way indeed. If this is the way it works, then it would be sad for all humans to believe there was no way out of their repetitive cycles. Here is the short version of the easy way out. YOU MUST COMPLETELY LOVE AND FORGIVE YOURSELF!

The miracle of forgiveness is a long topic for a whole other book. For now, let's just try to understand POLARITY! Getting back to the example that I started earlier, whatever the feelings are that I am seeking to have by indulging in this “drinking behavior” they (these feelings) are a part of my own personal growth process. I must endure them until I no longer need them or want them.

Thus, all emotional problems become gifts once they are overcome. The ramifications of this should also not be under-estimated since if I am able to solve my own personal problem, and overcome it, the deepest truth is that the whole planet is helped by my solution energy to my problem! Why is this true? Again..., WE are all connected! My victory is YOUR victory!! We are on the same team. WE ARE ONE!

Again, getting back to the example. The magnetic component of the special energy that I am using to create my “emotion bus” goes out into the inter-dimensional levels of the UNIVERSE by way of the HTN. My projected images, thoughts, and the resultant emotions do not stop after leaving my mind/brain just because I've finally gotten all of the feelings that I wanted, and have now stopped sending them. They have to stay in the HTN.

Here's why. Once we emotionally TAG any image or any visual waveform that moves through our mind/brain, we magnetize it, or polarize it. This happens as a result of the electrical current it takes to move these energies forth, and the type of charge (either positive or negative) depends upon your personal interpretation of the image or the waveform. Now, when these magnetized energies reach the HTN, they end up in the "collective mind" as an upload from your own personal input station by way of inter-dimensional gateways located within your DNA that connects you to every living thing.

Once there, they then have the ability to act as a type of independent LIVING FORCE. All right, why would I ever call them a living force? Let's investigate that. Remember that motion and magnetism are inseparable. Emotion is really (Energy/Motion). Thus: ALL thoughts and emotions have to have a magnetic component, or else they can not function. Remember also that an engine will not start without first creating its own small magnetic field. So too then, your own emotions will not start, run, or function properly without creating their own miniature magnetic fields. Without magnetic fields, there will be no motion (the bus would go nowhere) and you could never "get" the feelings you wanted or even project the images you desired to view. This is intrinsically part of how the illusion is set up. Now, if all of this makes sense to you, and we can agree at least that your created emotions and images do have a magnetic nature so to speak, AND we can agree that your mind/brain projects them into this network as I've described, THEN we can now logically extrapolate that they might naturally have the ability to attract to other thoughts or images, already stored within the network, or even within other persons connected to the network. Inside the network, they would move around magnetically, attracting to (or penetrating) whatever waves/frequencies/fields they were harmonically compatible with, thus giving them the simplest form of intelligence!

This intelligence means that they can answer the question: yes or no? Do I fit here or don't I fit? These thoughts/images and emotions are already polarized (by YOU) and are now attracting to, or seeking something or someone to bind with, since energy set into motion has got to continue moving around until acted upon by some other force or motion!

The binary languages of most computers use this type of “intelligence”. It is because of this type of intelligence that I have called the energy in question a LIVING FORCE. If this idea and terminology is too much for you to handle, we could call it a smart force, which would be more of a “dynamic force” instead.

It is my opinion that the HTN which is “our” communal mind so to speak is saturated by the polarized smart forces that were and are collectively created by all humans, from the beginning of time. Thus, all of the “societies” within which we live are now affected by this phenomenon! I believe as well that since magnetism is clearly an inter-dimensional force, not just an invisible one, this makes it even more dangerous or volatile as one of the major components of our smart force due to the fact that now these raw forces are going not just global but inter-dimensional, and are having an effect upon other worlds, solar systems, and galaxies.

The reason that I believe magnetism is inter-dimensional, is because it has the ability to not only separate people, places and things, i.e. here from there, but it also has the ability to separate time and space, i.e. now from then.

Please remember that there is nothing out there but waves and frequencies. It is my opinion that magnetism is the ONLY force which can govern the separate frequency ranges and create spatial context within a wave type environment. This makes it one of the most important forces in the Universe.

So, getting back to our example (again)...The smart force (thought wave energy) that I have created by continuing to visit the pub goes into the HTN and moves around continuously looking for where it feels comfortable. When it finds another human being (also connected to the NETWORK) who may be in despair, or having some other emotion which is on a harmonically sympathetic frequency level, then I believe that it can magnetically penetrate (or download) itself to that individual because of the similarities of thinking going on in the mind/brain of this person. If you have a difficult time with this, please understand that this all happens on a level that can NOT be seen. It is inter-dimensional by way of the HTN.

Everything we think as human beings, everything we say, and everything we do, has the powerful potential to affect other human beings whether they are there to witness it or not...because the truth of the matter is that we are not really separate beings. Instead, we are all very much connected on a level that on one can see visually. These are the levels of the mind and the levels of thought transmission.

This is also known more simply as: THE LAW OF ATTRACTION

Now, just for the moment, you'll just have to trust in this somewhat while I make the rest of my case for it. In truth however, I've already offered several metaphorical examples in Chapter One to support this idea. For instance: we are all part of the same larger ocean of energy, and simply are divided into smaller drops of the same big ocean.

Okay, let's just say for fantasies sake that this may actually be happening. How would it be possible? I suggest that these smart forces, being simple in their natures, are looking for other human beings projecting similar energy patterns that create a harmonic resonance to the smart force. Thus, human beings can open the door into their own magnetic fields, and become vulnerable to smart forces in various ways.

- A) Projecting the very same thought patterns into the network.
- B) Using similar emotions which are attractive to the smart force.
- C) Hanging out in a close proximity with other people or persons who think or act in ways that are sympathetic to the smart force.

I am reminded here of a saying in the USA that came about after the discovery of A.I.D.S. Which basically states this: If you are going to have sex with a particular person, then you are really having sex with every other person that the first person had sex with. Only in this case, instead of trading bodily fluids due to a physically close proximity, you are basically "swimming" in the thought wave energies that another person is broadcasting into a network that everyone (including you) is connected to. And so, since YOU are the first and closest person to this human "upload station"; it is you who will probably be affected first by any detrimental thought wave energies he or she is magnetically broadcasting.

Remember...none of these thoughts need to be vocalized to have an affect upon you. All of this can easily take place on a mental or energetic level that is invisible to you. Now, instead of “second hand smoke” what you should really be very concerned about in this day and age is “second hand thought waves”!

And indeed the proof of this is simply the huge amount of channeling that goes on where enlightened beings have said again and again to the human population of Earth...”be mindful of what you think, your negative thoughts are hurting you...”

So, what if YOU also could be affected in this way? What if just by walking around and going about your daily routine, you could potentially be affected by every thought and every behavior that every other person on Earth ever had, even if you are no where near them? Could this be considered unreasonable taking into account that everything is made up of redefined thought energy anyway? Again what if all of us were just “swimming” in this huge ocean of thought energy and the only thing that kept us from blending into one another was the force of magnetism, and more specifically personal polarity?

What if it was magnetism which held our physical body’s energy frequencies in a particular way that “allowed” them to appear real to our physical eyes, when in fact they are nothing more than light waves? My friends...the end of the rabbit hole is nowhere in sight...it just keeps going!

Now here once again, let us ask these questions. WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BE ONE? WHAT DOES IT MEAN THAT WE ARE ALL CONNECTED? WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BE YOUR BROTHER'S KEEPER?

Do we as human beings walking around in our day to day lives have a specific defense against this? I believe we do. All human beings have the protection of their own personal magnetic shield. This is what keeps them from blending into other people in the first place. Each one of us has a protective magnetic field around our bodies called an AURA. Aura’s can and will repel any disharmonic frequencies that are not compatible with the human being which they are protecting anywhere on the planet! This is what magnetic shields do; because they are energy generated, they are fully functioning beams of light energy that can and will repel anything which is non-harmonic. However, because magnetic fields do have properties of fluidity as well, they can be influenced by their hosts own internal energy wave creations.

To be clear..., I would first like to say that the ONLY way external negative energies could ever have an affect upon your AURA (which is literally your only protection against this) is IF your own internal energies are out of alignment with your highest potentials of LOVE and LIGHT.

This is NOT a very big if, since almost everyone has been out of alignment with the highest love and light coming up to the present end of this cycle.

There is a passage in the Christian Bible which states this: There is nothing outside of yourself that can ever defile you. What is written there would be accurate only to the extent that the person who is being subjected to outer defilement is FIRST perfectly pure in thought, word, and deed at all times on a constant basis. This person would never have a problem since their own AURA would repel every smart force it ever came into contact with.

Everyone else will be affected by the communal energies of the world to the extent that their own internal thoughts, ideas, and emotions have already defiled them, thus making them susceptible to even more defilement. So, the point is, if I indulge myself in any action, or in any direction of thinking too much, my AURA will get clouded and muddied by my own thoughts and emotions. This is when and how other smart forces can move through your protective shields.

Any protective mechanism that operates in the nature of waves, frequency, or fields (like your AURA) can and will be compromised when it is matched harmonically.

Again back to the example of the Alcoholic: If you as an innocent bystander (Let's use YOU as the innocent bystander), are projecting thoughts and emotions that are harmonically compatible to mine as an alcoholic...AND if your projections are held for a minimal amount of time necessary to defile (or cloud your aura), you will be “affected” by my thoughts and my emotions without any defense against them. Does it surprise you that one person could possibly affect another in this way?

What happens then when you as the bystander are caught? These smart forces, which are magnetic in nature, and are polarized by another person’s intensity factor, can pass right through your protective fields by way of your third eye. (Remember this is the invisible fiber optic cable that connects all human beings to the HTN in the first place.) So now, these smart forces are inside of your energy system and moving around because they were attracted to you and penetrated your shields. They were not yours at first; they were created by someone else entirely. This does not matter however because now they are attached to you. The very first thing a smart force will do is to attempt to re-create the conditions under which it was originally created. It will act as a very seductive and suggestive energy within you. What it wants to do is to re-create what it thinks you wanted. Now, even though you are not the creator of it, the smart force does not know this. You have been caught by it, through a magnetic process of attraction, and it will do what it has been programmed by someone else to do. It will attempt through the power of its heavily magnetized inter-dimensional frequency to change your behavior or your thinking to its own “version” of reality by subtle suggestive images and feelings.

A smart force could actually sway your behavior for two very important reasons:

First, your mind/brain complex is set up to operate in the same way everyone else’s mind/brain complex is set up, which is to view any and all images reflected back to you by your personal connection to the HTN. (A connection you can not sever, and one you can not function well without for long.)

This is how your mind actually visualizes things. In fact, I am now going to take this even one step further and suggest to you that your own magnetic field is part of what you call your MIND.

In addition...the “reflective” portion this “part” of your mind is outside of your body at all times, and the inner portion of the mind/brain complex is connected to the outer portion by way of the third eye, and the frontal lobe of the brain. The rest of the “mind” is contained within your cells, and in the inter-dimensional DNA itself. (All of this hardware: Your anatomy, is “governed” by your minds software: which is nonphysical magnetism and polarities)

Secondly, getting back to the example, the reflected image that you are “viewing” from the smart force contains a magnetic or emotional component that you are apparently sympathetic with.

Now...if you are skeptical that this could even happen, I am willing to admit that this does sound quite strange. However, let’s get back to the television industry. Maybe you might want to write a nice long letter to all of those millions of advertisers telling them that they are foolishly wasting their money on television commercials. Actually..., I never liked watching them anyway! After all, why would they (the advertising industry) foolishly be willing to spend 2 million dollars for only a thirty second ad being broadcast during the American Super Bowl when (for those who may be skeptics here) “Projected visual images can’t possibly sway human behavior?” Waste, waste, waste... I’m sure they don’t know what they are doing with their money?

You know, I have always wondered why these greedy corporations were willing to pay such outlandish amounts of money for commercials in the first place, but the truth is this: they know that these commercials (which are projected visual images, mixed with emotional or magnetically polarized ideas) will always influence a certain number of people who are energetically sympathetic to those emotions or images. It’s just as simple as waves passing right through your body.

Thus, the projected visual image (television commercial) has now changed or influenced human behavior on a very large scale (which they paid a lot of money for). The ad industry already knows this stuff, (and don't you just wonder how they figured it out?) and that is why they are willing to pay so much money for just fifteen or twenty seconds of broadcast time. It's so they can get their "projected image" out to you the viewer in order to have an affect on you!

Alright...again for those skeptics, I realize that what we are talking about here is comparing "visible visual waveforms" with "invisible visual waveforms".

I won't argue with you there. However I must now pose this question to you:

Are you ready to stake all of your money, happiness, joy and health on the assumption that an "invisible visual waveform" can not ultimately have the very same affect on you?

Now, I can sense the gears turning..., "invisible visual waveform?"... "that's an oxymoron...it doesn't even make sense". (Just like "military intelligence" makes no sense...right?) Okay then, what about "invisible light?"? What about "inaudible sound?"?

I'll bet there are some of you out there who are now ready to tell me there is no such thing as invisible light or inaudible sound. So let me remind you of just a few things. No one can really see "X-rays" or "Gamma-rays" can they?

However, I can bet that if I told you they were there, you would never stand in a room all day long being bombarded by them? I don't think even one of you would say: "Well since they're invisible, they can't have an affect on me... can they...?"

What about radiation? No one can see that either..., but none of you would stand in a lab that was being swamped with tons of dangerous radiation for any length of time, all the while "knowing" it was "invisibly" there?

That takes care of “invisible light”. Let’s move on to sound. What about sounds in the Ultra Low Frequency range? You can’t hear them... but could they possibly affect you? I suggest you look up HAARP and then ask those people being bombarded by HAARP waves if they feel any different.

Waves and frequencies my friends...just because you can’t see them does not mean they are not out there having an affect on you or your system. The rabbit hole that we have been faithfully following has suddenly just got infinitely deeper. Yet..., there is “no end” in sight!

Okay, back to the example. Smart forces as I’ve said, show up in the original condition in which they were created. This particular smart force in our example was created in a Bar or a Pub. It “understands” itself as a visual image with polarized emotional issues associated with drinking and hopelessness. Thus, it demonstrates this to you with imagery that you can “see” in your mind. Now here is where the surprise comes... Even if you as the “caught” individual do not normally drink alcohol, or perhaps have never drank any alcohol, the desire to do so will suddenly be much, much stronger, due in part to the magnetic pull of this newly acquired smart force. What’s happening here is that you believe what you are “seeing” and “feeling” is your own internal thoughts and emotions at work, but the reality is that this energy has been acquired by you from somewhere else.

The ramification is that because of what you are “seeing” visually, and “feeling” emotionally seems to you like your own ideas, you are much more willing to act upon them!

So here, is where the last several pages come together for us. I have created an example where one person (in this example...myself) has projected an actual smart force that came about by continuously indulging in certain behaviors along with the “cherishing” of mental images, combined with the indulgence in strong emotions, which have given these images “polarization”. These emotionally tagged images were then projected into the HTN since that is where all thoughts and images and ideas must go first before they are “reflected” backward to the individual, since spatial context involves motion through space. In addition, since we are not separate beings on the level of the mind, what one person thinks has the potential to affect everyone else.

Now, to be clear here, what we are talking about does not have to affect everyone, but “if” there is another person who is thinking in ways that are harmonically compatible, even for a short period of time, they will become vulnerable to the smart force.

The complete ramifications of this example are these: I am partly responsible for starting the second person drinking alcohol...even though I have never met the person or ever said a word to them.

It is true, in my opinion, that you (as the caught bystander) have the “free will” to say “no” to the new images popping up on your mental screen, and to say “no” to the feelings which are attached to these images. I will not argue that you do have a choice. However, I would like to look at this more closely.

Remember, that these ideas as smart forces are now coming into, and being “viewed” inside of what you think is your own mind after all. And just to be fair, when you see an image popping up on your own mental screen, aren’t you willing to believe that it is there because it’s your own idea? Aren’t you much more willing to believe that this must be something that you want to do, because it popped up on your own personal radar so to speak?

Think about it this way. If a friend of yours comes up to you and says: “...well mate, you might as well just go to the pub and start drinking...its all over for you...” and after hearing this, you know that you don’t drink, the advice might be very easy to discard or disagree with. You could say to your friend... “...no... I don’t drink. I think I’ll pass...” and leave it at that.

Now, what if your friend could somehow simply insert the image of you going down to the bar or pub into your mind and make you believe it was your own idea? Do you see what I'm getting at here? Aren't most people more willing to listen to their own minds, rather than the advice of someone outside of themselves?

The real issue then becomes knowing which thoughts are truly yours, and which thoughts are not. This very idea opens up a huge can of worms for psychiatrists, doctors, school teachers, and child counselors who deal with strange behaviors and unruly kids, etc. Many of whom have been asking one question for a long, long time now... "What makes an individual suddenly just 'act out' and do something totally out of character that they had never thought of doing before?"

Doesn't it also seem reasonable to you that such a person who may have been "caught" by such a force would have to use much more strength and resolve than normal since the image they are "viewing" has been heavily polarized by the one who created it in the first place? Again, if it were simply your own fleeting thoughts that you were dealing with, that's one thing, because as we all know fleeting ideas will come and go. But, what if these are the highly polarized thoughts of another person who had really cherished them and given them a full "charge" so to speak? Okay, now I'm sensing that they may be a few of you who are labeling this: "weird science" However, in my defense the truth sometimes seems weird at first!

In order to prove this point, (that the truth is sometimes weird), I am going to paraphrase a true story that I read out of a small magazine which brings up a very similar aspect of this same idea, and is just as weird. I read this story out of a small magazine similar to the Catholic Digest, but it was not necessarily that particular book. To be honest I can't remember what the name of it was, but I do remember the story very clearly because it impressed me. It was one of those "Christian Faith Digests" that are everywhere in doctor's offices and waiting rooms. It's the kind of faith and hope magazine that you read when you have nothing else to do but wait for an appointment. The magazine called this story "miraculous proof of God" but I simply say that it is logical science, even if it is weird. The story went like this:

It seems that there was a middle aged woman that was in desperate need of a heart transplant. She needed to get one fairly quickly if she was going to survive. Her name was somehow put on an expedited list and she and her husband waited nervously. Finally, she got a call from the hospital saying that they had a heart available for her and that she should come in immediately. She and her husband went to the hospital and prepared for the heart transplant operation. After receiving the new heart (from an organ donor who had been killed in an accident) she was moved to the intensive care unit for recovery. According to the story, this lady was quite proper and very well read. She did not drink alcohol, smoke or eat unhealthy foods, swear or do things of that nature. After being in the I.C.U. for a period of time, she was moved to a regular hospital room and her husband came to visit her regularly. As she started to improve, her husband asked if there was anything special he could get for her from outside the hospital in the way of food and drink.

The answer she gave surprised him so much that he almost fell out of his chair! She stated firmly and with some difficulty that what she wanted most was a beer and some fries from McDonald's! Again, this was a surprise to the husband since as far as he knew she had never eaten at McDonald's, and had never taken a sip of beer in her entire life!

Apparently as the story goes, this craving went on for several months and finally because this couple thought it was so strange, they asked the hospital to release the name of the heart donor, thinking that it must be somehow connected. Even though it was normally against the hospital's policy, in this case they made an exception and released the name of the organ donor's family to the couple. It turns out that she had been given the heart of a very young man of about 22 years old who had been killed in a motor cycle accident. She also learned from the parents of the young man (whom they went and visited) that their son just loved to drink beer and that his favorite meal was French fries from McDonald's!

This story basically demonstrates that the “behaviors and the preferences” of this young man were somehow magnetically bonded at a cellular level in such a way that even his heart organ knew of them. When his heart was transplanted into the older woman, these preferences and desires lived on in her body, and she became “aware of them” in her own mind.

This true story demonstrates more of the same “weird science” we have just been discussing. It is basically a wake up call telling us that there is quite a bit out there that our scientists don't know about; this includes how very specific “images” and “desires” can possibly be passed from one person to the next. Understanding these things might actually help us to lead happier and better lives while living here on Earth.

My question to you is this: How could this even happen unless there is an “inter-dimensional” way for images and information to travel along our bodies magnetic fields? Do simple heart cells have the ability to “read” very specific desires and behavioral preferences? Can heart cells remember that you like McDonald’s French-fries the most, and that you prefer them over Burger Kings or some other fast food chain? Can your heart cells remember that you like to drink beer, and when planted into a whole other person who has never actually had a beer suddenly become a craving inside of her? Is this information transferred electrically or magnetically in ways we may not yet be able to understand simply because we can not see it? I guess that leaves our current day science out of the equation since if they can’t see it, measure it, or touch it..., it does not exist!

Getting back to this particular woman...the story went on to say that she was of course in due time, able to change the cravings she was experiencing through her own strong will, and the power of her own thinking. But this story also proves that even our “own cells” remember everything about us, including which particular fast food restaurant we prefer over all the others. This young man’s heart organ knew exactly what he liked and did not like. I believe strongly that information such as this gets transferred from a cellular level into inter-dimensional magnetic waves in order to be recorded, and that it is stored in the DNA in ways not yet understood by our present day scientists.

Now after building a case for many pages, I am going to make a very simple and bold statement which may be very difficult for some of you to hear, but you really need to hear it. It is this:

The reason that the world we all live in is in the poor condition that it is in has nothing to do with the devil or “Satan” or anything like that. The reason that the world is in the poor condition it is in, has much more to do with the fact that this is the way that we as a “complete group” are choosing it to be. In fact, we as a group (the greater majority of us) enjoy the world this way just a little bit too much for our own good.

Now, what do I mean by that? Alright, this is going to be our focus for the rest of this book. Before we start that however, let me first say that I really don’t wish to get into an argument with those people who still believe in a SUPER BEING that stands in opposition to GOD in all things. I think that subject has been beat to death, and for the purpose of this book, it has little relevance to what I’m trying to demonstrate here as Atlantean Science.

I will say that it is my belief that many of the things that we would like to attribute to

Satan or to Evil, are nothing more than “invisible television commercials” of one person’s ideas being broadcast into a larger network where everyone one on the network can be affected by them. This is my own “space age” and scientific version of the religious insistence that “we collectively” are being tempted by something outside of ourselves. My answer and conclusion to that idea is this: “Yes, you are correct, we are, but not in the way you think.”

We are being tempted by invisible visual waveforms and emotional frequencies trapped inside of a network which all human beings are connected to. The only reason that this is happening and able to affect so many of us and with such frequency is that we as a group of “unaware” human beings do not realize what we are doing to each other. We do not realize that we are actually connected to each other in ways we do not yet understand. Now that we have what I believe to be a solid foundation for this concept, I would like to build upon it. Let’s take this idea out for a ride and see how far it goes! The endless rabbit hole is about to get much deeper!

THE SHADOW OF THE DRAGON

TECHNOLOGY YOU CAN'T IMAGINE

CHAPTER SIX

Before I get into what's happening right now in the world as we speak..., which is sort of the subject of this chapter..., a little back ground information is first necessary. I've already told you that I have a past life memory as an Atlantean Priest. It was just one life as far as I know, and it was most likely in the happier times of Atlantis. In fact..., during those days, Earth was visited constantly by other civilizations. Many who lived on Earth then were NOT necessarily FROM Earth as a strict rule. In that life, I was known as an Atla-Ra, or "High Priest" and lived on the largest of the remaining five Islands..., an Island known as Poseida. Poseida is at current day now located just under the Atlantic Ocean near Bimini, and all of the shallow surrounding area of the Bahamas. I was a healer in that life and was very good at using mental energies to heal people of almost any sickness. I also used crystals to focus energy along with colored light, and sound. I used some very advanced machines and technology which I myself had designed specifically for the purposes of healing. Along with that, I had the responsibility of operating the Great Crystals, which were in fact Great Crystal Beings with such intelligence that you could not help but fall in love with them. I am placing this information here so you can get an idea of what kind of technology Atlantis had and how they used it.

What I am now going to share with all of you is CHANNELED information which comes from Archangel Metatron, and was channeled by, or through James Tyberonn. He has his own website where all of this information is kept and can be found there for review. His website is: Earth Keeper.com What follows next is from Archangel Metatron...

The Golden Age of Atlantis

Dear Ones, the Atlantean crystals were saved from destruction, and now you are offered the memory of why. For such magnificent crystal beings offer all of you so much. The expansion, the sacred completion applies to ALL! It is time to remember who you were, in order to become all you are in this awakening time, this return to the Quantum Crystalline Field.

You see, Atlantis existed for over 200,000 years. The vast majority of the Atlantean times were epochs of light! Only the final phase, the period from 17,500 BC to 10,500 BC was in your terms, a dark era, but one rich in lesson.

We tell you in fact that the Golden Period of Atlantis was the highest level of Light Consciousness ever achieved on the Earth Plane in any advanced civilization; higher than LeMuria, higher than Mu, higher than Rama, higher than Ignacious. It has become somewhat fashionable to consider LeMuria as being the utopian civilization, and though they did achieve a relatively short lived phase of high consciousness, most in that era were not truly in physical bodies, rather in devic-like etheric states, and did not face the difficulties required of the physical earth stage. Indeed LeMuria never achieved the highly advanced level that existed in that Golden Phase of Atlantis from 40,000 BC to 18,000 BC. A time when Gods walked with men, and all knew joyful expression It was the hallowed time when many of you walked as Star Children, and later chose biology and the lesson cycles of reincarnation on the Blue Planet called Earth.

So when you consider Atlantis, DO NOT only remember its sad demise! It was but a short phase of the magnificent antediluvian world, yet it must not be forgotten, so very much is to be gained by understanding the final phase, and Dear Ones, it is time to remember.

The Atlantean Hologram

So we speak of once mighty Atlantis, and we speak to all of you, , for Atlantis is a great holographic lesson, and ones whose time has returned, for the memory of Atlantis is not just a healing. Indeed, for some it is a requisite healing, a necessary cleansing, ,but for others it is also a benevolent empowerment. It recalls a time when you walked in knowledge. Regardless of your myriad roles in Atlantis, and Dear Ones, 70% of all on the planet at this time experienced physicality there, Atlantis now calls to you.

And the call is not just for those of you of the Law of One, it is equally called to the Aryans, to the Sons of Belial. Indeed many of you experienced lifetimes in both ideologies. Does that surprise you?

The Deluge of 17,500 BC - Downward Spiral of the Final Phase

The time is after the second deluge, when the utopian Golden Age subsided and Atlantis split into 5 islands. The three major islands were known as Poseida, Aryan and Og. The two smaller islands were under the rule of Aryan, and were known as Atalya and Eyre. And so in the days after the second break up of Atlantis, the benevolent government rule by kingdom passed into the phase of a confederation, state governments, in your terms, that ruled each of the islands. An aristocracy of sorts evolved that consisted of two opposing ideologies. The two major components of these were the 'Law of One', based predominantly on the Isle of Poseida and 'The Sons of Belial' based on the Isle of Aryan. The island of Aryan was the most populated, and exerted influence and political control over Og, Atalya and Eyre.

Poseida was the planets most potent vortex portal complex at the time of Atlantis. The Poseida grouping and isle housed the Temple of Healing, the Temple of Sound, the Temple of One, the Temple of Regeneration and the Temple of Knowledge. Poseida housed most of the major centers for higher learning. These were placed on Poseida because of its advantageous location within the geodesic grids and its proximity to beneficial electromagnetic energies that spiraled upward from the earth's core. An incredibly potent healing spring flowed on Poseida, near the Temple of Healing, and its lore spawned the myths of the 'Fountain of Youth' passed down by the indigenous peoples of Florida. It flows yet into the oceans near Bimini.

The tall ones, the golden race of Atlantis, of Pleadean seed were centered in Poseida, these ones averaging 10 to 12 feet in stature. These were a gentle race of giants, involved in the cultural, artistic and educational pursuits in the heart of Atlantis. Poseida was also the headquarters and nucleus of the crystalline power grid and interdimensional tunnel system. The most advanced, complex and beautiful of the crystals were here. They were of Arcturian and Sirian construct, a living amalgam of many crystalline forms imbued with an alloy of platinum and gold. The crystals were housed in magnificent Temples, some built of marble, others of crystalline sheets of beryl, corundum and diamond. Poseida was also the capital city of the island, and was called the Emerald City. The Atlanteans had perfected, with Arcturian technology, the ability to grow crystals of every structure and essence in an accelerated growth within the underground crystal beds of Arkansas, Tibet and Brasil, all being Atlantean colonies, accessed through the interdimensional tunnel system.

Throughout Atlantis, power grid crystals, called posers, were triangulated and connected through a gold-copper rod under an spherical dome that could be angled to receive specific stellar, solar and gravitational energy waves. This was the system used to power homes, offices, media, and theatres, manufacturing concerns, medical centers, schools and businesses. The poser system was received in each structure by receiving crystal units of various sizes. The poser system was also able to receive specialized refracted light and feed it into the ley energy system for use in the interdimensional tunnel system and feed crystalline light into conductive earth currents to raise the frequency into a semi-aware electromagnetic plasmic field of benevolent energy capable of retaining spiritual frequencies.

A great crystalline satellite, referred to as the second moon of Atlantis, floated above in the skies and received, amplified and reflected refined energy back to the crystals for various beneficial purposes. It served both the posers and the Master Crystals used in temples. Specialized energy fields were projected into agricultural and crystal growing areas to amplify and accelerate growth, as well as into universities, hospitals, schools, offices, factories and work places to create a sense of well being and invigoration for the workers and students. We will speak more of this 'second moon' later in this essay.

Now, the Temples were astonishing works of sacred geometry and stunning architecture. Many of the great temples were covered in a dome of projected crystalline amplified light somewhat like a glowing force field. These were of various colors and glowed in day and night. These were varied according to the purpose of the temple complex. Some temples projected domes and fields of vibratory light and resonate sound frequencies that amplified the senses and chakras; others amplified the receptive learning ability of the mind, and others enabled multidimensional consciousness, communication and transport. Additionally most of the major cities during the Golden Age of Atlantis, had crystalline power domes of energy fields above them.

After the second deluge, only, the capital city of Poseida had a full crystalline energy dome, and it was an incredible emerald green color.

Prior to the deluge of 17,500 BC, most major cities, including Meruvia, the Capital of Aryan had such power domes over the perimeter. The one in Aryan was a soft ruby red.

In the Golden Age of Atlantis, the Pyramids were three and four sided, depending on their utility and generally made of marble, granite and complex crystals. The three-sided pyramids were used as antennas to draw and amplify energies and fed them into the poser grid to power homes, factories and create energy fields for various utilities. The crystalline satellite was used to reflect the angled stellar energy waves into these triangulated grids. There were over 100 of these triangulated pyramidal grid complexes. They were set up in concentric triangulation patterns all over the planet. They established a hemispheric grid network of crystalline and electromagnetic energy dividing the areas of Atlantis, America, Africa, Mediterranean Europe and South America into different demographic centers-for powering population centers, and to modulate weather patterns and tides. The areas of Mongolia and Tibet were also part of this complex, connected by interdimensional ley tunnels. But the largest groupings of these were in the homelands of Atlantis.

The four- sided pyramids were essentially Temple complexes set as full octahedrons and used for healing, learning, regeneration and spiritual purposes. These were not triangulated, and generally set on hilltops or along the coastlines to receive both telluric and celestial energies. The lands below the center plane were excavated to allow for the downward pyramid of the octahedron design construct, thus connecting energetically to both above and below.

The 'Law of One' contingency of Poseida were devoutly spiritual people and sought equality among the people and a unification of Oneness. Although much technology and quality of life had been lost in the prior two breakups of Atlantis (the first in 58,000 BC, the second in 17,500 BC) technology still remained at an advanced level. Yet the harmony experienced in the Golden Age of Atlantis spiraled downward after the break up into islands in 17,500 BC as the islands grew into separately governed entities, which held to very differing ideologies in the initially chaotic and difficult period of reconstruction immediately after the break up.

Poseida and the Atla-Ra

A highly disciplined and evolved sect of scientist priest held the technical wisdom and expertise of managing the crystal power grids. The vast majority of Atla-Ra were of the tall golden race, but there were also members from the bronze, white, LeMurian brown and Cetean races. At that time there were still Cetean dolphin beings who walked on two legs, verbally communicated and breathed air in a similar fashion to humankind. The sect of scientist- priests were referred to as the Atla- Ra. The Atla-Ra still maintained the highest standards of consciousness and were able to continue vibrating at very high frequencies of consciousness, at and above the level of 12th dimensional light & energy, remaining very pure and resonant with the true 'Oneness' concept of the Creator/God.

They sustained higher dimensional -telepathic contact with the advanced space brethren from the Pleades, Arcturius ,Andromeda and Sirius.

The Atla-Ra Priests were highly revered and traditionally separate, above & exempt from governmental controls, and thus kept the knowledge & senior management of crystal technology largely in the wise & benevolent hands of the sect, although their were some technicians and crystal engineers from the Poseidan populace involved who were not in the Atla-Ra sect. The Scientist Priest of Atla-Ra were both male and female and were capable of great life spans, both through the regeneration of mind power and through the technology of same in the Temple of Rejuvenation. Many lived lifetimes in the same biology for 6,000 years, some to 12,000 years! Thus was the technology preserved through this holy sect. Many brilliant souls were among these. The entities you know as Galileo, Isaac Newton, Einstein, Tesla, Edison, Marcel Vogel, Ronna Herman and DaVinci were among the Atla-Ra. Tyberonn and Oneronn were part of this group of scientist priest, who lived very long lifetimes.

Many of you, especially your artists have great recall of the capital city of Atlantis located in the region of Poseida. It was termed the Emerald City because of the glowing green light dome projected over it. Some of your artists in fact have made renditions of the city that are quite accurate. It was an exquisite marvel of architecture, culture and engineering, by far the most beautiful metropolis that has ever existed on your planet. It was breathtaking. The city, also named Poseida, as was the state , was composed of a series of concentric walls and encircled by flowing seagreen canals. It was full of beautifully constructed Temples, Universities, Theatres and Museums. At the very center was a hill, and on top of the hill the majestic and stunning Temple of Poseidon, which was visible from everywhere in the holy emerald city. Inside the temple was a massive gold statue of the God of the Sea showing him driving six winged horses made of extra terrestrial platinum. The statue was embellished with precious gemstones of every color and type. The Temple was octagonal and along each of the 8 walls were built convex enclosures with platforms for amazing crystals that stood twelve feet high and glowed like transparent diamonds. Poseida had been the least damaged of the major Atlantean cities after the break up into islands, and was still of a very high frequency and quality of life.

Aryan and the Industrial Complex:

Aryan was the largest of the islands and the most populated. Aryan was the commercial center and yielded the most influence from the economic, agricultural and military perspective. After the 2nd deluge, Aryan was significantly damaged and the infrastructure required a chaotic stage of rebuilding. In the process, the state became controlled by an elitist, affluent 'white' race, who gained control of the economy, military powers and island-state government, even though the majority of the populace were of the bronze or red race. From Aryan grew a corrupt power-minded aristocracy who sought to block the 'Law of One' and utilize Atlantis's technology for control of the world, this through the utilization of crystalline energy for weaponry, and use of genetic science for development & retention of an inferior race to serve as workers and soldiers.

The genetic engineering was based in Meruvia, on Aryan. It had originally been used for benevolent purposes, for seeking improved physical vehicles for those that had incarnated into physical bodies that mutated into half man half beast abominations. The genetic work had been processed and developed on Aryan and was used to remove appendages, claws, feathers and reptilian skins and scales. This was done in the Temple of Purification, somewhat of a specialized medical centre. Again, we emphasize that during the Golden Age of Atlantis, its utility had been quite benevolent. Tremendous genetic advances were made and a great understanding of cloning and adjusting physical limitations for betterment came in responsible, ethical utility.

In the chaos of the reconstruction period, genetic engineering came under the control of the Belial group, and then denigrated into corrupt uses of greed and power. The genetic engineering began being used for dark ends, in creating a race of worker- slaves and hybrid man animals. Just as in Nazi Germany it was conveyed to the masses as development of a 'pure race'. In fact many of the genetic scientist were initially kept unaware of what their research and development work was being used for until it was essentially too late for them to stop it. Some of you carry great guilt to this day as a result of this work.

Law of One and Sons of Belial

This use of genetically engineered servant classes led to the great rift between the Law of One and the Sons of Belial, the latter of which became so engrossed and hardened in the materialistic ambitions of the industrial machine that they lost sight of the spiritual ethics that had prevailed over the continent of Atlantis in the Golden Era. Literally hundreds of thousands of hybrid mutations were created to work the fields and monstrosities were created with controlled minds to robotically do the biddings of their 'masters'. The agro-industrial society of Aryan became quite dependent on them. Souls became trapped in cloned bodies termed 'things' and 'others' with genetic lobotomies and nullified, sexuality and emotional abilities. Many who were trapped in monstrous or sub intelligent androgynous human bodies, still carry that horrendous pain of being imprisoned in physical embodiments that allowed for, no advanced learning, spiritual growth or emotional expression.

For several millennia the two ideologies remained head-locked over this issue and governmental agencies were in a state of delicate impasse. The Poseidans were far too cultured and gentle in nature to attempt to fight the Aryans and sought to educate them and spiritually influence them into changing their ways. The Aryans, who outnumbered the Poseidans 3 to 1, dared not attack Poseida lest they have the crystalline energy that powered the nation shut off.

Colonial Wars In the interim outbreaks of war erupted between the Aryan controlled Atlantean military as the former colonies of Atlantis located in the Mediterranean areas broke traditional ties and developed their own independent governments. The colonies, particularly those in Greece and Turkey saw the change from the utopian Atlantis to the military-fascist state controlled by Aryan and sought to break away. Although the Aryans had the military edge, the Mediterranean states did not succumb, and regional colonial wars raged on with neither side able to dominate the other. Factions within Aryan increasingly sought to use crystal energy to quell the adversaries. This was firmly refused by the Atla-Ra and 'Law of One' populace of Poseida.

Several futile attempts to terrorize the Poseidans were attempted by the Aryans, and each was quelled. The Poseidans retaliated by shutting down the power and negating the Aryans. The Aryans responded by stopping food supply and manufactured goods. A great impasse ensued.

The Atlantean Unification Congress

In a great deceptive scheme, disguised as a plan for unification, the Aryans approached the Poseidans with the formation of a renewed National Congress to work out their growingly tense differences and bring harmony to Atlantis. Representatives from the Law of One were sent along with the representatives from the Sons of Belial. The Congress was formalized with an equal amount of representation from the two parties. Within short order a federation of sorts was sanctified with the promise of greater harmony. It appeared for several decades that the promise of change and betterment might come about from the National Congress. The Poseidans were encouraged and many of them let down their guard. The Atla-Ra remained wary of the motives and sensed deception.

Initially the National Congress did improve relations and many minor superficial laws that promised unity were set in motion. Yet the primary points of opposition, the genetic slavery and crystal energy management remained unresolved.

However, from within the Sons of Belial had risen a hypnotic charismatic leadership who seduced the masses in Atlantis into believing they were the answer to returning Atlantis to its lost Golden Age of prominence and abundance. The leaders of this group were the souls that you know as Hitler and Himmler, indeed the supremacist Nazis of your World War II. Large militaristic legions were formed and gained the edge in covert political persuasion and power. The hybrid mutants were used to terrorize those who opposed them in Aryan and Og, and one occasion this was futilely attempted in Poseida.

The powerful Aryan contingent were masters of manipulation and media. They presented well thought out arguments that masked their true intentions and promised mutual compromise. The propaganda seemed quite feasible on the surface and convinced many including moderates and some from the Law of One of its hope for harmony.

In what appeared to be a great opportunity for resolution, a law was proposed by the Belial group to bring the genetic engineering, heretofore controlled by the state of Aryan under federalized control, and in return, bring the crystal poser system under the control of a governmental agency. A great discussion and debate occurred under great national scrutiny. A vote was set, but failed in the congressional vote.

Betrayal:

However, a compelling compromise was offered by the cunning leadership of the Belial, which allowed for the law to be passed on the basis that a council staffed with 5 Poseidans and 4 Aryans would head a new government agency for federalized Crystalline- Energy control. The fact that the Law of One were given apparent majority control of the council made the plan seem very promising to the populace of Poseida. The law allowed that no changes could be made without majority consensus of the council, but included the caveat that while the Atla –Ra would remain in departmental head positions, they would no longer be exempt from governmental controls. A training program was included that would allow engineers from both parties, outside the Atla-Ra, to be trained and taught the complex engineering.

Initially, despite the wariness of Atla-Ra, the system appeared to be working and bringing a better harmony.

However, within two years, the wars in the Mediterranean roared back in full escalation, and the rebelling colonies seemed to be gaining the advantage. Pressure mounted to use crystal beams for war purposes under the guise of national security. A discussion, debate and vote was scheduled for the Governing Council. National security was touted and a misaligned sense of manipulated patriotism swept the land.

Then the deception rolled into effect. To the great shock & chagrin of the Poseidans, one of the Law of One members of the Council, switched positions. He was neither of the Atla-Ra, nor the Golden race. He had risen politically as a charismatic leader, a trusted negotiator, who had pledged allegiances to the Law of One and gained their full confidence. He had been targeted and seduced by the Aryans, and fell victim to his ambitions.

In the aftermath, this one felt great remorse, and spent subsequent lifetimes attempting to make up for the mistake. For truly he did not foresee the catastrophic ending, and had allowed himself to be blindly compromised under promises of power and position.

Dear Ones, such is the illusion of power. You see when one gains power, that which may seem right can often be an illusion of ego. Each on the road of Mastery must eventually decide between power and love. Even the one you call Hitler thought the master race scenario would enable a better future for the earth, with one supreme physical embodiment being the single eventual race that all souls would reincarnate into, reducing disease, and eliminating racial division by having only one ‘Master’ race. Even the one you call Judas in your biblical allegory thought that by placing Jesua ben Josef in detention, he would be forced to use his divine powers to reveal his Mastery to the world! Indeed the paradox is that what you term as ‘Power’ is often the polar opposite of love. Do you see how ego and power can deceive? Do you?

Thus through ‘legalized’ governmental control, the use of the crystal power complex & grids came under governmental control under the sons of Belial, and sadly could not be reversed.

The Second Moon of Atlantis

That which was known as the ‘Second Moon of Atlantis’, the crystalline poser grids and fire crystals came under governmental control, and their usage became altered as the Aryan knowledge of the programming grew. The Atla-Ra were able to defer the usage initially, but in time were stymied.

Now as we have mentioned earlier, that termed the second moon of Atlantis, was in fact a massive crystalline satellite. It was of Arcturian construct and managed by the Priest Scientist of the Law of One. The crystalline satellite was an enormous unmanned sphere of brilliant engineering, approximately five miles in diameter. It has been in use since the Golden Age of Atlantis, and served myriad benevolent purpose. It amplified and controlled the various crystal beams sent from the fire, healing and energy crystals. It was somewhat of a computerized macrochip that refracted, amplified and reflected powerfully refined beams of energy for use in agriculture, weather control, tide control, healing temples, regeneration temples and the enhanced ley-energy systems generated by the crystal poser system. It loomed in the skies over Atlantis and appeared as a golden 'harvest' moon, and thus was known as the second moon of Atlantis. A rainbow kaleidoscopic energy band of antigravity plasma swirled around the sphere, and often appeared as what you now term the aurora or northern lights. The satellite crystal moon did not orbit the earth, it moved as programmed, self directed, constantly shifting locations in order to perform its myriad tasks over Atlantis, Africa and the eastern seaboard of Brasil.

After the Crystalline Grid complex legally came under federalized Aryan control, the Belial group integrated their own technologists into the engineering group, quickly replacing key department heads with their own. The Atla-Ra attempted to block their attempt to reprogram the satellite for war usage explaining that overloading the satellite would dissipate the antigravity field that maneuvered it, and a catastrophic crash could occur. The Aryan scientist debunked the claim. Some of the Atla-Ra were threatened and removed, others began to mysteriously disappear. Many of the Poseidans felt intimidated and powerless as the governing council allowed for the satellite to become a 'strategic defense weapon', certain it would function as programmed, and bring a quick end to the rebellion wars.

The Belial scientist, with council approval reprogrammed a system bypass and began sending destructive thermal light beams used to initiate volcanic eruptions and massive earthquakes against colonies and nations who refused to give into their demands. These were aimed in the areas of what is now Greece and Turkey, and caused great devastation. Indeed it gave the zealous Aryans the battle advantage they so fervently desired, and they jubilantly increased its usage, with support of most of the populace.

The Beginning of the End

The Crystal Moon began to 'overload', weakening the anti gravity field that kept it afloat. The Atla-Ra understood the implications of what would soon occur when the programming crashed, but their pleas to the council continued to be ignored.

After several months of prolonged war use, the satellite began to erratically swerve and shift, and power blackouts began to occur. Tireless attempts to correct it were unsuccessful. The Atla-Ra were asked to lend support in correcting it, most refused. Some agreed to try and stabilize it to prevent the impending disaster. All attempts failed. The council refused the suggestion to incinerate the satellite, disbelieving that it would crash, and minimizing the effects of an impact even if it did.

Relocation of the Crystals Tyberonn & Oberonn gathered an inner group of loyalist within the Atla-Ra and Law of One to plan a circuitry disconnection & imminent relocation of the fire and energy crystals to various 'safe' locations before the impending crash of the master satellite. This was done with the technology & assistance of those from Sirius B.

The relocation of the precious crystals was very risky, and required careful planning and great secrecy. It had to be done before the crash of the 'second moon', and without knowledge of the governing council.

Simultaneously other trusted members of the Atla-Ra worked furiously at hastily and safely gathering data recording crystals, crystalline skulls and engraved historical records for secure placements in Yucatan, Alexandria and Giza. This was only partially accomplished, so much was not able to be saved.

Atlantis had numerous power crystals located through out the 5 islands and along specific relay routes of the underground labyrinth system. The Atla-Ra knew that once the modulated 'motherboard' of the crystal moon satellite lost its antigravity field, it would crash in a huge explosion and its crashing would subsequently reek havoc on the major and poser energy crystals, creating catastrophic secondary explosions of a nuclear-class within hours or days of the crash.

The Atla-Ra and Sirians wanted to insure the master crystals would not be destroyed or used for any further negative purpose, and be saved for a time when mankind could use them as they were intended. They understood the power required to transport them would be lost after the crash, and that urgent expediency was required.

Seven of the enormous primary crystals and two slightly smaller but incredible Arcturian crystals were relocated within the bulk transport systems of the underground tunnel system with help from Sirius B. Three huge primary crystals were relocated to the Atlantean crystal fields of Arkansas, two were relocated to the underground crystal farms of Brazil in the areas of Bahia and Mineas Gerais, one was relocated to underground chasm below Mount Shasta, and the great fire crystal was placed underground in a chasm below the Bimini Bank in the Sargasso Sea. The two sacred Acturian crystals were relocated in the chasms below the area of Tiajuanaco, Bolivia near Lake Titicaca.

All nine were put in dimensional locks, essentially powered down into energetic dormancy through the technology of the Sirians. Dozens of other Master Crystals, were lost.

The rest, in your vernacular is history, poignant lost history from your mainstream perspective. Truly the paradox of the forgotten history is that it contains the most purposeful of lessons!

Indeed after a few months of being utilized for the thermal 'death ray' technology the great crystal satellite overloaded, its antigravity cushion weakened and it crashed with the accelerated velocity of a massive comet in a horrific explosion that devastated most of OG and critically weakened the tectonic stability of the Atlantean plate, vaporizing massive sections of substrata. The great crystal satellite shattered into billions of fragmented crystalline shards, which now fill the deep trenches of the Atlantic. Massive clouds of dust and smoke erupted, hiding the sun. Waves of earthquakes and tsunamis devastated the island and sent great waves over two thirds of Aryan. Within minutes the remaining power stations exploded with the strength of nuclear bombs. The remains of one such crystal power station explosion can be seen to this day in the area of northeast Brasil called 'Sete Cidades'.

Atlantis, and the eastern coast of Brazil and the western coast of Africa were devastated with subsequent earthquakes. Panic and havoc ensued for 3 weeks as the remaining dry areas shook and landmasses collapsed into the sea. The land bridge that connected Poseida and Og to the Yucatan remained above water initially and was literally filled with hundreds of thousands of Atlanteans frantically attempting to a horrendous panic filled exodus. Every type of sea going vessel was filled with the surviving terrorized refugees.

And then in one shattering gasp, the remaining lands collapsed downward into the sea. The displaced seas that became known as the great flood sent dozens of enormous tsunamis that spilled over South America, Africa and Europe.

It is a scene that has for many many lifetimes plagued and darkened the memories of many of you, who were indeed a part of it. Dear Ones, it is time to let it go.

Intent & Highest Good So many of you believe that everything happens as it should happen, as it is 'meant' to be. Dear Ones that is not always the case. Things happen as they happen, as a set of many potentials. And indeed from the higher perspective events happen as they are 'intended' to happen, and we stress the word intent. You are creators of your event horizons. But Dear Ones, events do not happen in the highest good until you create the highest good. The Fall of Atlantis was not the highest good, and will not be until you recreate it as such.

If all happened for highest good, you would not reincarnate. In the dramatic school of holographic 'reality' you will cycle and recycle until you learn this. Do you understand Dear Ones?

Time and probability are a beautiful illusionary paradox....And this is why we tell you that the Golden Age of Atlantis is actually an event horizon from your future that you pulled into your 'seeming' past!

The Crystals of Arkansas

And so now we skip forward 12,500 years, and we look at the role of the Atlantean colony you now call Arkansas.

Arkansas was specifically chosen to house three major mega crystals for several reasons.

It was already in use as a crystal mining and harvest area. As a result one of the primary interdimensional tunnels from Poseida was already established and transport complexes were available to transport the crystals to the area. The Atlanteans had developed techniques that allowed for highly accelerated growth of crystals and pre existing deep caverns existed that would be quite out of the reach of mining concerns.

It was understood that the vortex in place in the area of Arkansas would play a major role in the 2012 planetary Ascension.

Arkansas's unique geology of quartz, diamonds, magnetic lodestone, iron, limestone, and massive caverns made it the perfect incubator for the crystalline plantations. Crystals had been planted and grown in Arkansas for thousand of years before the deluge. The presence of magnetic metals in the crystal beds made it easier for the majestic Atlantean crystals to be placed in a dormant state within pre existing facilities.

A very benevolent colony of the blue-skinned LeMurians exist underground in Arkansas, as well as an underground base of Sirians. The two were in agreement to be caretakers for the sleeping crystals.

Now, the three crystals placed in Arkansas are preprogrammed to a network-grid that axialtonally connects to the remaining five enormous master crystals placed in Brazil, Shasta, Bimini, and the two exquisite wisdom crystals placed under LakeTiticaca. These are specialized Healing, Wisdom, Energy and Transport Crystals , used in the Temple of Healing, The Temple of Sound and Light, The Temple of Knowledge, The Temple of One, The Temple of Thoth , The Ruby Temple of Fire and the Temple of Regeneration.

The crystals were specifically placed in areas of supreme importance for the new earth emerging in the 2012 Ascension. Areas that were easily accessed though the Atlantean interdimensional tunnel system, that would emerge as mega vortex infinity points in your current times.

These are defined, located and placed with activation dates as follows:

Arkansas :

1. Blue Crystal of Knowledge (Interface)8-8-8
2. Emerald Crystal of Healing 9-9-9
3. Platinum Crystal of Communication (Bio Plasmic Interface) 11-11-11

Bimini Bank:

1. The Ruby Fire Crystal of Energy 12-12-12

Brazil:

1. Gold Crystal of Healing Regeneration 9-9-9
2. Violet Crystal of Sound 10-10-10

Mount Shasta:

1. The Crystal of Multidimensional Interface 9-9-9

Tiajuanaco-Lake Titicaca, Bolivia:

1. Sun-Moon Crystal of Light 9-9-9
2. Crystal of Thoth 12-12-12

In 2008, the Blue Crystal of Wisdom and Knowledge returns. On the summer solstice it will awaken to one-quarter strength. On that termed the 8-8-8, the 8th of August of 2008, will the 144 Crystalline grid launch into three-quarter function, and in turn activate the Blue Crystal into half power. It will trigger the time sequence program for the awakening of the others .

Each will open on the triple dates portals. Each will be tied to the activation of the 4 remaining 12 stellated facets of the 144 grid, the double penta-dodecahedron. The first 8 of these 12 grid- facets are now in full function

Powering Up & Reprogramming

None will move into full strength before 2012. Only the Blue Knowledge Crystal, the Emerald Healing Crystal and Sun-Moon Crystal will be at full power by 2012, the others will take longer. They will awaken and then begin a rebooting process, followed by new downloads, and reprogramming. This reprogramming will especially occur with the Bimini fire crystal, which will not be fully functional before 2020.

Their energies will be networked with the Quantum Crystalline frequency of the Ascension and tied to the energetic patterns of the Golden Sun Disc, which represent the new blueprint, the DNA, in a manner of speaking, for the 144 Grid. The unified effect of the crystal awakening, the 144 grid completion and the completion of the 12 helix Golden Sun Disc will prepare the earth for the heralded Ascension, and the new planet of the quantum crystalline field.

The effect these crystals will have will initially be quite subtle, yet that subtle strength will be immediately discernable to empaths. The effect will be a greater sense of well being, especially within the vortexes of Arkansas, Lake Titicaca and Bahia, Brazil. Each who visits these vortex arcs of the crystals , whether in physical or etherical phase, will be offered the opportunity of empowerment with the knowledge and potency of their crystalline codes. Yet be aware, that you must be of a sufficient light quotient to absorb this frequency.

The first phase represents wisdom, and the second phase will be the etheric healing of Atlantis, and the tie in to the new Golden Age of humankind.

There will be a golden rhombus formed between Brasil, Lake Titicaca, Arkansas and Mount Shasta and in 2020 this will become a five pointed star, that forms a global network with all infinity points on the planet.

The awakening of the crystals, beginning in Arkansas, will open the gate for the receptive dimension that marks the return of the star brethren. Return is a misnomer, as truly that have never left. Rather mankind lost the frequencial ability to perceive them.

This ends Archangle Metatron's Channeled information and credit is given to James Tyberonn at Earth-Keeper.Com

So now you have a small picture of what Atlantis was like and what their glories were and what their problems were. Do you see any similarities between what happened then and what is happening now? Weren't they (The Aryan's) trying to create a One World Government? Have you heard of the Aryan Mission? Check out Project Camelot's Website at www.projectcamelot.org and look up what is known as the Aryan Mission in real time right now today, and see if the same thing is not about to happen all over again unless something is done about it.

I've also already told you that we are all "thought projectors" and that what you see around you is simply a projection of all the thoughts and all of the understandings and beliefs of everyone involved. That is not to say that it is reality, because people who are asleep in their consciousness do not create reality..., they instead create illusion.

Now, before we go "revving up the engine" on the idea we just discussed in the very last chapter, I would like to take just a brief moment to "observe" some things within the political arena...(Lovingly of Course) Consider this if you would. In the country of Serbia several years ago now, there was a so-called villain by the name of Slobodon Milosovic. He was the leader and President of this sad country before finally dying in prison for crimes against humanity. He was considered by most people around the world to be a "very bad man" because he believed in "separating" the Serbs from the Muslims and other ethnic groups. The word he used was "ethnic cleansing" if I remember correctly. Others in the world saw this as a dangerous and misguided idea. Many people in Serbia suffered and died as a result of this idea/image put into action. Yet, please hold on... if you look more closely at what was actually going on in Serbia at the time, you would find that there were many other people in Serbia who were thinking just like he did.

(He could not have achieved what happened there all by himself)

The question that comes to mind then is this: Where do these ideas/feelings/images and emotions come from if large groups of people are holding them at the very same time? Enter the smart forces of magnetic energies that we just talked about.

In keeping with the last chapter, one could definitely say that these thoughts and emotions actually started many years earlier, when the different factions, clans, and tribes that lived in what is now Serbia could not get along. Therefore these thoughts, emotions, and energies of hate and mistrust that were created then and sent into the HTN at that time are still swirling around in that same area today and need to be resolved. It would also make sense then, that if a new generation of individuals comes along (without either forgiving that energy, or resolving it), and begins to think and to feel along the same lines over a protracted period of time, they might get “caught” by the previous generation’s thoughts and emotions. Remember that blood was spilled, and hate was fostered over a long period of time, and that the actions and behaviors that were undertaken as a result could have been MAGNETIZED by the emotional energy it took to have those feelings. This would be one likely explanation.

Then, there is another explanation which is even more terrible, and it is that most wars are in fact planned out and “created” by just a few individuals who want to profit from, rule over, and exercise complete control within humanity and the world. This is the other option, and MUST be considered as well!

This next more incredible possibility involves machines and technology which work on the level of the mind. During the Second World War, the Nazi’s were working on all kinds of devices and technologies. At the end of the war, there was a rush between the Soviet Union, the British, and the Americans to grab as many German scientists as they could get their hands on and then export them out of the country with their families in tow, and with written pardons in hand, if they would only continue to do their important work for their “new” countries. Many of those projects and the resultant technologies to this day are still considered top secret. Lot’s of experimentation is still being done concerning the ideas of those WWII German scientists without the public’s knowledge or without their consent.

What if one of the very clever technologies that was being experimented on by Hitler's scientists at the close of the war was a type of frequency wave generation system that allowed subtle harmonic waves of energy to be broadcast across large areas for the purpose of "influencing" the thought patterns of human individuals?

What if this type of technology, (after getting into the hands of America, Britain, and Russia) came to be one of the many cherished and guarded secrets of those who found out that "mind control" was not nearly as difficult a process as was believed before the War? (Remember the very first time you ever heard of "subliminal" advertising? Don't you wonder where that came from?) What if the same basic process that allows one human being to affect another human being could somehow be tampered with mechanically using broadcast technologies developed for just such a purpose?

Now this rabbit hole is branching off into deep, dark, spirals that like bottomless pits have no end in sight!

Tampering with the HTN is like working on a Level Five Biological Agent, with no protection and no containment measures because the "children" who are doing this have no conception of what they are doing. Instead, all they know is that they are being ordered to do so by others who are higher up in the fools chain!

The HTN is a very complicated pattern of continuously updating frequencies allowing the mass human mind (OUR COMMON MIND) to operate and communicate with each individual uploading station.

The problem here is that just like with any business corporation which operates a very large computer network system, where there happens to be one large mainframe somewhere, and then many individual operating terminals that link up to it, once a virus is uploaded into the system through any one of the uplinks, the WHOLE system gets affected, not just the terminal from which the virus was uploaded.

What if "those agencies" which we love to throw money at because they are "protecting us" believed sincerely that each human mind was nothing more than its own individual unit? What if their most expanded idea was that the frequencies and waves generated by their "machines" influenced large numbers of people because these people as a group were being directly targeted by their machines, and that anyone who was not in the machines path or in the specific target area...was therefore safe or immune from the waves?

I have several questions here that I would like to put before the readers, simply so that you may think about them. Here goes...

First off, do you think that something of this magnitude would be something we should all know about so that we can make sure it does not happen anymore? Or, if those agencies that were doing this simply told you (in order to keep going) the time honored cliché... “We were only trying to create defensive weapons here... what’s your problem with that?” Would you therefore say: “Oh excuse me then, okay...I can see how you could be in error...no worries then...it was all for our defense...even though you screwed up the ENTIRE MIND OF HUMANITY...that’s acceptable to me...carry on then!”

Secondly, is it right or moral for small secret groups or agencies to “play” with technologies that are SO FAR beyond them, that the consequences if things are done wrong could be catastrophic? (Especially if no one knows that the ramifications of the experiments could literally damage humanity or even the Earth itself) Third, do you think that it might be appropriate to first tell everyone what they were doing so that we could all have a say about it? Lastly, do you honestly believe in a “government’s” right to “keep secrets” from the very people it claims to protect? (Oh yea...there’s a magic word that covers this idea... it’s called: National Security.)

Here is how they protect this false idea. They use the media which basically says thing like:

Quick... You must all bow to this false god. Challenging this god must be considered “blasphemous” and you will be called “unpatriotic”. Never let your concern for the health and welfare of the world cause you to challenge the god of National Security!

If this is what you believe, I feel sad for you, and I feel sad for the Earth for it will not survive this kind of thinking. My brothers, we are on a precipice the likes of which we have not seen since the end of Atlantis. Ignoring what your leaders are doing behind your back will only end in the destruction of the whole. YOU are your brothers keeper. You are the Earth's keeper. YOU MUST take time to get involved!

What ever you do believe, you are entitled to your own opinion. I am not here to make you out to be wrong, for that is not my way. I am simply making real “observations” and “asking real questions” here that are designed to make you think. However, just as you are entitled to your opinion, I am entitled to have one as well so here goes...

My answer is this: Secrecy has NEVER done ANYTHING good for ANYONE period..., end of story! What secrecy HAS done is allowed those who are “in power” to manipulate the masses they control by lying to them. And for those of you living in the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, and think you have never been lied to by those you’ve elected..., forgive me and I apologize in advance to each of you, but you are just fools!

Lies of Omission are as damaging as Lies of Commission, meaning that not telling people something they need to know is that same as lying to them in the first place! In fact I say it is much, much worse!

If, the control of these types of technologies, because of the blanket of secrecy and security, are given over to people who don’t know what they are doing at best, and that we can’t trust at worst...I don’t see that as a “good thing” do you? Let me ask you this as well...would you trust your life savings to any politician, hoping that the entire amount would be spent wisely? Would you entrust them your most cherished possessions, hoping that they would be kept in good condition? Or, would you monitor those politicians completely and make them accountable for everything? Let me ask you this question as well..., hypothetically speaking of course: Would you have given this very kind of technology we have just discussed to Slobodan Milosevic? What do you think he would have done with it had he had it? (He was a politician you know... AND world leader.) What would he have done with a machine able to stimulate mind control?

Isn’t that a scary thought? If you want to know how a guy like Milosevic could get his hands on this kind of technology, the answer is very simple...he was for a time a world leader. World leaders hang together, and “until” they cross one another, they trade dangerous technologies.

Well let’s see here, surely Russia never gave any dangerous weapons to anyone..., did they? Oh..., and by the way... America, France and Great Britain are certainly “squeaky clean” when it comes to handing out dangerous weapons aren’t they? That’s right....! But wait, how do you think Saddam got his weapons...?

“Oh, yea...he got them out of a box of breakfast cereal!” “He was eating Sugar Loops one day and wow...out popped ALL of his weapons! Tanks, planes, and guns were all neatly wrapped in small plastic bags at the bottom of Saddam’s breakfast cereal box.”

Okay, so much for the sarcasm! But I could not resist because I realize there are so many out there yet who defend this kind of thing. All I can say is to watch your leaders my friends..., watch them and you will see the types and kinds of unholy alliances that are being made between countries, that the very “people” of those countries are never allowed to know about, much less vote on to see if it’s what they want. God forbid that the people are put in charge of their own destinies.

Now here is something that you need to know! The reason that the masses of people in the world are “in the dark” about the proliferation of dangerous technologies in the first place is that THEY have given up the RIGHT TO KNOW about them. How can society monitor what it as a group does not know about? I feel sarcasm coming on....

*Oh...yea, yea..., “National Security” there is that stupid, stupid word again...quick...you MUST bow to this false god...you OWE him your allegiance...but don’t look at him..., don’t think about him..., don’t question him...that’s blasphemy against YOUR GOD...the GOD OF NATIONAL SECURITY...you MUST prostrate and bow to this GOD! (Sarcasm!)

My next question to you as the reader is this: Why is it that for the sake of security so many people are willing to allow dangerous secrets to be kept? Why do you think that so many people are willing to hand over their freedoms to officials who “claim” to have the countries best interest at heart, but then for these persons to maintain their iron clad “secrecy,” they have to hand over the details of very serious and dangerous technologies to people who are already in the military and can be ordered to keep silent or face charges?

Meanwhile, the greatest and most able minds that humanity has to offer are kept out of the loop because they are security risks and might blab! But what would YOU do? That is the only question that can be asked here. Would YOU hand over the most difficult question facing humanity to a staff sergeant because he was the only person they could find that passed his college level physics course, and can be easily ordered to stay silent, when there are dozens of PhD's around the globe who could understand the stuff so much better? What would YOU do?

Perhaps you as the reader think that I'm kidding, and that it could not possibly happen this way, but I wonder how many of you realize how our governments and the militaries of these governments actually work. The best thing that I can say is that one day we as a group will have to wake up and smell the coffee. Just because you are personally terrified that someone might do something to you, why would you give so much power to those who can never be questioned about how they use it?

I tell you this most solemn truth:

Power once given away is power you will NEVER get back....EVER!

Here are some things to think about. Are all of your "fears" of terrorists and the criminal element within society worth handing over your freedoms to people you can't possibly know can be trusted? Who said that every politician elected was a moral person? But then, what's moral? I'm sure all of you have your opinion of morality but let me ask this question just to check.

How many people died or lost their lives as a result of a certain politician getting some oral sex underneath his desk? And, how many people died or lost their lives in all of the countries involved as a result of a certain politician vigorously engaging his armies in wars in two separate countries over the course of many long and bloody years?

Now you tell me which one is moral? Or, is neither of them moral? Is giving your buddy a job that he is totally unqualified to handle moral or ethical? And if, as a result of the decision to give your buddy a job that he is unqualified for..., hundreds of people die ...is that moral? Where is the moral line when it comes to your favorite politician? Only you can know the answer to that question, and I'm not here to sway you...but I will make observations and ask the questions that might lead you think.

And the final question I would leave you with for the moment then is simply this:

If there were such powerful broadcasting technologies which sent out certain frequencies that had to do with the human mind/brain complex..., who on Earth whatsoever would have the right to use such a device if the truth was found out to be that every mind was intrinsically connected to the next mind?

The better question actually is: who would YOU as the reader put in charge of such technology? Generals? Politicians? Religions? Osama bin Laden perhaps?

One thing I've become certain of, and it is this...we can no longer deny that power in the hands of the few is dangerous to the many. Our love and penchant for secrecy will be the final destruction of humanity as a whole if we don't wake up and change it! Our willingness to allow our leaders to (keep secrets) in the interest of national security will be the cornerstone of the destruction of not just one country, but the rest of the world as well.

I believe that secrets in the hands and minds of the few can only lead us to our destruction since no one person can claim to know everything there is to know about everything. It takes the best and the brightest sometimes working as a group to understand difficult problems. Not just those who can be "ordered" to shut up and keep quiet.

So...what do you think? You do realize that you are free to think don't you? Just suffice to say that at the current time we are all "living in the shadow of the Dragon" which means that much of this technology was given to our current day leaders from Extra-Terrestrials who are in fact Reptilian Beings, who have no business interfering with the development of man kind on Earth!

All right, enough... from this point on then, any discussions of human beings broadcasting their thoughts and emotions into the HTN has to be tempered with the knowledge that there are also technologies in the hands of our leaders which can and are being used to tamper with the HTN as well.

THE HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK

CHAPTER SEVEN

Now that I've had my say about technologies, let's get back to what we were discussing earlier and investigate how one human being can affect others even "without" the intervention of machines and technologies.

I would like you to consider the Neo-Nazi movement or the skinheads popping up around the world today. Why after seeing, reading, or hearing about the horror of the Nazi's would anyone wish to embrace their ideals? The answer is actually very simple. I believe it has to do with the projected thoughts and images that they (the skinheads) send out into the network that is connected to our collective emotions. These people believe in SUPERIORITY! That is all that it is. Unfortunately, this is also all that it takes for the smart forces that were created by the Nazi movement a long time ago, (which still exist today) to attract and attach themselves to these new individuals. Remember that the root thought of Adolf Hitler was that the Germans were the better race, and that the white Aryan male was superior to all others.

Now before you go saying "shame on them"... what other groups do we know about which still today, espouse the very same philosophy (superiority) and do so with great passion? Anyone have a guess?

Answer: Religions do!

Yes my friends, religions are very certainly doing this now, and have definitely done this even more so in the past. Now guess what? Every one of us who belongs to, and espouses a religion that is somehow “superior to” any other religion just got his or her hand caught in the cookie jar!

In years gone past, almost all religions except a few taught their followers that they were superior to all the other religions, and that you needed to look no farther than the one you were in. The leaders of these religions taught their followers that it was “they alone” who were the one true faith, thus making them superior to all of the rest!

This lesson, taught over and over again, by many differing religions and religious teachers affected the HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK. It was able to do this due to the heavy imagery, and heavy emotional energies connected to these teachings. These energies (sent out into the network over hundreds of years) were enough to make each and every one of these groups partly responsible for actually creating Adolf Hitler and the Nazi movement years ago.

OOPS! WHAT? EXCUSE ME???

That’s right brothers, all of a sudden our own collective complicity, or our own dirty hands becomes all too clear in what happens upon the Earth and to mankind when we dare to enter into the world of thoughts, images and emotion and then tell lies to others.

Why is it clear that we all are to blame for this? Because we have all believed in, and added our own, heavy emotional energies to these thoughts/images/and ideas which ultimately got uploaded into the network as well and become a “domino effect”. Therefore, it is “we” who are projecting these thoughts and emotions into the network for “other people” to get caught by.

Only just like a virus that can mutate and make changes, the magnetic properties of thoughts and images can mutate and change over time as well.

The Nazi's chose to use the energies already in the network differently than when originally put there and in ways we could not foresee. I need all of you reading this to be honest here, in order for this to work and make sense to you. Who among you does NOT believe that your religion is somehow better than all of the others? And if not now, can you remember a time in the past when you did think so? If you did, then you personally and most certainly added to the magnetic energy of the smart forces surrounding the globe. Which ones am I referring to? I am referring to: The magnetically polarized smart forces of separativity and superiority. Is it not a feeling of "superiority" when you honestly believe your religion is the only one out there? Or, that it is definitely the best one? Don't those feelings you have separate you from the people out there who do not believe as you do?

This is just the tip of the iceberg, and now, after all of this time, and all of this explanation..., this bloody rabbit hole only gets deeper and deeper.

Think about this..., all thoughts and words are creative, and they carry energies which if polarized can have very detrimental effects!

We all use them; therefore, all of us may be creating thoughts, images, and emotions every day which are affecting ourselves and affecting the world as well. Now after everything that you know...is it any wonder that they can't seem to have peace in the Middle East? Or... peace in Israel, for that matter?

Let's look at the United States of America for just a moment. Even though we are not fighting (at least in our own country) like those so called "barbarians" in the Middle East, are we any less to blame than they are? What about our "collective emotions" concerning Republicans and Democrats? What about our insatiable desire for the competitive world of sporting events? (Yankees versus Dodgers) Or, what about any sporting team that you can name involved in any sport in the world at this time? Dear reader, I can tell what you are thinking..."OOH PLEASE....give me a break!" Don't try to tell me that this is even remotely on the same level as any of that. We don't kill people at sporting events.

However, just for a moment, I would like all of you to try to think outside the box, and simply see this in terms of waves, frequencies and magnetic fields. What we are looking for is the root cause of human behaviors which seem to go on and on with out any hope of ending them. I would ask you not to be fooled into thinking that these very strong emotions, or energies in motion, which we all feel, and then project daily into the network, have no lasting affect upon our brothers and sisters upon the Earth. Even if it is just as simple as a sporting event or perhaps a political election where we allow ourselves to be gripped with intense dislike and emotional contempt for the opposing side, these are still emotions and thoughts which separate us as human beings from each other.

Now, what I said earlier makes a little more sense. The world happens to be in the condition it is in because we all actually LOVE it this way too much for our own good!

It's not actually the results that we love, as much as it is our own damaging thoughts, emotions and images that we are willing to fight to protect at all costs! What we don't see, is that all of these thoughts, images, ideas, and emotions are CREATING the WORLD as it is right now. Who among us is going to be the first one to give up his "hate" of the Democrats, or his "contempt" for the Republicans? Or his special disfavor of the Dodgers, or the Yankees, or the Muslims or the Christians, the Baptists, the Catholics, or the Protestants if he only knew that all of these thoughts of "better", and "superior", were creating the visual illusion called: "Earth in the Twenty First Century: What you think is what you get!"

Can't you see that these very same ideas and emotions used by the Republicans to despise the Democrats (and are espoused by radio personalities) are the same emotions used in Serbia by Milosevic himself? Was he not just simply acting upon his beliefs concerning better and superior? Did Adolf Hitler not think in the very same way? The question then becomes: Where do we draw the line when indulging our minds with superiority and separativity? Apparently, as long as the Republicans do not kill the Democrats (even though some of the radio talk show hosts out there today would have them believe that might not be a bad idea) they are completely within their rights to hold a highly superior attitude.

But if we who are indulging in these damaging thoughts and images (which are then projected into the network) have created highly polarized energy waves..., then are not

“we” as the creators of that highly polarized energy, responsible for it being there, and responsible for all of the repercussions it might have upon other human beings as well?

What if a weak minded Milosovic was simply caught by the extremely polarized energy of just one United States political election? What would energy like that do, when added to his own ideas of better and superior? (Does a ripple not cross over the entire pond?)

Again, how can this be happening? Emotions in these examples are very strong because you love one team and hate the other (going back to the example of sports teams), and some people even enjoy getting into a good brawl over who is better and who is not. These emotions do have an affect on all of the other people in the world because we are all connected to one another by the HTN.

If you wish, let me refresh your memory as to some of the happenings on our own children’s little league baseball and soccer fields, or what is happening at our kid’s elementary basketball and hockey games. These days it is always in the news about “parents” who can’t seem to control their anger as they are watching these games, and how officials have to call off the games when certain parents overreact with the officials.

There are parents who have actually started fights with other parents while watching their sons and daughters play a simple game of soccer, and there have even been a few parents who have actually killed other children’s parents as was in the news several years ago. Alright my friends...why? How could this possibly happen and does anyone ever ask why? I have an educated guess to offer. I believe that emotional energies are cumulative! Emotional energies that are created by all of us are being sent into the network and are now building at an alarming rate and pushing us out of balance! If you still don’t think so...consider the phenomenon of road rage. Did we ever have people shooting at us on the freeways during the 1960’s and the 1970’s? You know we did not, so my question to you is why, why, why are they shooting at us now? And, if you as the reader consider yourself an otherwise kind hearted person, have you caught yourself being ill tempered on the freeway and don’t even know why? Again, here is my theory. While you drive on the freeway, you are driving and moving through mental energies, and the cumulative magnetic forces created by all of us, and they are now beginning to take their toll in absolutely astounding and terrible ways.

Again, this is just a theory, and you are certainly free to say that you don’t believe in such hog wash! Or, even if you do believe it just a little, it can't be as bad as I say...can it? Consider this then...many of you take at least some comfort in your religious beliefs and in your particular church. You may even say that while reading this book for fun, you politely disagree with me and that you have found all the truth you need inside of your particular faith. Yet, I invite you to be honest and look deeply into the history of all religions, and there you will find some of the most horrible crimes ever committed against individuals and against humanity

What about the Christian crusades that over the course of 100 years killed thousands and thousands of Jews and Muslims in the name of Jesus Christ? Because they thought that "GOD" willed it. What about the conquests of Cortez and the virtual extinction of whole races and cultures in South America? Wasn't he doing this for GOD and country? Surely those infidels needed to die. What about the Spanish Inquisition which tortured and burned people at the stake for not confessing heresy and blasphemy against GOD. Their holy work was completely sanctioned and supported by the Church, by the way. In the United States of America in the early years of our country, there were witch hunts in Salem, Massachusetts, where "witches" were burned at the stake so that GOD would be pleased, and the demons would be cast out.

What is the common thread to all of this? All of it was done in the name of religion and GOD. Of course all of that was in the past...we have no religious groups like that today...do we? Since I'm on a roll, don't let it be said that this book won't stir up some controversy. Let's move into the most volatile subject of our day... the pedophile.

I'm not an advocate for this behavior just to be clear ...but what I am about to say will definitely surprise you.

For some reason, this "behavior" has been elevated in the public consciousness to be: worse than murder! Now, there is an odd stretch for you. Murder is actually more "acceptable" to a whole culture, than sex with a child is. This has become the crime of our times. Of course, you may say, "well that is certainly not so...", but I will immediately challenge that by asking you just a few simple questions.

When a murderer or a thief gets out of prison after serving his or her time, that person is allowed to go back into the society, having paid his or her debt. But, when a pedophile gets out of prison...there seems to be “no forgiveness” from society what so ever. No matter where the government seeks to house them, people are vocally protesting to the heavens and the skies above. They carry “signs” and “billboards” and go on marches telling the government to “get these no good people” out of their neighborhoods forever. Some have even suggested sending them to the moon or “stranding” them on an island...or just killing them.

They have made it so that these individuals’ names and addresses are made “public record” on the internet for all time, and that they are marked forever, and must tell everyone, everywhere they move to, who they are...as long as they live...with nowhere to go...outcasts from civilization. (Have I got it right? This IS the way things appear going...am I correct?)

QUESTION: Do we treat “killers” and “thieves” in the same way?

ANSWER: NO!

So which crime is the worst one there is in our “current” opinion? Pedophilia...of course! We have made it the worst crime that exists by believing it is so... in our “mind”. The proof is in the pudding, not in what you claim, because the truth is that you are being very self righteous. Most people feel that these individuals deserve to be “judged” as the worst that exist, and some think they should be killed.

People “currently” are outraged over this issue...and I say currently with some real meaning here. Because, if we look deeply into this behavior, you will find out why and how this has become such a dramatic issue. If you would only be willing to look closely at our own collective and extended history, you would find that this behavior (pedophilia) was at one time legally acceptable by the Greeks and by the Romans as a part of both of their cultures. Literally hundreds of millions of people on Earth practiced this behavior over thousands of years...and they did so with impunity. In the United States of America, this behavior was also acceptable (even if not talked about much) until only about 40 years ago, which means that millions of people in America were also doing it as well, and probably still “are” doing it for that matter. Remember that in the southern states, there were always marriages arranged between men who were clearly adults and girls as young as 12, 13 and 14 years old, without even a second thought about it. In the Jewish religion...this was also an acceptable practice in the not so recent past.

And now we’ve discovered much to our embarrassment that the fundamentalist Mormon Religion is still practicing this today as a religious rite, but keeps it under wraps in order to “keep the law” from finding out about it. And finally..., and as long as we are on this subject..., guess who else practiced this behavior with kids that were in their care? It was the clergy of almost all of our “church” groups, not just the Catholics. This includes thousands upon thousands of practicing ministers and priests over two thousand years. (And this is probably a conservative estimate...it could be millions.)

Now, I’ve just pointed out to you a whole three thousand years... from the Greeks up to the present day... of smart forces (magnetically polarized mental energies) just hanging around out there in the HTN, put there by millions of people who lived and went before us. And why did they put that energy there in the first place? Well..., this behavior was not a crime back then. It was for the most part legal. What they were doing then, was acceptable to others then. Yet, the energies of this behavior still remain in the HTN. And, here is the important thing for you to understand..., the HTN is the mass mind which we are all connected to! Not everyone connected to the HTN indulges in this particular behavior today, (which is due to personal polarizations, and the fact that many of us as individuals have changed our belief systems) yet the very mass mind or HTN that you are using in order to “judge” others their crimes, is in my opinion, the very same mind that “commits” these so called crimes in the first place. So you are doing nothing more than judging yourself!

Now...you may think that I’ve just “condemned these people” including the clergy by listing them...but this is not the case at all...and in fact...if anyone is a “bystander” here, I would have to say that it would probably be many of your priests and ministers around the world. Now why would I ever want to say that? This is not a defense for them, but a another way to teach you something you may not know about. Think about this very carefully please. Priests and ministers must work in a “confined” area. They must work in a large structure dedicated to allowing large groups of people... “Thought projectors”..., a place to seek solace and comfort. Now here is the truth of the matter, and yet the crux of the problem which becomes almost impossible to solve. I do not agree with religious doctrines in general; however there are thousands and thousands of wonderfully loving people who have dedicated their lives to serving others within their roles as ministers and priests. They as individuals may start out as pure as the driven snow...however the “buildings” they must preach in are NOT. The actual physical structures called: churches, mosques, synagogues, are very much like hospitals where sick people go. These buildings are places where people go when they are feeling tormented by their own “hellish” ideas and thoughts. (Which “they” created by the way, and can no longer deal with.) How easy is it to pick up a “staff infection” off of the floor in a dank and dirty hospital where sick people are going in and out on a constant basis every day?

You could go into a hospital with only a stubbed toe, and come out with pneumonia, (you KNOW this has happened because you’ve read about it). In other words you “were caught” by an infection in the very place you went to get help.

What happens to the energy of a “building” when it becomes a large gathering house for men and women seeking to relieve themselves of the guilt of their own disturbing thought patterns?

It becomes clouded and muddied by these energies and takes them on. The very energy of the building does this! Now what do you think would happen to a priest or a minister who was constantly working in such a building?

Let me ask you the same question again, only in a different way. Remember the Lepers? Why was it that no one wanted to help them? Their sickness was able to be spread from person to person...therefore anyone who worked with them eventually became a leper.

If your priests and ministers...who started out loving God and desiring to help humanity are becoming pedophiles...it may be due to the fact that hundreds and hundreds of pedophiles have gone into and out of their church “buildings” looking for relief from their guilt. These priests or ministers... (Very much like the people who worked with the lepers, then ended up being lepers themselves) ...have extended a hand to help others, and are now “infected” with the very same magnetic thought patterns as their own followers are. Do you see it now...how we all are having an affect on one another? All magnetic thoughts and ideas spread from person to person to person by way of the HTN.

And, the rabbit hole just got much deeper!

Let's see if we can visit an even more political issue (if that's even possible) like abortion. The Catholic Church really came out very strongly (in the early 1970's) against this practice... and many other religions (evangelicals) have followed their lead. And..., over the last 35 years or so, it has become a very polarized issue that even decides our elections. But, what if we were to go backward in time only 70 or 80 years at the most? Then, we would find a few individuals in this very same church (stories have surfaced recently saying this is so) who were secretly "disposing" of new babies in the back trash bins of convents due to the fact that some of the nuns had been impregnated by their priests. These stories basically say that the nuns in question would be hidden on the top floor of the convent for nine months while they were pregnant so that no one would see them in that condition. Then, they would deliver the baby, and afterwards come back into the public like nothing had happened. However, what happened to the new little child is a mystery. What happened to these children back then? Since no one knew about the baby, these people could do with it what ever they wished. Alright...I know...that's the past...it was many years ago when if a nun got pregnant and people were to ever find out, it would "ruin the churches reputation" and scar the nuns life forever. That's right, so since it's the 1920's, and since in the 1920's no one cares about the rights of the newly born, let's just throw the kid in the trash and be done with it...out of sight, out of mind as it were.

Now, once again, let's look deeper at this. These very strong emotions of guilt and denial are still out there in the HTN today. Young girls all over the globe and especially in the United States are caught by this energy time and time again. Every so often a new young mother (this happens a lot in California) "disposes" of her new little baby in a trash bin, and we as a society ask WHY or HOW anyone could possibly do such a thing. Yet, I suggest to you that the behavior and the emotions attached to it are NOT NEW. This act or behavior has already been done by previous generations and done as well by some of the people who were at the time our own religious leaders. (They felt guilty too.) And now, in this day, who is it that condemns the flood of guilt associated with an unwanted pregnancy and wanting “no one” to find out about the child? Certainly not “Planned Parenthood” who is out there on the front lines helping young mothers...but it is the religious zealots who condemn them the most, while boasting of their holier than thou stance...all backed up again by a ferocious GOD who wills it. Into the battle of vile human behavior they march on and on, waving God’s banner before them, pronouncing judgment and damnation upon the sinners of the world...telling them that “history will show how the church has always gotten it right.” But I say that their memory is very, very, very and by the way....very selective indeed. Additionally, for those of you who are up on the newest and the latest, I’m sure the newly discovered gospel of Judas Iscariot will through a monkey wrench into a perfect and well oiled system (which by the way...has never made a mistake, they always get it right don’t they?)

Finally...I would just like to say one thing to those unfortunate fundamentalist zealots marching on in the name of Jesus Christ...beware, beware of your judgments. Stop trying to pluck out the spec in your brother’s eye when you can’t see past the log in your own.

Who are we to judge anyone, anything that they ever do, knowing that we ourselves are adding to the emotional imbalance of the world simply by getting up in the morning and entertaining our own personal thoughts of superiority, separativity, lust, hate, and vengeance? Do you get it? You can’t judge other people for holding unholy thoughts, when they may have been “infected” with these thoughts and gotten them from someone else...especially if they “caught” these energies from you.

It all gets sent into the HTN, the repository of it all. What then is my solution? I do have one you know...I would not have come all this way not to offer up what I believe will be the certain and most effective way out. Here it is...are you ready?

LOVE IS THE WAY

Love is really the only viable answer because only LOVE and FORGIVENESS can nullify and render harmless the magnetic and polarized energies of images and emotions. We as a group must LOVE everyone, everywhere on Earth with out exception. I know that this sounds hard to believe that it could actually work this way, however, what Love does is it retunes and redefines the mental energy (that we all swim in) before sending it on its way again. Love purifies and lightens another person's thoughts and emotions before those energies get locked into the HTN. (A network which we all are connected to and draw upon).

How LOVE does this is quite interesting and even magical. Love changes the magnetic polarizations by re-tuning them to a much higher frequency. More correctly, it actually re-tunes the frequency itself. So, LOVE becomes the biggest magnet on the block. Most of you realize that a large magnet over powers a small magnet, the smaller giving way to the larger. This in very simple terms is how LOVE (a powerful magnetic charge) can over power another magnets pull (lower feelings, thoughts, images, and emotions.)

Is it really so hard to believe that we can have an affect upon one another? Is it so hard to believe that energies collide into each other and change one another, since we suppose we are all made out of energy anyway? I guess now that I've offered a different way to look at things; these questions are for you alone to decide. What do you think? What are your answers to these questions and ideas?

My answer is that thoughts are things. They have wave like properties as do our own emotions, and in the world of science there is this idea called: Cause and Effect. Every effect must have a cause, and every cause must bring forth an effect.

One of the newest and greatest discoveries in the scientific world today is this: Programmable Water. A wonderfully clever scientist has taken a glass of impure and toxic water in his lab, looked at the molecular structure of the water molecules under a very strong microscope and found them to be horribly deformed! Then, he did something really inventive. He simply printed the word "LOVE" on a sizeable strip of paper and taped that strip of paper to the side of the glass facing in, so that the toxic water could "see" the word. Within hours, the molecular structure of the water in the glass had reformed itself into perfect and beautiful water molecules. When looked at again under a powerful microscope, this time the molecules were perfect and beautiful. Simply the “visual waveform” of the written word had the power to magnetically reorganize the molecules! This is not a joke. It has been reproduced over and over again. Now think about this dear reader...your human body is made up of primarily water. So, if a glass of water that is mostly toxic can be changed by an OUTSIDE influence, then what can happen to your mind and your body, which are made up of molecules by the outside influences of other types? What about images? What about sounds or spoken words? What about the “invisible visual waveforms” coming from another person’s brain?

Think about this: I LOVE YOU....I LOVE YOU....I LOVE YOU...

These are probably three of the most healing words that a human being can utter. The waves and the frequencies and the vibration of the sound can reorganize a water molecule, or can change a sick and depressed human being into a healthy one. Yet, we are incredibly stingy as a race on Earth. We have this power to say “I LOVE YOU” and so many times choose not to! We have the power to LOVE and to FORGIVE, but don’t choose to. And finally let me ask you this...If “LOVE” has the power to heal a person’s physical body (it certainly healed a toxic glass of water) then what do the words “I HATE YOU” have the power to achieve?

THE IMMUTABLE POWER OF THOUGHT

(HOW IT WORKS)

CHAPTER EIGHT

So, if we've come to the conclusion that it may at least be possible that all of the things we are saying and doing are being broadcast into the HTN, and are having an affect upon everyone else, isn't it all just hopeless then? Not at all..., our lives become extremely hopeful because now that you know all of this, you are armed with this knowledge. You are prepared, and can have another type of affect. Remember..., everything that you as an individual can think, say, and do, must somehow affect the collective. Therefore, it is as simple as this: Choose very carefully what you will think, what your will say, and what you will do. You must do this every minute, of every hour of every day.

It is in fact, what you believe in that creates your thoughts in the first place. So my best suggestion to each one of you is to consider carefully what it is that you believe in.

This is the loophole that so many of the...well... what should we call them? “Souls who are in service to self”, or Satanist's or Illuminati, etc, etc, have been using to control the world for thousands of years. They (those in power) have simply told you “what to believe”. And you unfortunately have listened to and done exactly as you were told.

These souls..., some from the Earth, and some from other parts of the Universe that you are not being told about (many who are in service to self as well) have done this to you knowing that most of what they tell you is not true. But..., they also know that because of what you believe in...your own thoughts and words and actions will be affected in turn. Now, before you go saying that this can not possibly be happening, or could not possibly have ever happened...be careful...! Let me remind you of the simple technologies known as: television, the media, and broadcast commercials. Do you really believe in your heart that one aspirin is better than the other? Or... that one particular car dealership has your best interest in mind over the other? Or..., that perhaps this stock broker over here wants to do anything but make money? Remember my friends, those people interested in making money have always been telling you what to believe, and they have been doing so for some time now. They know that if they can get you to believe them (through the power of persuasion) then your thoughts, words, and actions, will be changed. The very same idea holds true for all religions, churches, governments and politicians. There is always an agenda behind their words. Now that you understand that it is your beliefs and your thoughts which can change the world...it's time to grow up a little and find out what thought actually is, and what it does. Let's immerse ourselves into the science of thought for the next several pages.

Thought is the process of YOU/GOD'S energy becoming defined!

Think of yourself and everything and everyone else in the world as if they were all fresh blocks of wood. Pretend that you (who are made out of energy, but in this case: a solid block of energy called “wood”) wish to carve yourself and the other energies of the world around you into beautiful sculptures, or wondrous pieces of art. When you as the artist carve from a piece of wood, or sculpt from a lump of clay, you are giving that substance DEFINITION, by removing what it is that you don’t want. Think about how we said earlier that everything is energy, or better yet MIND. Human Beings, by thinking and feeling, are defining the parameters of the metaphorical blocks of wood. Thoughts (as your cutting tools) define where the corners are, the limits, the boundaries. Thoughts define what energies you will accept as part of the artwork, and what energies you will reject. Since we already know and have established in the earlier chapters of the book that you are indeed mental energy, appearing in a solid form, then it stands to reason that this solid form that you are could be molded and sculpted (or changed) somehow. The process by which most people are doing this is with thought and imagery. Thought then, is simply a process of definition. It is a way for creative human beings to sculpt the energy clay of the illusionary world (waves and frequencies) we live in into something they desire.

This is terribly important to grasp in the context of the many. Thought is a cultural or group process as much as it is an individual one. These processes of “definition” can not be easily separated since we live and grow within our own cultures. Our cultures (the people around us every day) can even define “us” more than our OWN thoughts do. Unless, and here is a very big idea, each individual becomes aware that he or she is being defined by the thoughts of OTHERS and chooses not to be by thinking their own thoughts..

Here then is my next “principle” for this book:

The thoughts and ideas of our cultures and societies will always affect us individually to the limit that we believe in their validity, or that they are acceptable to us!

We as a race of human beings are sharing common themes and common experiences only because we are currently sharing common thoughts. It is our common thoughts and beliefs, which involve us in the world around us and involve us in the lives of those who are living beside us. Until YOU change your thinking, you will always be selectively attracted to those persons who allow the same patterns of thought and emotion to define their lives.

Here is something new that I would like you to think about, and really try to understand because it goes really deep in it's affect upon all of us.

In your “mind” you can “see” the results of your thoughts as “images” that are fully created and reflected back to you. Or put another way: Mental images are the result of thoughts that you are having which are fully created and reflected back to you for your inspection!

This is the process of how thoughts are perceived, (the process of REFLECTION through magnetism) and this is truly important when trying to understand thought energies, how they are controlled, how they are focused and how they are directed. I promise I will get into this statement more deeply in just a page or two, and it will make total sense when I finally give you an example of what I’m talking about. However, for the page before that, I would like to focus the discussion almost exclusively on the science of thought itself. There is at this time, sadly, a limit to what can be said safely, without giving too much information to those who have “sold us out” so to speak, and are currently developing even better weapons and technologies that tamper with the human mind as we speak. I would like to say so much more here, but just as the Bible accused Judas Iscariot of selling Jesus “out” for 30 or so pieces of silver, (which now come to find may not even be true) there are those living among us...your friends and neighbors, who really have “sold you out” for their next “rent” check, and the guarantee of a “good job” with the government. And, if they manage to pick up this book, I would sincerely ask that they please reconsider what they are doing when working with technologies that are meant to control the mind. (All you need to do is look up into the skies and see the Chem-trails to know what I'm talking about.)

Briefly then, but without going too deeply, I would like you to consider this: Density (Gravity) and Reflection are two important forces necessary in the understanding of human focus, and of controlled thought energies in general. Since thoughts can travel in a magnetic format (even though they do not necessarily travel through space), they are specifically influenced by other magnetic fields. The reason for this is clear when we use the following example:

Sounds travels through space, and can be heard from here to there, but thoughts and images travel via the HTN, which is another medium involving inter-dimensional magnetics and light. As a result, thoughts and images which travel forth are not limited by time or by space. Thus one human twin can be experiencing some event, and the other human twin can know about the event instantly, even if they are in different locations across the globe.

Let's set these concepts aside (they do get tiring) and get into personal terms for a moment..., all basic thoughts arise out of your own awareness of how things are, from your perspective, or from your belief systems. Belief systems come from your understanding of the way things are. If you wish to “change” your own thoughts, as I said earlier, you must first change your “belief system” or the “perspective” which supports or sponsors these thoughts! Now, in the illusionary world, this might take awhile because so many of us living on the planet at this time still believe in things that are not real. And sincerely speaking, (in your defense) the truth of the matter is that none of what we think of as real, is truly real when we get down to the atomic level anyway. It is just a jumbled mass of electrons swirling around protons and neutrons.

Remember in the beginning of the book, in Chapter One where we first put forth the idea that everything was all a “made up illusion”, or that it was all just energy? Remember how we said then that it was all just a game of sorts, and that we were all playing it so seriously that we actually started to believe that the illusion around us was in fact all there was. At that time, in Chapter One, we asked this question: How is it that everything which is illusionary, seems to be so solid that it gives the appearance of being real, regardless of what the truth about it is.

Okay, now back to what we started above....., consider this very carefully...

You have the ability to not only “see” the images that result from you own personal thoughts, but also the ability to perceive the forms that you view within our “world” due to the reflective qualities of your magnetic field. This personal magnetic field is intrinsically tied into the magnetic field of the planet, therefore it can be said that:

ALL MAGNETIC FIELDS ARE REFLECTIVE AS PART OF THEIR NATURE

As we have discussed earlier, your own magnetic field is the “screen” upon which your brain PROJECTS your thoughts, which then show up as images you can interpret. I even went so far as to label your personal magnetic field: “the screen of your mind”. Now, for a clearer understanding, and again as we discussed earlier, you must also be aware that due to being magnetized, your own thoughts “must also define” or have an influence upon your aura or magnetic field as well. Your “aura” reflects images back to you because of its magnetic properties which cause it to be reflective. However, your “aura” is at the same time tuned and defined by these thoughts and images as well. This only makes sense when you consider that your personal magnetic field is a dynamically fluid medium which gains its ability to function properly through its inter-dependence with motion and having light and sound as two of its primary driving forces.

As you will find with all things that are ultimately energy, nothing is truly static. Everything (all energy) has the potential to be in motion. In fact, at an atomic level, everything is *in motion, even just an old rock that is laying stationary on the ground. So, there is this definite layer of inter-relatedness between your projected thoughts/images and your personal magnetic field which you can not get around easily.

Put another way, even though your thoughts are being reflected by the screen, they will also have an affect upon the screen itself, and could cause it to be damaged or changed for the better.

Therefore, it is vitally important to remember that everything can be affected by invisible waveforms, regardless of how solid you think things are especially when we are “playing” around with things that are magnetic. As I began to say earlier, the personal magnetic field which surrounds your body has two primary drivers: The first is high frequency invisible light; the second is inaudible harmonics, modulated by frequencies that you can not see or hear. The carrier waves for these two primary drivers are inter-dimensional, solar, and stellar LIGHTS, which all spring forth out of the purest LOVE which is nothing more than God's Body!

So again, we have come back to the greatest power which exists and it is not the atomic bomb or any of the weapons of mankind. It is instead LOVE which rules all things on an inter-dimensional level! And, only when the world's scientists stop over looking this potential and stop limiting their research to what can be physically seen, will they be able to take the next step in science. This dearest friend is simply: "THE RING PASS NOT" which was spoken of in the history of all scriptures.

It was put in place at the very beginning, so that no one without the proper "wisdom" could ever see beyond the illusion that stood in their way. (Which is as it must be)

Continuing on then, as already stated, due to the nature of waves and frequencies, magnetic fields could be defined and/or permeated by other magnetic influences. And, just as your own personal magnetic field reflects the mental images of what ever it is that you are creating in your "mind"... once you decide to use an even more focused motion or behavior called: "word and deed" to direct these images outwardly toward the world, you will then be able to "see" the results of this motion (behavior) reflected back to you by all of the other magnetic fields around you at the time. These include: the magnetic fields of all of the other people, places, and things that you interact with since everything including our planet has its own magnetic field as well.

My friends, if you only knew how powerful your mind actually was. Let's look at just one small possibility here: A small rock lying on the ground in front of you only responds to getting kicked out of the way because YOU first "thought" that it should be so! Its personal magnetic field is "not" responding to the energy of your foot nearly as much as it is responding to the thought of what you intended to do to it as you passed by.

And the truth is this: if you really understood the power of thought, kicking the rock with your foot would not be necessary, since the very thought wave of having it fly down road would be enough to generate a "reflected" response from the rock. When you finally understand the "activator" within you, which takes you past the "Ring Pass Not" every one of you reading this book will be able to do this without exception.

All magnetic fields are reflective as part of their nature! This matters because thought is the process which defines “us”, and it just so happens that this can not be achieved in a physically orientated arena without magnetism!

Here is the "example" that I promised you a few pages earlier:

When you look into the mirror in the morning and decide how it is that you wish to comb your hair, there is a specific image that you are searching for that you would like to project outwardly toward the world today. When you look in the mirror..., ALL of your “thoughts” of your body and of “yourself” are used in helping you to conjure up and achieve this “image.” They are: your thoughts about your own life, your thoughts about love, your thoughts about happiness, sadness, rightness, and wrongness and even your thoughts of indifference. All of these thoughts combined together assist you in selecting and then reflecting the “image” you will project outwardly to the world on this day simply by combing your own hair. Thus: image is the reflection of your thoughts....period! Or, put another way, image is your own thoughts that are reflected back for you to see. Therefore, image is NOT thought, but image is the MIRROR or REFLECTION of thought. And, logically it can be said that there can never be an image without a thought, just as there can never be a thought without a resultant image. The two must go together. Now after this curious (and long winded) explanation, see if you can grasp hold of this statement.

*Since “image” is the mirror of thought on an individual level (small scale) ...then it stands to reason that whatever you “see” as “real” as an image in front of you in the world of waves, frequencies and fields... on a large scale... (more specifically the world we all live in which is made up of nothing but “visually perceived images”)
These things also MUST BE by process of deduction... the mirror of thought as well!*

So then, the world you are living in is NOTHING MORE than the mirror of “your own thoughts”. All images that are reflected back to you by your own mind or your magnetic field are the results of your own thinking.

This is for the most part how things are set up in the illusionary universe. Since magnetic fields have the ability to “reflect” visual images, you could even try to interpret the images that are being currently reflected in real time by other people’s magnetic fields. This is exactly what psychics do! However they are not doing anything that everyone couldn’t do with just a little practice. All they are doing is looking at someone else’s screen so to speak and “sensing” the mental movie that the other person is currently projecting. Now remember...this would not happen in a way that you could “see” visually with your eyes.

Your physical eyes are limited and set up to only decipher waves and frequencies within very certain limited parameters. That is why anything called “extra-sensory” has to be done with out your physical eyes (or without physical observation). Your eyes are, by their very nature, nothing more than prison bars that are meant to keep you seeing nothing but this world of illusion. If you could “sense” a person’s mental projections, it would be the interpretation of the images which would cause you the difficulties. It would be this way because an image that “means” something to one person “means” an entirely different thing to another person. Therefore, it is not just images which are necessary for proper interpretation, but also the carrier wave of the emotions and beliefs that it took to cause the images in the first place. In this way, images must have emotions to go forth as projections.

Just like a kite, sits on the ground until it is caught by the wind...images will never go very far without an “emotional wind” to carry them. And now you know why images and emotions have to go together, and why both are inter-dependant.

Now, as far as being psychic (which is not the same as telepathy) goes and being “good” at reading someone else’s thoughts, you have to be on the same life experience wavelength so to speak for this to work well. This is due to an entirely different life of experience, expectation, and thinking. The great mystery unraveled is this: It is your own way of thinking which produces your life, and its experiences. Your thinking is also what can unfortunately open you up to “attacks” from the smart forces which we talked about and make you vulnerable to the “machines and technologies” that certain government agencies “may” now have in their possession as well. You simply can not get around the inter-relatedness of your own thoughts and what you then experience.

So here is how it works: As you interpret your own thoughts, and then act upon them, you will “reflect an image” (through behavior) to the world that can be seen by others. Even more clearly, the image you internally “see” of yourself in your mind is the very image that you will externally “reflect” eventually unless you find an alternate thought which cancels out the preceding image. In this way, you “as a creator” could define and redefine visual images of yourself in your mind as much as you wish, until you decided what it was that you desired to project outwardly to the world as your “own truth” for today. What ever that “projection” is...it is the culmination of all of your thoughts about YOU. This then, becomes your never ending process of evolution and personal interpretation (growth). This is the truest nature of “spirit”. It is a growth process concerned with refining what it is that we are at any given moment in time. (Remembering here that “time” is not real, and that there is only one thing to know.)

Now, after having said that, I’m going to go out on a limb here and say that even more technically, what you “see” when you look in the mirror is never really you. It is just a reflection of your thoughts at just one moment in time. You are the one actually having the thoughts, creating the thoughts, and reflecting the thoughts period. The reflection you see then is just the result of what you are projecting outwardly at any given moment. This is a fluidity of movement which is never static or still. It can be easily changed at any time with the introduction of some new thoughts. This is why the freedom to “acquire knowledge” is important in ones growth process. It is the only way in which you personally can “choose” to redefine yourself. Freedom of thinking thus becomes the only way to grow spiritually. And it follows then that true democracy is nothing more than “self-governance” and the freedom to “choose” in its purest form. Can you understand why? If you are not free to think your own thoughts, or if someone else tells you what to think or how to think, then your own spiritual growth as well as theirs is stopped dead in its tracks. We as angelic beings living a human experience must be able to be true to ourselves in our own ability to choose what to think and when. This is our grand process of refinement and self-definition.

Now for those of you on the ball, if it sounds here that I'm going contrary to what I said earlier about the danger of smart forces and how every individual is an uploading station into the HTN. This is not the case. This is not the case since almost without exception on Earth at this time most people do NOT THINK their own thoughts.

They are sadly being told by others what to think, how to think, and when to think. Just follow the news broadcasts, the commercials, the newspapers and you will see that you are being bombarded by other people's thoughts and opinions, leaving precious little room for you own.

Next you have the public schools and teachers, which tell you what to think, never asking what you as the student "think" about the particular subject in question. If your answer, as the student, is not what they want...IT'S WRONG!

Then you have the clergy, ministers, evangelicals, priests, mullahs, clerics, rabbi's, etc., etc., etc., all telling you what to think, when to think and how to think. And GOD "forbid" if you think differently than how you are told to. Any number of versions of hell and damnation is what you can expect for that monumental transgression. Then you have your own governments, their representatives, and to then to give them an extra boost, your political radio talk show hosts telling you what to think, how to think and when to think. You as the innocent bystander simply pick up their dusty, smelly, rotten thoughts off of the road and walk with them as if they were your very own, never realizing that your spiritual growth has now come to a screeching halt and an utter standstill.

Most if not all of us have forgotten this. When any one of us tries to think for another person, we rob them of their growth and put a stop to our own as well.

Our public school system is breaking down in the cities not because of gangs and drugs, but because we do not "teach" children correctly. These newest souls that are coming to the planet are much smarter than those who came here in the past. This is why they are not listening in the classroom. They believe they are being lied to. And for the most part they are correct, they get what's happening. "We" are the ones who don't seem to be getting it. Our public school systems have become a "NO GROWTH" environment for personal opinion and personal perspective which is way more important than a standardized opinion and a standardized perspective. Therefore the self destruction of the current public school system is all but assured in this day and age from this point of view.

Here is why. If I think for you, or if I tell you what to think, then “you” become nothing but a slave in the world of my projection! You become an “automaton” within a world which is created in my personal image! This is not freedom, but it is slavery and prison. In this type of “prison world” my projection takes precedence over yours, and yours gets stifled. You have no say in any matters of importance. This is exactly what is happening right now in the world as you read this. And thankfully the children “get it” and they are pissed. They are not robots, cattle, or “possessions” of the country that claims to govern them for their own good. They do not wish to work in or support a world which only cares about the wealthy few, and ignores the plight and freedoms of the many. Therefore, if things stay the way they are, what these children could eventually become will never get the proper chance to develop. Now, as with all things large and small, I am NOT advocating a world in which we do not attempt to teach anyone anything!

WISDOM is of God, and therefore vitally important to our growth. But WISDOM is not knowledge..., but knowledge applied. It takes very little knowledge to get to wisdom, if the lessons of application are done correctly and honestly. Endless facts, figures, dates, and equations are useless if they do not lead children to WISDOM. Endless facts, figures, dates, and equations are just someone else telling me what to think. They are lies disguised as the truth in order to keep the world the way it is now, so that others can enjoy it the way they want it to be regardless of what all the others living here want.

What I do “advocate” then is that we teach children WISDOM. We teach children by way of example, and we use the previous experiences of our societies as a measure of what happened here and what was done about it. We do NOT tell them that what “we did” was the correct way to do it, or the only way to do it, or that it “had” to be done this way...if we do, we doom our children to endlessly repeat our own mistakes over and over for thousands of years to come. The very condition of the world today is a result of “us” not teaching our children WISDOM, but brainwashing them with facts, figures, and thoughts which do not lead to wisdom at all. In fact at this very moment we are actively trying to create “stupid children” who can’t function without be told what is right. Don’t you wonder why we are actively doing this? What do you think? In my opinion, it is always best to let the children form their own conclusions about what is right and what is wrong. Teachers help them to solve problems in the beginning, by simply guiding them with small amounts of knowledge to help them get to a wise answer! This takes patience, effort and the “best minds” out there. Therefore this means that teachers need to be “wise” themselves. Of course “our society” pays teachers very little while it pays sports figures endless amounts of money. We pay movie stars and those in the entertainment industry huge salaries, while teachers struggle to pay their rent. Rap stars have “cribs” that get on “Homes of the Rich and Famous”, but great teachers, live in run down apartment complexes, and drive beat up old cars. Yes..., my dearest friends...we as a society are “getting” exactly what we want...we are “getting” exactly what we deserve. There are no mistakes here...none whatsoever. The gangs, the violence, the drugs, the rebellion...this is what we as a group are actively “choosing” ...we just don’t realize it.

Or, maybe we want this to happen. If we did “not” want this to happen, then we would rise up and get busy and change the system. We as powerful beings of choice would collectively demand that our children be taught wisdom in school. And then pay teachers accordingly, so that the very wisest men and women would come into the field of teaching and our children would learn from “them”. (The world would change in a decade or two by the way and would never be the same again)

“...Yea, yea, yea...we are not going to do that however...we LOVE the way the world is right now! We LOVE the hate, the violence, the separativity and the superiority. We LOVE being in the best religion, being the chosen people, the favored ones by GOD!

We LOVE living in the strongest country...the most powerful nation, having the biggest military...that’s what’s important to us. Making others think the way we think, and telling them how it is...this is what’s important to us...”

“...I don’t want to hear your truth...I’m going to tell you mine and you had better listen”! “Oh, and by the way..., Children belong to their parents...we can do anything we damn well please to their minds...!”

Well friends, the rabbit hole just hit a huge underground cavern and now we are falling endlessly into the abyss of darkness.

THE SALVATION OF PURE WILL, LOVE, AND DIVINE INTENT

CHAPTER NINE

If any of this still seems confusing to you, I must ask you to go back to what you know and remember about the nature of thought. It has magnetic properties. Let's look at it differently and use the word "attractive". Why would we use this word? This word, assumes magnetic properties. Why would something or someone that is attractive to me, also be attractive to you? It is because our thought patterns are similar. Just as this word attractive assumes magnetic influences, the very world we live in is created and sustained within levels upon levels of magnetic fields existing within the same time and space.

Each magnetic field is either attracting to or repelling away from the next. Ultimately you and I will find something or someone attractive (desirable) because we are related on the level of our thought processes. On a global scale, we as humans living on the Earth are related to one another by way of the HTN, and we are attracted to, or repelled from others due to our own level of thought, and processes of thinking. In fact, as I've said before, those of us on the Earth are one huge family. Now, here is where that which is theoretical "science" can finally have a marriage ceremony to that which has always been waiting to be discovered as our very own "spirit".

Whether you are religious or not, whether you believe in God or not, it matters very little to what I am about to say next. It is my opinion that we are all brothers and sisters of the same spiritual mind, which up until now I have called the HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK. I am going to change the name of this common mind from the HTN to the “CHRIST MIND” I use the word “CHRIST” here only because the Latin and the Greek translates this word to mean: “the anointed one” which could also mean “selected one”, “preferred one”, or in computer language: the user friendly one. My feelings about this lead me to understand that there is no one on Earth or in Heaven who is less, no one who is unworthy, no one who is better, no one who is superior, and no one who is going to be left out of “Gods Kingdom.”

The reason for this is very clear to me; while on Earth we all use the same mind which I have named the HTN. Our planet, named “Earth” is currently our “collective school”, and we are learning the energy lessons of: LOVE, FORGIVENESS and HOPE within the larger fields generated and sustained by our commonly shared mind.

The Good News here is that we are all going to leave this planet with what we learned here. Each individual drop (human being) is in reality a part of the collective CHRIST MIND for the moment, while working and learning their energy lessons here on Earth.

The reason that it can be said that: CHRIST IS THE WAY..., is that regardless of who or where you are on Earth, “CHRIST” is all there is for the moment when it comes to the common mind. CHRIST is the “operating system” running our collective thought uploading stations. The CHRIST MIND is GOD'S MIND, and “WE” are not separated from it, but actually a “part” of it!

Now..., that being said, I would also like to point out clearly here that Jesus himself, was simply one man who walked on the Earth and happened to recognize what he was a part of. He was able to understand who we all together were...brothers and sisters in what he called the CHRIST, or the common spiritual mind of God living here on the Earth. Thus, he took this name upon himself... “Jesus...OF CHRIST” or, more simply put... Jesus Christ.

It is also my opinion that every man, woman and child has the potential opportunity to be just as certain as Jesus was as to who or what they are a part of. But let me be frank with you, for those of you who still harbor judgments and condemnations, thinking God sends bad people to hell...I really don't know if that could ever happen.

Only you would do such a thing. Remember this: God will allow you to go where you need to go to learn about LOVE. However, there is one caution...you will be much harsher on yourself than Jesus ever could have been if there was a judgment anyway. Just look at how you treat people on Earth, and look at the LOVE he used to treat people with (even the so called sinners).

Now HERE is where all of this becomes clear. The scientific HTN that we have been banging on about for as many pages as we can remember is a scientific name for a "spiritual thing".

Here is a conclusion then that can be drawn out of all of this...since there is nothing out there but waves and frequencies anyway...and since everything is ultimately GOD...and there is nothing that is separate, the only things that we can ever claim as our own possessions are our "choices" as to how we used Gods energy to LOVE while living on Earth.

CHRIST is the complete fulfillment of GODS MIND ENERGY AT ITS HIGHEST POTENTIAL. Having said all of this, please do not be fooled into thinking that if "I" from this moment on do not call the HTN by the name "CHRIST"...that I am condemned. Again thoughts like these are no more than religious foolery!

Many names and many labels have been given to that which is PURE LOVE!

Remember this: A rose by anything other name would still smell as sweet!

While it is true that whatever I do for the least of my brothers I do for CHRIST, what is also true is that whatever thought energy I send into the HTN, I am sending to myself, because when it is all said, done and finished...there is NO ONE ELSE OUT THERE.

So here is the key to all of this:

Since "we" are all part of the same larger ocean of mind energy...one person's progress in life is tied to another person's progress on the level of thought. And, if a few of us decided that our thoughts were the only ones desirable, and took it upon ourselves to limit the thoughts of the others, we would be limiting the progress of the whole of our society, and by default, we would be “limiting” our own growth as well, since “we are” those very people we seek to enslave. However, when free to think in new ways and hold new beliefs, just a few individuals can have a transformational affect upon the whole world which every one of us will benefit from.

This is why changing the world by changing our thoughts is so perfect, and yet at the same time it is so dangerous to those of our brothers and sisters who wish to control the rest. They know that their control of the world’s masses hinges desperately upon the thoughts and the beliefs of the very people living here. This is why those who do not know what they are doing are so adamant to keep the old thought systems, and belief systems in place. This is why they are so adamant about telling lies and deceits. Even when the old ideas are clearly shown to be outdated, and to be no longer working, governments, and especially organized religions are loath to change anything. And for those of you who think that religions understand the truest meaning of CHRIST... you are mistaken. If Jesus himself were to come back to Earth again in a body, it is my opinion that he would most likely be crucified by many of his own followers for being an imposter simply because he would not condemn those his followers felt were evil.

Jesus stood for complete LOVE and FORGIVENESS. He never condoned war, violence, or any type of judgment upon his brothers and sisters whatsoever. Anything to the contrary has simply been “inserted” into the written version of history (over the last two thousand years) by those who still want to control the masses and simply can not be trusted to tell us the truth.

By following those who would “enslave” the minds of their own brothers, you have stopped your own spiritual growth, and helped to bring upon the collective a “picture” of our society that resembles what “we” are currently experiencing now. (Earth in the Twenty-First Century)

Those that would “enslave” the minds of their brothers are terribly afraid to change anything because they fear that even the smallest thing may have an unforeseen affect that will unravel the comfortable and lavish control they have enjoyed for so long. These unfortunate souls are frozen in their “fears” that their power over the masses will come to and end soon. And, my friends they are correct. This is why, even now, you can see what they are doing. They are consolidating their power structures, moving their money, mobilizing their armies, and enlarging their corporations. All of this they do to benefit the few of them, when in truth the CHRIST is all of us together. Who would seek to profit blindly off another human being if he knew that what he was doing was only hurting and victimizing the very mind that he himself was connected to, thus hurting everyone all at once? That is why Jesus said as he was being crucified: Father forgive them, they do NOT know what they are doing!

The few, who live lavishly even today are buying other companies like there is no tomorrow. They are currently as we speak making new and unholy alliances between governments and Religions in order to keep the old power structures alive and in place. They are so afraid...they are so afraid..., and all the while the whole house is crumbling around them, as it must for CHRIST would not keep it so.

And when they noticed that even this was not working, they began to use the machines and chemicals of “mind control” on their own brothers and sisters. The whole of the planet subjected to waves and frequencies of varying kinds, (and even possibly from space) which are “designed” to keep the masses under their fearful control. All of this done in secret, all of this done to keep the status quo in the drivers seat of the worlds institutions and governing bodies, all of this done to keep the individual drops of the CHRIST from awakening and knowing “they are precious and important too! TRULY these unfortunate souls who seek power for themselves do “not know” what they are doing. They do not understand yet that “we” all use the same mind. They do not realize that what they do to the group has to have an affect upon them as well, and that this one life they are now living is not the only one they will ever have to live.

I do not believe in hell, but I do believe that the souls who limit their brothers and sisters will live many desperate lives of their own, living in the very same substandard and hopeless conditions they have “allowed” for the masses that they sought to enslave. And, after living many hopeless lives, they will come to learn finally that perhaps love and compassion are the important lessons they need to learn, at which time they will never seek global power ever again. You may think that there are many crimes for which a person should and must be punished, by let me say this: The only real crime is MIND

CONTROL, and the limiting of another persons thoughts. The physical body is not real...and damaging it, is repairable, and even if your body dies, you can get another!

However, it is the lies, the deceits, and the falsehoods which truly harm the mind of “CHRIST” beyond all else..., this is the only real crime there is. And those who engage in doing this (especially world leaders) will find out how desperately they wish they had just told everyone the truth! Yet, my friends, it is not too late for us or for the world even now. It is simply imperative to reassess what it is that you believe in, choose your thoughts carefully, and choose who you will believe, and then the world will change automatically as a result.

Here is what makes this possible:

There are in reality layers upon layers of magnetic fields all existing within the same space. It is my opinion that thought travels outside the realm of time and space by way of the HTN. Time and space are simply then the reflective parameters of the magnetic fields within our particular dimension. These reflective parameters allow us to observe our own thoughts and the affects they have upon our process of self-definition individually and then as a whole group. Yet, the greatest secret of all is something even more surprising than that, and it is that everything that exists within time and space could be said to exist only as a reflection of the collective thoughts of all human beings living on Earth at this time, and therefore may not be truly real at all. Now see if you can “get” this next statement.

It has always been said that this world is only an illusion. Many great spiritual teachers have said this. Even though this world does not seem like an illusion. The point here is that nothing is permanent. Once a thought structure or a belief structure is changed, then the physical world is amended as well to “reflect” that change. Just like you would use an eraser on a pencil to change your answer to a math question, human beings use their power of thought and belief, to change their ideas of what the world is all about... and thus the physical world is changed accordingly when enough humans change their ideas. What is necessary is collective agreement.

The world we see and view then (put simply) is the sum total of all of the thought projections of all of humanity at this moment. It (our world) is a collective definition of our individual but invisibly connected minds put together. This then, makes the whole universe we see come right into our very grasp. Since everything is a projection of the collective mind, if you extrapolate to infinity, there is no place and no time that you cannot immediately go to. Do you wish to know why? The reason is very simple. Everything that ever was, is, or even will be, is all right here, on Earth living within you as your connection to our common mind.

Everything that we together will achieve is written into the collective energy of our group soul. You as part of the one mind have access to all of it. What you see as the world around you right now is a reflection of your own level of thinking, reflected back to you by your magnetic field.

Think of it this way: It would be like tuning your television to a particular station. Your physical body (within its inter-dimensional DNA structure) contains all of the channels that will ever exist in the Universe. (These are inter-dimensional DNA strands that scientists can NOT see, but are there just the same.) Your brain is projecting outwardly into “space” your thoughts on a very certain wavelength or frequency. Your aura, at the moment, is magnetically “tuned” and adjusted to reflect back these certain frequencies only, thus giving you a temporary (and quite one sided perspective) in a “made up reality”. Now, what if you simply changed the frequency (wavelength) of your own thought projections and were able to adjust the “reflective” qualities of your own magnetic field, by re-tuning it as well. I suggest that you would then be able to “see” reflected back at you a different world entirely. These adjustments to your thoughts could change your life dramatically in the “here and now”. By doing so, you could go from being homeless and on the streets, to being CEO of a Major Corporation. You could do this by just changing the thoughts you were choosing to project about yourself. In turn, what would be reflected back to you would seem like a whole new world. I believe that it does not even stop there. On and on it goes. Depending upon the level of adjustment made to your thoughts, which in turn changes the frequency of your aura and then the planet as well, you could physically be in another world or maybe “this world” but at a different time. You see, travel in this sense means nothing because the secret of reality states that there is nowhere to go but where you currently stand. Your mind is the “projector” which makes all of this appear real as you walk through these energy fields going nowhere.

The next principle of the book states this:

Time and space exist completely within the confines of the magnetic fields which support them. Magnetic fields can be affected and redefined by your thoughts because thoughts are magnetic as well; therefore time and space can be affected by you with pure will and intent. The outer physical universe is just a projection, or a projected illusion out of the “Infinite Mind of the One God”. Since “our minds” are part of that One God, if we go inward to connect with the “common mind” or HTN, we can then go to any other part of existence at any other time. This power even includes using “telepathy” used by the Aborigines in the Australian outback. But be warned: THE CHRIST MIND can not be fooled! LOVE is The Ring Pass Not! NO one can fool GOD into thinking they have passed the test of LOVE. Thus, no one will ever get the power to do this if they would seek to use it against any of the least of his brothers, or simply for his own enrichment.

This may sound like magic, but it is not magic. It is however inter-dimensional which I would love to talk about in my next book. For now, just know that travel from here to there is only imagined or perceived by your thoughts as a necessary component to your current self definition. Once you (and all of us) have made it over the hurdle so to speak, and understand that everything we really need exists within our common mind, and that everything we see outwardly is within our ability to change (including time and space), then we will be free to travel anywhere at anytime we wish. All of this is made possible by adjusting your own magnetic field through the power of your thought and your will. When you do this, the magnetic fields around you will magically change as well. They have to, it can not be otherwise. This is possible because all of these things are magnetic, and one magnet has to have an affect upon the other. YOU as a part of the CHRIST actually contain within yourself everything that ever was, or ever will be, forever and ever without end.

So if this is the case, then why do we as human beings go to so much trouble to fight over silly pieces of land that are only as real as our collective imagination compels them to be? Magnetic fields are the only things that separate here from there, and now from then. Here is the perfect example:

I watched a television program once where two men were visiting a well-known battle field of the American Civil War. They were walking across the battlefield in the present day when suddenly they found themselves walking along side of “ghost like” images of the men who were fighting the battle. From their new perspective they were actually watching the battle as it was happening then. Yet, they were here in this time. What they actually saw was the “reflected images” of the past that were locked inside of a particular magnetic field at a different frequency, which they had somehow tuned into. The action that was taking place on the battlefield was still taking place in that time frequency and was real. Yet, they as the observers were here in this time, and both times existed in the very same space. The only way this can happen is by the existence of magnetic fields which “lock” the doors of time into a particular wavelength or frequency called “space”.

Once you can tune into that frequency or the wavelength...everything that it holds is revealed to you. Once you tune into the “other channel” so to speak, you can see the battle. And, if you can harmonize your own magnetic field to the proper wavelength or the proper frequency...then you would simply disappear from this time and reappear in that time. Yet, you have gone nowhere since you are still standing on the very same patch of ground as when you started. It is all due to magnetics and the power of pure will, love and divine intent. Now, here is one last thing to think about. If we as a group all changed our thought projections, the very Earth we are living on would change as well, because the Earth is affected by our thinking, not the other way around. In fact, due to the ripple effect, all of the planets in this solar system would change as a result of our thought projections. We are very, very powerful beings...and the power of thought can not ever be under estimated. There are places and buildings here on the Earth, right now that “we” can not see physically, but actually exist in other frequencies. Don’t you desire to see them? Change your thinking and they will suddenly appear as if they had always been there.

REFLECTION AND MIRRORED ENERGIES

(IT ALL COMES DOWN TO THIS)

CHAPTER TEN

Everything that you see as a material object within creation, and by that I simply mean anything or any object that was created to make our lives easier, had to first start out as a thought in some persons mind. Remember as well that we are all connected to each other within the HTN. This goes a lot farther and a lot deeper than you might at first comprehend. Everything that exists on Earth had to start out as an idea. Then, someone acted upon that idea, and brought forth an invention of some kind. However, whatever the invention was, it could not last for long if we didn't all agree on it.

Someone for instance could decide that they wanted to build a restaurant in the middle of the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco, and then build it. But, if we didn't all agree that it should be there, it would not last long at all.

One major principle of creation is that it takes collective agreement to last. Think about any building, any car, any plane, school house, hospital, television, computer table or even the very chair you are sitting on and you will discover that someone had to "think" it into existence. All things “created” are thought of in the mind first, then drawn on paper, then checked for flaws, and then lastly built. It is plain to see that whatever becomes “manifest” in our physical world starts out as a thought.

Thought is the beginning of the creative process, and the way by which the physical world is changed!

The unseen domino effect here is that we as a collective mind are all affected by each others creative thoughts and manifestations in kind. So, if we find ourselves complaining about the condition of the physical world, then we must realize that it is “we” collectively that have brought it about.

Now the truth of the matter is that creation can take place in our world even when it is the “narrow vision” of only just a few people. However, they can not manifest or keep anything without the agreement of the majority of us! This is where the “collective we” have failed miserably. The “collective we” have believed every lie, and every tall tale, and every deceit, and every Santa Claus story that those few who wish to remain in power have thrown out at us for centuries. The “collective we” have bowed down to the “few” again and again, when there are Billions of us, and only thousands of them. Do we really LOVE the world the way they are “envisioning” it? Do we really LOVE the palaces for the rich, castles for the royals, and yachts for the famous...? Do we LOVE the starvation of the little children, the agony of the homeless, and the frustration of the sick?

The “we” that number in the Billions could put a stop to the “few” who are only thousands in just one day.

I read in a magazine some time ago that there was enough money in the world at that time to give every man, woman and child “one million” dollars. If that is truly the case, don’t you wonder who has it all? I guess this is just one more thing we are willing to allow, in the hopes that we might get there too. Now, I’ve hit the nail directly on the head. You see, the mouse trap these powerful people set out for you is this: the possibility that YOU might get there too. You too could live in a palace, you too could live like the royals, and you too could have a yacht. Now, do me a favor and be very honest and ask anyone who has ever made it that far...and there are in reality only a handful in the world...what they had to do to get there. In their honesty they will never look you in the eyes because what it took to accumulate that much wealth was truly monstrous to many of the human beings they have dealt with. Your illusion of the world says there is somehow an HONEST way to become one of the super rich...there is NO such way. God never intended the few to have so much, while the many had so little.

It could never happen without the denial of the plights of countless human beings. Look what the oil companies are doing to us right now! No one in their right mind could possibly manufacture a good excuse for their complete and utter greed. Other Corporations are rich today because they only hire part time workers. They give no benefits, and they steal your retirement funds right out from under you. These people are willing to do whatever it takes to join the “wealthy club”. People are literally human steps that allow them to climb into this club. But even after they have done their worst, and can’t even look at themselves in the mirror, they are denied access to the club. Why? My friends...the super rich will never let others join the club. You are not one of them, unless you completely “sell out”, deny every one of your brothers and sisters, and promise to continue to lie to the masses of God’s children in order to stay in. (Denial and deception are what are truly required)

Regardless of all of that, there is much hope. “We” can collectively change the world for the better, making it more reasonable for everyone living here. We can change the world, and just as with everything else that has been made manifest into the physical world...it all starts with a simple thought, or an inventive idea. The problem, and the key, is that we all have to agree. Here is where I must point out that we all have a part to play in deciding what happens to the world. We all have voices, we all have mouths. Yet, these voices are so seldom heard. Why?

I believe it is that we are so afraid of being wrong. No one wants to “choose” anything new, without knowing what the complete ramifications and details of the choice will be before hand. We are all stuck in “lala” land where we do not wish to take responsibility for any “new” creations, because we’ve seen that our “old” creations have been less than enlightened.

So instead, we give our almost all of our “power” away to elected government officials, or priests, or clergy members, evangelicals, rabbi’s, and mullahs, who we hope will know better what to choose. We listen to them faithfully, only surprise of surprise...we find out that “they” are choosing unwisely as well. But, “they” are not choosing for the benefit of the whole group, usually they choose only what benefits their own small clan...and therein lays the beginning of the error. Nothing created for just a small group will ever be good for the whole. All of this goes back to the idea that no one person can think all of the best thoughts, and that our destiny lies down a collective road. Our destiny lies down the path where everyone must stand up and say what they believe is best, and then we must all agree on it together. There can be NO fence sitters on an Earth that presents an equal and fair opportunity for Love and Happiness for all of mankind.

We can not have just a few elected officials making up the rules for the masses. This will not represent what the masses really desire. They will always make the rules to suit their own very narrow interests, which almost always exclude the many. The universe was not set up to work this way my brothers. The way the universe works is this: I am a reflection for you, and you are a reflection for me. What I am doing is mirrored by you, and what you are doing is mirrored by me. This is a very big statement, and I will get into this idea in detail for the rest of this chapter. For the moment, it is my opinion here that every one of us needs to have the opportunity to say what we desire with regard to every question concerning all of us, at all times. This “includes” the many hidden “national security” questions such as the “extra-terrestrial” question my friends. You, as a fair and equal part of the mind of GOD, can not say what you would do about a certain thing...if you do not know about that thing. Other people do not know better than you. They are not smarter than you. They use the same mind you use...the common mind...the Christ mind. Trust me on this if you trust me on nothing else. Only YOU can decide what you believe is best for the whole. NO ONE anywhere on Earth has the right to decide in secret, and then say to the rest of us that’s what we would decide. You must decide personally. It is a must, and it is how the Earth is set up. Most people have no idea what is really happening on Earth at this time. Don’t you wish to know? Demand to know!

It all goes back to Energy, Motion, Magnetism, and our true purpose for being here. Everything here is made up of energy. This, I have already established, and that the process of definition (as concerns this energy) happens by way of thoughts and images, words, and then actions. Now the question becomes: How does all of this play out in the world of the relative, given the fact that I have the power to think or to create new things and ideas into existence?

Answer: It happens by way of pure reflection within time and space.

Here is an example:

Think of time and space like you would think of a room inside of a building. Inside of this room are mirrors which completely cover all of the walls, the floor, and the ceiling. If you were to put any object into this room called: time and space, and suspend it in the very center, you would be able to view this object from every angle possible! There is no angle from which you would not see this object clearly. The result of this would be that you would KNOW this object very well.

Now, let's get a little abstract here, and say that instead of an object inside of this room, you have suspended an IDEA in the very center of the room. Because of all of the mirrors in the room, you are easily able to see into every corner of this idea. You are able see all of its pros and all of its cons. You would be able to see its flaws and its successes. Nothing would be able to escape detection due to the "reflective" qualities of this room.

Now, let's get Big. Pretend that Earth is this room (it is by the way), and that everything on the Earth has a magnetic field around it (everything does by the way) and that one of the primary functions of a magnetic field is its ability to be "reflective" (which is true). Now, you can see that we are clearly "living" in the model that I just described above. Whether we invent or create new objects or new ideas out of energy, there must be a way for us (who are also beings made out of energy) to view our creations. This is necessary so that we can decide whether or not we like them, whether or not they are good for us, and whether or not we choose to keep them. Let's take an example for the sake of discussion. The Roman Empire. This Empire extended across the world in many places. It was an idea. It was a way to govern large masses of people. It was embraced by many people and forced upon many others. But this idea needed a way to be clearly understood in practical experience. The perfect answer is: The reflective parameters of time and space! This is not all that is necessary however. What is also necessary are millions and millions of miniature mirrors that can combine to make one very large mirror. These mirrors are a collective if you will of voluntary and experimental participants who are willing to allow every facet of the energy of this idea to be reflected and mirrored so that all can see. And when I say...all can see, I mean "THE ALL CAN SEE" Who is the all? We collectively are the all. We are the ONE MIND, experiencing and learning to pass the test of LOVE. This is what this planet does for us. It gives us a way to observe our energy creations to see if they will ultimately serve us. As for the example above, most of those who were there at the time decided that that particular brand of governing people was not adequate or in the highest vision of themselves. So it went away. Now let's get small. It is with the individual that all of this really matters anyway. We are all miniature mirrors. I am surrounded by my own magnetic field. This is what separates me from you, since we are both made out of pure energy. If these magnetic fields were not in place, I would simply blend into you, and you would blend into me. This is why everything in the world seems separate then. It is due to the reflective quality of your magnetic field, (mirror) which is tuned and defined by your soul. It is also due to the reflective qualities of the larger magnetic fields around you which support the illusions of time and space. Again, this is the secret force that keeps your physical body intact and makes it appear visually (illusion) that you are separate from everything else. If I was going to be very clever, I might just say that the world we live in is nothing but smoke and mirrors. (Spirit and Magnetics) Very clever and very true. How many spiritual books have you read that were written by great Yogi's or master teachers who said this very same thing. Remember that your physical eyes are designed to interpret waves and frequencies. What you "see" is not what is really out there. What are out there are waves and frequencies. Our eyes "interpret" these waves for the brain, and a picture is constructed that looks somewhat real.

The problem for all of us is that what we have "seen" with our eyes, we have made real by believing that it is really there!

The power of the mind is so great that it can make waves and frequencies which are completely unreal...solid to the touch. If you could only unlearn the lie that your mind has learned, you could easily pass your hand right through a wall. (You could do this because it is not really there, you just believe it is) Let's change focus, and use another example:

Think of a husband and wife who are having a long argument. They are both angry and no one is willing to give in. They both have a bone to pick and each one is projecting their own ideas, while reflecting the ideas of their spouse. This is quite an interesting way to look at an argument is it not? It is simply reflection and projection. One person is putting forth an idea or a point...this is called projection. The other is refusing to listen and not getting the point at all...this is called reflection. How can anyone win the argument this way? It can't be done, it is technically impossible. We are beings of energy, and we communicate in waves. Waves are easily reflected by magnetic fields which act like mirrors, if the mirror is being set to reflect that frequency.

Let's look at it another way. Think of shining a bright light at a mirror. What happens to the light? What happens if you want the light to go through the mirror to the other side? It can't! A mirror can only reflect the light back at you since that is what it is set to do.

So how do you win the argument? You harmonize your energy to their energy. Think about this. A person's "aura" is their shield and protection (in a manner of speaking) which is defined and refined by their own thoughts, beliefs, and emotions. If you are in an argument with them, then it is due to the fact that your own thoughts, beliefs, and emotions about a subject are very different. Now, you may in fact have a better idea, perspective or point of view. But, you are not able to convey this to the other person while fighting verbally with them because your projection can not get through their reflection unless and until you "harmonize" with it. How does this happen? It happens very simply. You start by saying: "I can see how you could feel the way you do. I can totally understand why you might think the way you do..." If you continue your conversation in this way, soon you will be looking at the situation from their perspective, and in the moment that you see exactly where it is that they are coming from..., you have then "harmonized your own energy to theirs. When this is accomplished, you are in harmony with their magnetic field, and its reflective qualities will be lessened. This creates a small window for you to "crawl" through so that you may lovingly help them to understand your point of view as well.

Be careful not to take this information out of context and behave with it in a way that uses this information unwisely. You can very seriously harm an individual or group if you are not careful. Make no weapons...instead make love!

ENERGY AS AN ABUSED MEDIUM

CHAPTER ELEVEN

So here we are on Earth, these great and wonderful beings of Light Energy, and we are walking around the planet immersed in many other different kinds of energies. We are walking and moving through literal oceans of energy in our daily activities. When our “mirrors” (magnetic fields) are clean or clear, we are able to “reflect” unwanted images, ideas, and energies that are not in harmony with our highest ideals. But, there is a lot of energy out there in the form of thoughts, images, and ideas. We as beings made out of energy can actually feed on other energies that are not necessarily food.

Certain thoughts, images, and ideas carry a very seductive type of energy that can be like taking a pill, or like taking drugs. But, be warned! Energy can be as much of a narcotic, as cocaine or any other illicit drug you can think of. You can actually become addicted to “dark energies” or waveforms.

Let’s start out with one that is completely obvious...Pornography. How many men and women are dangerously addicted to the energy of looking at nude images of the human body? It has become energy of a drug like quality. Lust puts them into a type of “lala” land where there is no use in doing anything with their lives since whatever they do does not matter anyway. This energy saturates their magnetic field and qualifies the frequency! Then, they become accustomed to that particular frequency and lo and behold they can not seem to do with out it. They are now addicted to viewing porn on the internet, in magazines, in movies, and just about anywhere they can get their hands on it. Why is this? It is because they have become addicted to the quality of that energy. And, since they are no longer “reflecting” this energy, they are caught by it where ever they go.

Now, let’s take one that is not obvious at all...Religion. How many men and women are dangerously addicted to the energy of self righteous superiority? It has become energy of a drug like quality. Anyone who embraces a fundamentalist point of view has been thrown into a whirl wind of hyper activity where they feel that the only way to serve their version of GOD is to dramatically force the rest of those around them to fall in line with their narrow systems of belief. Or, just the opposite, some Religious followers have become so “drugged” by their self righteousness that they believe that they must do nothing to help anyone at all since they are the chosen people, and only they are saved anyway. In this way, they are able to turn a “blind eye” upon the rest of world as condemned, completely ignoring all injustice while saying there is nothing they need do about it. This energy of self righteous superiority saturates their magnetic field and qualifies the frequency! Then, they become accustomed to that frequency and can not do with out it. These persons are “addicted” to making everyone who will listen... hear and understand their “tale” of punishment, damnation, and judgment. These people have become addicted to the quality of this type of energy, and since they are no longer “reflecting” this energy, they are caught by it wherever they go.

Just about every other thought, emotion, image or idea out there carries some type of energy signature. The question is: Are you still able to think for yourself...free from addiction to the energy that surrounds you, or are you “addicted” to some form of energy connected to ideas, thoughts or emotions that you can no longer “reflect”?

Each and every day you as an energy being on planet Earth are called upon to choose which energies you will immerse your Soul/Mind in. Keeping your personal magnetic field (mirror) clean then becomes the task of the day. Everyday we are walking around within oceans of waveforms of every shape, size, and kind. It all goes back to the idea that everything is energy. You are made of energy, and believe it or not you should be “cleaning” that energy everyday.

The most beneficial way I know of “cleaning” your energy is to take a bath. Now this goes a lot deeper and farther than just body hygiene. Naturally you wish your physical body to be clean and smell good. However, your magnetic field needs cleaning as well. Water does this best. But, it must be a full body submersion! Especially getting your head under the water, and keeping it there for several moments.

Simply taking a shower, or standing in the rain will not do it. Only a full body submersion, in a bath tub or a swimming pool will allow for the “clearing” of your magnetic field. I know this seems strange, but trust me on this because this is one area where I’ve experimented extensively. Your body’s electrical field changes under water. This is the key to releasing the stuck magnetic energies you don’t want to keep in your “aura”.

There are several other ways for you to “clean” your energy. Reading “spiritual” books actually changes your magnetic field. Laughter, Prayer, Yoga, and Exercise, are all things which ultimately help to heal your bodies magnetic field. There are many, many positive and uplifting books that talk about how and why to do these types of activities.

HOW TO SAVE THE WORLD

CHAPTER TWELVE

Image projection, and thought projection into the HTN is the only way to change the world, because that is what the entire world is... (A projection). You must become...or (project) a physical image of what it is that you would like the world to become. It is by your own thoughts, that the HTN will be modified and changed. Let me explain. If you wish the world to become peaceful..., then you must become peaceful in your MIND and do something peaceful. If you wish the world to be peaceful, but in order to achieve that result... you undertake violence...then the world changes and becomes more violent NOT more peaceful. You are projecting forth thoughts and actions of violence. This then is the information the world reflects back to you. This information (energy) is then translated and reflected into the HTN and changes all of the people connected to the network. This effort known as: Changing the world through “thought projections” is already understood by the corporate world and those very wealthy few who choose to make lots of money. It is also understood by governments, politicians, and yes even religions. Only their use of this technique is in the negative sense. “Propaganda” is the use of this idea turned upside down, for the benefit of just a few. Corporations, governments, politicians, and religions currently are choosing to “change the world through false thought projections”. Thus, they seek to influence opinion by saying things that are not true. They have been very actively doing just what I have described to you for centuries. They have placed “false images and thought projections” into the HTN and thus large parts of humanity have been affected by these faulty thoughts and ideas. Here my friend is where I can tell you the GOOD NEWS! They have proved that this is the way it works. This is how the universe is set up to function. Now all you have to do it to get into the driver’s seat of your OWN MIND and your own thoughts and you will be right back on track. Then you can change the world around you for the better by choosing what to believe, and what ideas, and thoughts you will now project into the HTN. Here is a clue: When in doubt..., LOVE IS THE WAY! LOVE WILL ALWAYS TAKE YOU HOME.

This is exceedingly important to understand in the world of waves and frequencies that we live in. Change your thinking, and the world will magically change as well. So now finally you are hearing the truth that will set you free, and it is this: When people, one by one, began to change their thinking, it is only a matter of time before enough of the network is “flooded” by this new thinking where a “complete shift” of the whole network is absolutely guaranteed!

What do I mean by this?

I mean that OUR reality is a made up reality. It is a projected illusion of the collective. So, if enough of us “change” our way of thinking, then the whole illusion shifts into another version of reality, (made up of course by us). Since we are all connected by the common mind, every one of us will benefit from this shift...even those who are trying desperately to put a stop to it.

Lastly, I would like to tell a story that I read many years ago about a monk who ran into an angel. I am using this story as a teaching tool, even though parts of the story are not in line with my own belief systems. (The story is paraphrased, and not exactly as I read it, so if you’ve come across it before, just bear with me on this).

Centuries ago, there was a young monk walking down the road away from the city where he was born. He was on a journey to a neighboring city where in intended to live and to work for some time. Since he was a monk, it was his practice to pray daily, and he had an acute awareness of the illusion around him. On his way down the road, he met an angel dressed in a long robe, with a cloak and a hood. He recognized this person as the Angel of Death who took souls into the afterlife. The monk, being astute and quite wise knew what the angel was up to, but showed him great respect. He bowed to the angel, and greeted him. "Where are you going on such a fine day?" He asked kindly. The angel recognized the monk and engaged him in conversation. "I am going to the city of your birth, the place from where you have just come. God has instructed me to bring back 500 souls by allowing a plague to hit the city." The monk bowed again to the Angel saying, "Good luck and Good tidings to you, I pray that your work will be quick and merciful." The monk then continued down the road to the next city where he took up residence and began his new life and career.

Several months had gone by when word reached him that a terrible plague had hit the city of his birth, and that many people were sick and dying! This went on for several years, and many people indeed did die, in fact, the number soared into the thousands. Approximately 5 years later, the plague had pretty much been extinguished, and the monk decided to go back to the city where he was born for a visit. On his way down the dirt path, he again met up with the same Angel he had run into before. The Angel was just leaving the city. The monk stopped and again greeted the Angel kindly and engaged him in conversation. However, this time the monk had some very serious questions to ask. "Excuse me, if you please, but could you answer a question for me?" the monk asked. "Sure", the Angel answered with a smile. "Didn't you tell me the last time we met that you were commissioned by God to take 500 souls to the "other side" asked the monk? "Yes" the Angel answered calmly, "I believe that's exactly what I said" "And, to tell you the truth," he continued, "I've just finished my work here, and am on my way. The 500th soul was taken yesterday, and he was the last one!" "Well, excuse my frankness," said the monk, "but, I've heard that the number of people who died of the plague in this city was much higher, and in fact, was around 5,000 or more!" The Angel calmly smiled at the monk and said, "You are correct, but you are also confused, so I will try to help you to understand. While it is true that 5,000 people died within the last 5 years, I only took the very souls that God commissioned me to take, 500 in all." "Well, I still don't understand," said the monk. Again the Angel smiled and said, "The truth is that only 500 people died as a result of the plague. The other 4,500 people died as a result of the fear they experienced when the plague began and thus created their own illness and death! Had they not been so fearful, they would have lived!"

Now, after hearing this story, I would like to point out to you how much truth there is in the final lesson. This is how things work in our universe. What you believe will happen, is what does happen. ..."seeing is believing"... This is how the old saying goes, or at least that was what was told to me by my parents. Yet, it is totally incorrect in my opinion. The actual truth is this: Believing in something very strongly, is what creates what you see eventually. The story above demonstrates the POWER of COLLECTIVE thought and the power of thinking within a group structure. The city in the story above actually changed its reality through fear. Fear is a powerful emotion. What was not supposed to happen was collectively created through fear. The reason this can happen is that all thoughts and all emotions are magnetic. They are all creative and support attractions to other magnetic thoughts. If you believe strongly that you are “going to die” then you can program your body to do just that. Now, let’s go back and talk one last time about the world wide media, and its grip upon the minds of the masses. Finally with a little better understanding of how things actually work in the world, maybe you can see how insidious something like this really is.

Let’s use a fictitious example here:

If I wished to be the next Hitler, Stalin, or Mussolini of the whole world, (I don’t, but let’s just pretend I did) and I wanted to “take over” any democratic country in the world, this would be very difficult to do indeed! Any path to achieving this goal would have to include controlling the “minds” of the people living there. In order to make things happen toward that end... (What ever I felt might be necessary to further this goal), the quickest way to get the result that I wanted would be to do this first: Decide what it was that I wanted to have happen, and then...

TELL EVERYONE LIVING THERE (BY WAY OF THE MEDIA) THAT IT ALREADY “IS” HAPPENING!

Why is this necessary? It is necessary because our world’s reality is collectively created by all of us. Nothing in this world can happen unless a critical amount of people, (thought projectors) agree that it is so. Large groups of people must be made to “believe” something is real, before it can manifest as a permanent reality. This is just how things work.

All of my efforts (as an aspiring dictator) would be focused on creating “an illusion” of fear within the hearts and minds of the people living there. Then, they would willingly give over their power to me to protect them. I might even go so far as to “create” small isolated examples of what I am telling everyone is happening, so that they will “believe” even more desperately that what I have said was true. But it would have been “me” that was doing these things, and not who I blamed.

As a “would be” conqueror, I don’t wish to destroy the democratic country..., that would not serve my purpose, and so “taking over” by large attacks must be avoided at all costs. But small incidents of destruction which create even more “fear” would serve me very well. Therefore, I might just do anything that it takes to keep the people believing that what I said was happening...was truly happening. In this way, I’ve won, and I haven’t done anything but “control the minds” of the people I wished to conquer!

Let’s be controversial here again and for arguments sake take the “Flu Shots” that seem to be a must for everyone during flu season. The quickest way to get everyone into the doctor’s office and injected with these synthetic drugs that contain who knows what in them...is to say in the news media that suddenly there is an outbreak of the flu and that many people are now sick and dying. It amazes me how many people are so quick to listen to media hype and media broadcasts as the “gospel truth”. The media unfortunately has become little more than a pipeline of propaganda even in democratic countries.

Sometimes the media itself does not check out the veracity of what the government feeds it as a true story anymore. They are all so eager to have a story, and to fill countless hours of television air time that anything that gets said by the government is immediately thrown up on the screen with very little “IN DEPTH RESEARCH” done by anyone. In this regard they are totally doing the country and themselves a monumental disservice.

One thing that I have discovered over the years is that if you really want to know why something is happening...then follow the money trail! To know the real truth of any situation or any story in the news...just ask this one question: WHO STANDS TO PROFIT FROM THIS? Find out which company, or which corporation will profit and you’ll have your answer. Find out who runs it, and who sits on the board, and the mystery will be solved. All of a sudden the truth is obvious.

Now read the example above again with this in mind. Why give these yearly flu shots anyway? Who owns most of the stock in the pharmaceutical company that makes the shot? Who runs it? Who sits on the board, and makes the decisions? How much money will the corporation make if everyone gets the shot? What other companies in the world does the first company own? What do they sell? Check deeply into this and then you can decide what the truth is for yourself.

Again, what I am telling you is that the world can be changed by our thoughts, what we think (or are told to think) and what we choose to believe. That is why thought control is so subtle and insidious. IT HAS TO BE STOPPED! Sadly our own news media, newspapers, radio, and television are much too saturated by corporate money to be objective any longer. The media has now become nothing more than a weapon used by the status quo to “enslave your mind” if you allow it. The media will never report anything that goes against the corporate interests that funnel money into them. Thus, many things that are not necessarily true get reported, while other things that desperately need to be reported go unsaid at all costs.

Is this the way you wish to get your news? From companies and corporations who have to make money at all costs? Do you think you as an individual matter to them?

Thus, I say this: Find out things for yourself. Try not taking the word of the media as gospel on every subject. And remember this as well: Even if something that you don't like does seem to be happening in the world, you can change it with your thoughts, because thoughts and images are magnetic and must have an influence on the HUMAN THOUGHT NETWORK!

You are the thought projector; time and space are your mirrors. We see a reality, because that's the one that we are collectively creating, not individually but “collectively! Not in deed, but in our thoughts. Currently we create the world by believing in things that are NOT REAL, and never asking anything more than what we are told. It's time that we changed all of that. Everything starts out as a thought first..., remember this, and you will now have realized that you have the POWER TO CHANGE THE WORLD!

EPILOGUE

*My brothers and sisters, I have done my best to put forth a new idea. It is one that encompasses all of us together. I admit that I have provided little in the way of actual “proof”. However, it is the GOD residing within you who will have to offer you the proof you need. If you are completely sure that none of this could be true...then I honor you for at least finishing the book. Thank you kindly for giving me your time and your attention. If nothing else it was a provocative and entertaining exploration of new territory. And if you’ll recall what I wrote in the forward, “this is at best an educated guess.” However, that being said, if you like what you have just read, then I would ask you to join me in spreading this Message of Love. You now have in your hands the GOOD NEWS! I believe this is the original message that GOD has always wanted us to have: The kingdom of heaven exists within each and every one of us. It lives and breaths within our very cells. It is the energy of GOD himself connecting us first to divinity and then to our brothers. It is our permanent and everlasting connection to “CHRIST” and to the one GOD who is the creator of it all.

Please send of copy of this small book to anyone and everyone who you think may find some benefit from reading it. By your actions, your intentions, and your LOVE...the World can finally be peacefully changed, and lovingly changed through knowledge, understanding and WISDOM that comes from far beyond!
